POULTRY TALKS.

Roosting rooms 7 by 6 and a scratching shed 10 by 7 feet give ample space for twelve hens during the winter.
While the weather is dry look out for crop bound hens and males. Feed some soft mash, and they will not be crop bound.
Lice will affect fowls at this time of year when you have the impression it's too cold. Use common coal oil on roost and get rid of them.
Don't provide artificial heat for your fowls if the weather should get bitter cold, but have your house naturally warm and sufficiently filled with fowls to keep the room warm.
If you want your poultry house to be snug and warm cover the walls early with tarred paper on the inside. It will last much longer on the inside.

NEW METHOD OF TELLING FOWLS' AGES

There are certain rather indefinite physical characteristics that go to indicate aged birds from those of tender years, such as the size of spur, color of shanks, prominence of certain veins under the wing, etc. These for the most part are general rather than specific, hence more or less misleading.
A more accurate method has been discovered by Victor Fortier of the Canadian department of agriculture, which to many breeders of even wide experience will appear as novel and yet practical and reliable.

In females fully feathered and from six to fourteen months of age the first secondary near the avial feather is shorter than the others, and the quill is more central, banding in a short point, slightly prominent. There is only one secondary on each wing presenting these characteristics until the following moult, after which the second feather is also shorter and more rounded than the rest—that is, after the fall moult in a fowl over eighteen months old there will be found two secondary feathers presenting these characteristic markings, although the bird completes its second year only the following spring.

The chief utility qualities of the White Cochon breed of fowls are based on their production of large brown eggs in winter. They are also highly esteemed for large roasting fowls weighing from eight to ten pounds and the males two pounds heavier and often more. The hen shown is a White Cochon.

After the second moult there are three shorter feathers in each wing. After each succeeding moult one more feather comes in shorter. This characteristic is found to be more marked and more easily told with pigeons than with hens, but it holds good with all fowls and is a marking that cannot be faked, manipulated or changed.

MILK FOR POULTRY.

Valuable Feed on Which the Birds Thrive and Grow Amazingly.

The most valuable poultry feed on the average farm is milk, either skimmed sweet milk or sour or buttermilk. Most farmers feed the surplus milk to the hogs. Milk fed to hogs makes flesh that sells for around 7 or 8 cents a pound. When fed to poultry, especially during the winter, milk makes eggs that sell for at least 35 cents a dozen, and flesh that brings from 15 cents to 30 cents a pound, in the case of milk fed broilers as much as 35 to 40 cents a pound, because in discriminating markets milk fed poultry always brings a premium over the ordinary grade. Given all the milk they will consume, hens will lay well in season or out of season. It is not possible to overfeed on milk, as can be easily done with other feeds, so it is safe to keep sweet milk or sour milk before the fowls all the time.

Vessels in which milk is fed must be washed and scalded every day. Ordinary earthenware crocks are the best vessels in which to feed milk to grown fowls, as they are easily cleaned, while if wooden troughs are used they soon become soaked with milk which grows sour and foul to such an extent that thorough cleansing is impossible. If only a limited quantity of milk is available for feeding grown fowls it is best used to moisten mash feeds, as when used in this way the milk will be evenly divided among the fowls.

2000 CATTLE RECEIVED

Sheep Prices Continue Higher, and Good Demand Felt for Pork

Over 2000 head of cattle were received at Portland Monday, which was one of the largest runs during the winter. All offerings found a very good demand and prices were on about a steady basis with last week, though there were a good many prime cattle received during the day, including some well finished pulp-fed steers which brought $9.50. The market cleared early, there being a very good demand from northwest butchers and packers.

Best beef steers were in good supply, which also met a very good demand. Best beef steers brought $8.50, with another load at $8.25; good steers closed at $7.75 to $8.15; medium kinds brought $7.25 to $7.65. Market on common grades suffered a little loss of probably 10 to 15 cents. It could be called a very active market at steady prices at last weeks advance. There were only a few bulls at the yards, there being a very good demand and prices were steady to 25c higher.

With nearly 5000 head of porkers on the market, and a very good demand, another advance of 10 cents was made. The top was $10.50, which was paid for several loads of prime heavies. One load of prime lights brought $10.40.

Sheep prices continued their upward climb when another 25 cents advance was made on east-of-the-mountain lambs, one choice load bringing $11.25 with another at $11. Valley lambs brought $10.75, with fair to good valley lambs at $10.50.

IT IS SERIOUS

Some People Fail to Realize the Seriousness of a Bad Back

The constant aching of a bad back, the weariness, the tired feeling, the pains and aches of kidney ills. May result seriously if neglected. Dangerous urinary troubles often follow.

An Oregon City citizen shows you what to do.

Mrs. A. Reddaway, 116 S. Center St., Oregon City, says: "My back ached most all the time. It was so weak and sore that when I got down to do anything it was all I could do to straighten up. Sharp catches shot through my kidneys and for a minute I could hardly move, as they were so severe. My kidneys also acted too freely. I felt tired all the time and could hardly drag myself around. After I had been taking Doan's Kidney Pills a while, my back felt stronger and my kidneys acted more regularly."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Reddaway had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
