SCHUEBEL HOLDS UNLAWFUL PLACE

such an attempt will not be tolerated by the voters, and it thinks, further, that the council is going against the wishes of the majority of voters in employing other legal talent than the one man properly elected.

The Courier believes that the agreement with Mr. Schuebel is not legal and that his salary cannot be legally paid from the city treasury. If the councilmen must have other services than those of Mr. Story the councilmen should be made to pay for them personally over any amount stipulated in the charter.

Had Mr. Schuebel been elected to be "city attorney" we wonder would the council have found it necessary to hire additional legal talent? It is not at all likely that there would have been any need to have had two lawyers in such a case. It seems to be entirely a desire to retain Mr. Schuebel upon the municipal pay roll that has prompted the council in its action.

Many odd things are done in Oregon City's council chamber, but the most peculiar action the aldermen have yet attempted is to force the services of any but a duly elected attorney upon the citizens, who showed at the polls that they did not desire the services of any other than Mr. Story.

IF IT IS POSSIBLE THAT THE COUNCIL WILL BE SO BRAZEN AS TO ATTEMPT TO PAY MR. SCHUEBEL FOR HIS SERVICES THE COURIER WOULD BE GLAD TO BE INFORMED AS TO HOW SUCH ACTION CAN POSSIBLY BE MADE IN VIOLATION OF THE CLEAR STATEMENTS OF THE CITY CHARTER. WE BELIEVE THAT MR. SCHUEBEL CANNOT BE PAID LEGALLY FOR SERVICES WHICH ARE RENDERED AGAINST THE DIRECT WISHES OF THE VOTERS.

CLUBS WILL SEND TRAIN TO SALEM

City six miles east, and the organization immediately got down to work to bring the road back where it belongs. A committee comprising Dr. L. A. Morris, M. D. Latourette, T. W. Sullivan, C. Schuebel and E. E. Brodie was appointed to contest this plan. It is probable that a meeting with the state highway commission will be arranged by the committee and members of the commission may attend a club meeting here in the near future.

It is understood that Hermon A. Lewis, joint senator from Multnomah and Clackamas counties, will present a bill at the present legislative session proposing the division of the Oswego territory. A remonstrance is being circulated under the direction of the Commercial club and the Live Wires and will be sent to Salem. G. F. Johnson, retained by the Wires, is working on a report of the valuation of the part of the county that would join Multnomah. This report will form a basis for some of the plans of the civic organization.

Oregon an Oasis

Though Oregon will be bone dry in another month and although liquor is as scarce as the proverbial teeth of the hen, this sovereign state is designated an oasis by certain good republicans. The following telegram, attested by Ben W. Olcott, secretary of state, and signed by R. R. Butler, Willis I. Cottel, W. P. Keady, W. C. North and J. F. Wilson, Hughes electors, elected in November, was sent this week to Charles E. Hughes, defeated for election by President Wilson:

"In the democratic desert of the Pacific northwest there is one great oasis of republicanism—the state of Oregon. We, the undersigned electors, take pleasure in informing you that we have this day cast the vote of Oregon for you for president of the United States, and are much gratified to have this pleasure and privilege. We regret exceedingly that this vote is not effective in making you president."

Once again we suggest that you subscribe to the Courier and four standard magazines. $1.25.

WHITE IS IN BAD

Adjutant General Charged with Playing Politics in Guard

Developments arising at Salem this week indicate that former Adjutant General White is speeding back from the Mexican border for the purpose of prevailing upon the legislature to pass legislation thwarting legal proceedings that will be instituted to test his qualifications, as soon as Governor Withycombe reappoints him.

After White was appointed adjutant general by the governor, following the latter's inauguration, it was pointed out that White was not qualified for the office, but rather than precipitate a row in the national guard, he was allowed to hold it unmolested. Since then, however, White is alleged to have played so much politics in the guard that its friends feel that its interests demand his elimination, and a decision has been reached to bring quo warranto proceedings the moment the governor reappoints him.

Incidentally it is whispered that White's conduct at the border has aggravated the situation in the guard.

Despite the general protest in the guard against White, Governor Withycombe announced the other day that as soon as White's border duty is terminated he would re-appoint the former adjutant general. Friends of the guard had hoped that, after White left for the border as captain of Troop A, he would not attempt to regain his old position and, it is said, the governor has been repeatedly appealed to not to reappoint White.

BEGGARS, BEAUTY AND FLEAS

Naples is a Seaport Crowded With Amazing Contrasts.

Naples, aside from its amazing local beauty, is a dirty south Italian seaport, full of fleas and beggars, noisy as pandemonium day and night, without a really distinguished edifice and peopled by a conglomerate mass as strikingly beautiful physically as they are notoriously untrustworthy. From the storied heights that sweep in a magnificent amphitheater around the brilliant bay the old city straggles downward in a picturesque huddle of densely packed houses and other buildings, tortuous streets full of color and bubbling with the nervous activity of the south, black canyons of stone stairs, slippery with damp and dirt, across which its teeming houses gossip and quarrel in neighborly wise.

Nowhere are fisher folk more picturesque in habit and costume. Nowhere is there so salty a dialect, spiced with such myriad quaint and startling phrases and exclamations. Bare and brown of leg, dressed in ragged, parti-colored motley, a stout canvas band about each sinewy body for hauling in the net without cutting the hands to pieces, they bring ashore their shimmering silver quarry right along the widest, finest promenade in the city—the handsome Via Caracciolo.

Across that broad street the charming Villa Nazionale—not a house, but a public park, wholly conventional in design—contains an aquarium which may fairly be considered the most remarkable in the world for both the variety and interest of its fluky and monstrous exhibits and the thoroughness of its scientific work. To it many of the great universities contribute annually for the privilege of sending special investigators in zoology.

The commercial activity of this largest city and second seaport of Italy clings closely about the skirts of the enormous royal palace—800 feet long on the bay side and ninety-five feet high—and the naval basin and dockyard. Every smell and sound of a thriving seaport may be smelled and heard, multiplied generously, every flag seen on the ships at anchor near the stone wharves.—A. S. Riggs in National Geographic Magazine.

BEN BUTLER'S BLUFF.

It Was Well Worked and Completely Fooled General Bingham.

General John A. Bingham was a member of the military tribunal that tried Mrs. Surraat and the Lincoln assassination conspirators.

After the trial in the subsequent debates in the house General B. F. Butler frequently charged that the commission had arrived at an unjust verdict and had convicted an innocent woman. In a memorable debate he boldly proclaimed that if the contents of a diary which had been found on the dead body of J. Wilkes Booth were ever made public it would disclose the fact that it contained the proof of Mrs. Surraat's innocence, which proof had been infamously suppressed by the commission.

When General Bingham made a movement as though he would reveal such an accusation Butler dramatically drew a memorandum book from his breast pocket and held it aloft, but did not utter a word. Bingham naturally supposed that Butler had a copy of a diary such as he had spoken of. As a matter of fact the book contained nothing but blank leaves. General Butler was just bluffing.

The diary was in possession of Secretary Stanton, but President Johnson finally demanded it. It was an interesting book, but it threw no light upon the great conspiracy.

Similar allegations are made by John J. Seely against Florence E. Seely. The couple was married at McMinnville, Ore., February 14, 1909, and the wife left the home, according to the complaint, on April 15, 1915.
