

EBY RE-ELECTED CLUB PRESIDENT

$1,500 PUBLICITY FUND IS SECURED BY LOCAL COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATION

REVIEWS WORK OF THE YEAR

Hedges, Morris, Brodie Are Again Members of Board of Club Governors

O. D. Eby, Oregon City attorney, was re-elected president of the Commercial club at the meeting of that organization on Saturday evening. Dr. L. A. Morris, Joseph E. Hedges and E. E. Brodie were re-elected as members of the board of governors. The feature of the meeting was the report covering the year's work, and outlining the activities for the coming year, read by President Eby. The report shows a cash balance in club funds of $480.62, after paying $2608.97 to carry on Commercial club work during the year.

The $1,500 publicity fund, to be used in the publication of general information and for carrying on all work of the club, including some new and highly important undertakings, has been raised by the club, according to President Eby's report. The expenditure of the fund will rest with those contributing to it, and to get the sentiment of these business men a meeting will be called at an early date.

In his annual report President Eby said in part:

"During the year your board of governors has endeavored to work in co-operation with the county court of Clackamas county, and with the farming communities in an endeavor to bring about a permanent system of road construction and in this connection have co-operated with the Portland Automobile club and other progressive clubs and organizations to comprehend the road situation and to take advantage of modern thought and experiment in bringing the system of good permanent roads, which it is evident to all thinking persons is near at hand, and your committees are now engaged in an earnest effort to establish the permanent location of the Pacific highway on the east side of the river from Salem to Oregon City and then to Portland on the west side through Oswego, and through the aid of our county court and our state highway commission, both largely assisted by federal aid, it is hoped that within the near future a permanent hard surface road will be constructed over this route. In connection with this permit me to say, that our club has co-operated with the county court in securing two additional mills for permanent road work this year.

"As president of your club, it affords me pleasure to report to you that arrangements have just been completed whereby the publicity committee of our club have again secured the co-operation of our business people with contributions with which to carry on the work for the coming year, and that more than $1500 has been subscribed for this purpose, thus securing a more active program of publicity and in connection therewith a greater opportunity for co-operation with our neighboring counties and cities.

"Within the last ten days matters of local interest to us have transpired in rapid succession and among these things I mention the following:

"Last week a bill was introduced in congress by Representative Hawley of this district appropriating the sum of $80,000 for the purpose of deepening the government locks at our falls, and considering the fact that the dredging of the lower river has brought about the condition requiring this deepening, it seems impossible that such appropriation should not be made.

"Only yesterday the bill appropriating $70,000 by our national congress for a public building at Oregon City passed the house and we are informed that it will encounter little difficulty in the senate, and it seems that our long continued effort for a public building will at last be crowned with success.

"At our present session of the Oregon legislature an effort is being made to annex Oswego, including 13 sections of land, to Multnomah county, and another effort is being made by certain citizens of Estacada to form Cascade county out of the eastern portion of Clackamas county.

"Our club has stood behind the organized effort to oppose these measures, and on the 15th inst. a special train with about 75 citizens of Oregon City and Clackamas county was taken to Salem, where a public hearing before the proper committee was had.

"Taking the situation as a whole we feel that our club and our city and county should face the future with optimism. As shown, there has been a substantial growth of our business industries which has brought about a corresponding growth and increased

OSWEGO'S SECESSION DEFEATED AT SALEM

DIMICK LEADS ATTACK AFTER VISIT OF LARGE DELEGATION FROM CLACKAMAS

That the visit to Salem last Thursday of a delegation of 75 Clackamas county people opposed to the secession of 13 square miles of territory in the northwestern corner of the county was successful would seem apparent from the fact that senate bill No. 29, introduced by Senator Hermon C. Lewis, has been defeated through an adverse report from the senate committee on counties.

Providing for the annexation of Oswego and 13 square miles of Clackamas county territory to Multnomah county, the Lewis bill was presented in the house and referred to the counties committee, comprising Senators Orton, Dimick and Lieneweber. Senators Dimick and Lieneweber caused the defeat of the bill by their majority report against it. Senator Orton, the third member of the committee, submitted a minority report favoring the bill and moved that his report be adopted in place of the majority report.

Senator Dimick took up the attack on the bill on the floor of the senate and lead arguments against its adoption for nearly an hour, during which time he presented a great mass of facts and figures as to why the bill should be defeated. The result was a vote of 25 to 3 against the bill.

NET FISHERMEN ARE IMPORTANT TO CITY

UNION DECIDES TO FIGHT FOR RIGHTS ON RIVER HERE. SENDS MEN TO SALEM

That the net fishermen who annually congregate for profit on the Willamette at Oregon City will fight to the last for the preservation of an industry that brings into the city each year from $30,000 to $50,000, became evident at a mass meeting at the Commercial club parlors on Monday evening when the net fishermen presented their case publicly.

The fishermen will appeal to the legislature to prevent, if possible, any change in the dead line for net men, unless it be put back close to the ladder, and they will not tolerate a compromise with sportsmen, it was decided at the meeting. In good seasons the net men make almost $50,000 from their fishing here, and still the fish died in great numbers because they cannot get over the ladder in the falls without bruising themselves.

There was little opposition Monday night to the desire of the net men to have the deadline put back close to the falls, as the general opinion was that they should be allowed to profit from the fish that would die by the thousands if they were not taken from the river. Anglers, it was said, could not relieve this situation.

The organized fishermen will present their case to the state legislature through the following committee, appointed Monday by Charles Gates, chairman of the meeting: Joseph E. Hedges, ex-senator, and J. T. McEwen, of the Commercial club, and T. R. Haines, Charles Gates and A. Netherline, of the Fishermen's union.

Mr. Hedges, M. A. Magone, H. L. Kelley and Thomas Myers were among the speakers at the meeting.

Of course, the net fishermen haven't all the best of it, and before their desires are realized they may have a warm fight on hand. The following resolution has already been signed by the men whose names appear upon it:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Oregon City and Clackamas county, wish to express ourselves as against net fishing in the waters of the Willamette river south of the Clackamas river and are heartily in favor of the Gill bill closing the Willamette river to net fishing from a point 1 1/2 miles south of the Oswego bridge to the falls. BLAST FURNACES ARE DISMANTLED

INDUSTRY FAILS TO PAY DIVIDENDS. WILL BE SOLD AS JUNK

OSWEGO PLANT WAS PIONEER

Great Fortunes Foreseen by Those Who Erected Plant and Mined Iron 50 Years Ago

The faded dream of another day—the Spanish castle that was really built, but which failed to hold the riches that had been foreseen by the builders, is being torn down at Oswego. And with the process goes one of Clackamas county's landmarks and what promised to be one of the most successful enterprises in the state. The Oregon Iron & Steel Co., is dismantling its blast furnaces and will sell the metal as junk in the hope of regaining a little of the fortune put into the undertaking.

It was here, on August 24, 1867, that the first pig iron in the United States west of the Rocky mountains was made, and it came from ore mined two miles west of the present town of Oswego, seven miles south of the business center of Portland.

There were many effervescing hearts around the modest hamlet of Oswego at that time. Wonderful things were expected by the people as a result of the new venture. There were visions of an enormous payroll. There were others of great business structures, beautiful homes, splendid churches, palatial theatres and all the concomitants of a live metropolis.

There were those expecting that location to become the heart of Portland. It would require substantial banking houses to handle the finances of the industries which would spring up. There would be rolling mills adjacent to the river. There would come carwheel foundries, and machine shops would help consume the product of the furnaces. Carshops would supply railroads with their rolling stock, and steamships would receive their equipment of machinery from Oswego. A Pittsburgh on a modest scale was to spring up and flourish, because there would be a demand for its manufactures.

But, alas, the Mesaba Iron range of Minnesota was discovered. There was a valley there with iron ore on one side which could be mined with a steam shovel. On the opposite side coal mines were found, and alongside these limestone sufficient to last the workers 1000 years! The Oswego ore was low grade and solid as a rock. Fir wood must be converted into charcoal to heat the furnaces, and lime be brought from an island of Puget sound. All this cost money, and the result was that pig iron from the Mesaba mines could be laid down in Portland cheaper than it could be produced at the Oswego plant, and for this reason the industry proved a financial failure.

Though pig iron was produced in 1867, the company was not incorporated until 1888. At that time the project was reorganized by the Ladd family and the late Simeon G. Reed, and is now the property of the Ladd estate, Reed college and one or two other small interests.

For a time the feasibility of shipping ore from iron deposits of considerable magnitude in Mexico, owned by the company, has been under consideration, but the idea has apparently been abandoned. Again it has been claimed that rich ore from Chile could be laid down here at a small figure and the plant might be utilized in smelting it. Serious consideration was given to this aspect of the situation, but this, too, according to the judgment of the owners, would not prove profitable. Then the present extremely high price of iron looming up as it does before the eyes of the management, doubtless has had an influence in determining the destruction of the plant, the cost of which has been upward of $300,000.

"There are hundreds of tons of iron and steel up there which may be recovered," says A. S. Patulo, secretary and general superintendent. "Just how many we do not know, but there is an immense quantity. The capacity of the works is 125 tons each 24 hours, and its magnitude may be judged from that. Its smokestack, 10 feet in diameter, is 160 feet high, and there is an 800 horsepower engine in good condition. The smokestack and other parts of the outfit will be available in the construction of drums, and with present prices of such material this is to be considered an auspicious time in which to market it."

Left until the iron and steel market returned to normal, it is not likely that it would pay to dismantle the works, but now that the scrap can be sold for probably $20 to $40 a ton, the receipts will help in a modest way to make good losses of former times.

The Vulcan Welding company will have charge of the work of the wrecking. Its oxy-acetylene tanks will be moved up the river, and the steel

MANY SCHOOLS JOIN IN PLANS OF LEAGUE

PRIZES OFFERED IN CONTESTS. STORY WRITING MORE POPULAR THAN ATHLETICS

OSWEGO PLANT WAS PIONEER

Forty-three schools have joined the new Clackamas School league, organized under the direction of Brenton Vedder, county school supervisor, and Superintendent J. E. Calavan. The purpose of the league, as explained by Mr. Vedder, is the encouragement of such work as debating, oratorical and declamatory contests, short story and essay writing and athletics, and the plans include inter-school contests throughout the county. In addition to the 43 grade schools which have become members of the league, there are seven high schools, including those at Oregon City, Milwaukie, Molalla, New Colton, Canby, Willamette and Estacada.

Mr. Vedder has outlined rules for the contests in the several divisions of endeavor which will be followed by the members of the league, and while some of the schools have entered only one or two of the six divisions, there is to be a great deal of activity in all the branches. The same rules for a given branch of the work will apply to both grammar and high schools.

An odd feature of the participation in the league is that the majority of them have evidenced greater interest in short story writing than in any other of the branches outlined. Of the entire number of schools only six have failed to enter the short story writing branch.

While athletics might appear to be a greater attraction to the average school pupil, it is a fact that less than half of the 50 schools have entered this branch. This is partly explained by the fact that some of the schools must limit their athletic activity and make it decidedly local. All the high schools have entered the athletic division. It is proposed to organize grammar and high school baseball leagues for inter-school contests.

The essay writing has had an incentive added through the cash prizes posted by A. King Wilson, mayor of Oswego, and through other prizes, such as cups and pennants, that may be given. For essays on "Clackamas County Wagon Roads, Past, Present and Future," the following cash prizes have been posted: $5 for the best essay by a grammar school student; for the second, $4; third, $3; fourth, $2; fifth, $1. For the best essay by a high school student, $4; second, $3; third, $2; fourth $1.

The high schools which have taken membership in the league are entered generally into the several divisions, with athletics unanimous. Only one has failed to enter short story writing, essay writing and declamatory contests. Oratory has attracted only three high schools, while four have entered debating.

Grammar schools in the following communities have taken membership in the league: Milwaukie, Canemah, Meadowbrook, Mundorf, Mackeburg, Oak Lawn, Maple Lane, Concord, Stone, Bolton, West Linn, Molalla, Liberal, Marks Prairie, Needy, Mt. Pleasant, Harmony, Douglas Ridge, Bee Hill, Barclay, Eastham, Brown's Trace, Dryland, Damascus, Schuebel, Union Hall, Canby, Porter, Ninety-one, Oak Grove, Willamette, Estacada, Twilight, Lone Elder, Jennings Lodge, Gladstone, Wichita, Ardenwald, Echo Dell, Cottrell, Oswego and Garfield.

BLOCK FOUND IN PIPE

Mystery Added by Presence of Foreign Matter in Water System

Superintendent F. McCausland of the Oregon City water system found a four by eight inch block of wood in the water main at the south end of Main street early yesterday when he searched for a reason why a valve at the pumping plant would not work. The water was shut off at another stop and the valve taken to pieces. Lately several different obstructions have been taken from the water pipes of the main system and from the elevator, and the present case adds deeper mystery in the minds of members of the board, who are unable to account for the presence of foreign matter.

THE DAYS OF '49

"The Days of Forty-nine," will be passed in review at the Elks temple here next Wednesday evening by Oregon City lodge of Elks. A typical early day mining camp will be reproduced with all the thunder and all the gaiety of the real thing. The committee in charge includes Dr. C. Mount, H. L. Kelly, W. R. Logus, R. C. Parker, James Petty, L. Rucovich, H. W. Strebig, H. F. Tschirgi, S. L. Stevens, C. U. Wilson, C. W. Pope, J. J. Tobin, Gilbert L. Hedges and L. McGaghuey.

Smokestack will be cut into such pieces as will make them useful for tank construction. By the processes employed many other parts can be rendered profitable in making other parts and pieces of machinery.

TRAIN TO SALEM MAY CARRY 100

CASCADE COUNTY OPPOSITION TO MEET WITH COMMITTEE AT SALEM TONIGHT

STEPHENS BILL PRESENTED

Salaries and Boundaries Fixed and Estacada Named as Cascade County Seat

One hundred passengers have been guaranteed by the Live Wires for a special train to Salem at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when a delegation from all parts of Clackamas county will meet with the house counties committee to oppose the creating of Cascade county. The bill for the division has been presented in the house and there is reported to be a strong lobby in its favor from the Estacada district.

The special train arranged for at the meeting of the Live Wires Tuesday will leave Oregon City at 2 o'clock, returning as soon as the meeting with the committee is closed. All persons interested in opposing the division in any part of the county have been asked to accompany the delegation. Arrangements have been made so that passengers may, at a reduced fare, take any train during the day, providing they return on the special. Canby, Eagle Creek, Molalla, Springfield and other communities are forming parties for the trip.

Main Trunk Schuebel Tuesday appointed O. D. Eby, B. T. McBain and Theodore Osmund as members of a committee to attend the meeting of the Progressive Business Men's club at Portland to take up with them the reasons for local opposition to the Barrett road bill that has been presented at Salem.

The Stephens bill (house bill No. 165) was introduced on last Friday, providing for the division of Clackamas county and creating Cascade county. It defines the boundaries of the new county by a line running one mile east of upper Colton, one mile east of the Highland school house and one mile west and one mile north of Barton. The population of the proposed county is estimated in the bill at 5500, although figures compiled from the records made the figure almost 1000 less, and Estacada is designated as the "temporary" county seat. The settlement of the county seat question would be left to the voters at the next regular election.

The Stephens bill provides that Cascade county shall be in the 16th representative district, the 12th senatorial district and the 5th judicial district, with court terms defined as the third Monday in March and the first Monday in October. County records are to be delivered to the proposed new county within 30 days after the bill becomes a law.

Salaries of Cascade county officers, as set down in the Stephens bill, are: County judge, $600; county clerk and recorder, $1000; deputies, $600; sheriff, $1000; deputies, $800; county assessor, $900; deputy, $400; county treasurer, $250; coroner, to be also county physician and health officer, $750; surveyor, $5 for each day actually employed; county commissioners, $3 a day and 10 cents mileage; district attorney for 1917 and 1918, $900, and thereafter, unless changed by law, $600.

FARE MAY BE LESS

Crandall Bill Would Reduce Railroad Fare in Long Haul

If house bill No. 205, introduced by Representative Crandall of Malheur Tuesday morning, becomes a law, Oregon will have a maximum fare of 2 1/2 cents on all of its steam roads in hauls of more than five miles and a 3-cent fare for shorter hauls.

The bill is fashioned along the lines of the 3-cent fare law instituted in Cleveland a few years ago by the late Tom Johnson. It provides that the law shall apply to all railroad companies with an earning capacity of $1000 or more and for those with a less earning capacity, 3 1/2 cents shall take the place of the original rate. Children under 12 years of age will be carried at half fare.

A clause in the act makes it impossible for streetcars to charge more than 10 cents fare and the minimum charge is fixed at 5 cents. For a violation of the act a fine of from $1000 to $5000 is provided.

Saturday's Divorces

Rose Hackett seeks a divorce from A. R. Hackett in the complaint she filed here Saturday. She alleges cruelty, and asks for the custody of a son, Richard and Edward, 3 years old. They were married in Seattle on January 20, 1913.

Frank E. Cross has filed suit for divorce from Bessie Cross, whom he married at Portland, December 23, 1913. Judge Campbell on Saturday signed a divorce decree separating Joseph J. and Marie Spiess.

BUILDINGS BILL IS APPROVED BY HOUSE

W. C. HAWLEY WIRES NEWS THAT HAS BEEN EXPECTED HERE FOR SEVEN YEARS

STEPHENS BILL PRESENTED

"The public building appropriation bill, including $70,000 for the construction of the new federal building in Oregon City, has passed the house."

This was the information in a telegram received on Saturday by the Live Wire committee in charge of the proposed federal building plans, from W. C. Hawley, representative in congress. A short time ago the Live Wires sent to Mr. Hawley petitions bearing the names of practically all local business men, asking to show the needs of the community in the way of better postoffice facilities, and the message from Congressman Hawley is the answer.

It is probable that no trouble will arise now and that the appropriation bill will pass the senate, insuring the early construction of the building here. Members of the Live Wire committee believe the matter is settled.

For seven years Oregon City has been trying to secure federal aid for the postoffice building here, and not until this year have hopes been high. The Live Wires, the Commercial club, Postmaster J. J. Cooke and other agencies have co-operated to insure the proposed building, with the result indicated by Mr. Hawley's message. B. T. McBain is chairman of the Live Wire committee. The present post-office is in a building built for the purpose by the Weinhard estate and leased to the government for a period of five years. It has long been considered inadequate and the work of the office overflows it greatly.

STORY AND SCHUEBEL MAY ARGUE TANGLES

George L. Story, elected city attorney at the municipal election in December, and whose office has been declared that of city prosecutor by the council, promises to show how and why he is both city attorney and city prosecutor at the regular council meeting in February. Mr. Story's office is contested by the council through the appointment of C. Schuebel, formerly the city's legal adviser, to the position of city attorney. It is probable, Mr. Schuebel says, that he will be present to argue the matter with Mr. Story if necessary. Mr. Story, according to the interpretation of several councilmen, is entitled to a wage and to all the duties of the city attorneyship. Mr. Schuebel, on the other hand, claims Mr. Story is only entitled to fees. Mr. Schuebel has been retained at a salary of $60 a month and H. M. Templeton, chairman of the finance committee of the council, has announced that he will refuse to approve a warrant for the payment of the wage.

YOUTH LOSES MIND

Music Teacher Wanders to Oregon City to Escape Pursuers

Suffering under a mental strain, Harry L. Morse, son of Henry Pratt Morse, a prominent Milwaukie, Wis., attorney, wandered into Oregon City Saturday from Portland. The young man has had a nervous breakdown, physicians say, and will probably recover his mental balance. His sister, Miss Marian Esther Morse of Seattle, arrived here late Saturday night, and the father left Milwaukie immediately upon being advised of his son's condition.

Young Morse, it is said, has been teaching music at Drain, Douglas county, and left there to spend the Christmas holidays in Seattle. He left there on January 8, his sister says, and has suffered the loss of mind since then. There has been a noticeable improvement in his condition since Morse walked into District Attorney Gilbert L. Hedges' office Saturday and asked for an investigation of a school land frauds in Douglas county. He spent all of Saturday in writing notes of instruction to imaginary detectives and in warding off his own imaginary pursuers. On Sunday he returned to Seattle with his sister and Mr. Trembath from the sheriff's office.

Banquet Tonight

A banquet and entertainment program at which the "blues" of the United Artists will be hosts to the "reds," who were winners in a recent membership contest, will be held at the lodge rooms tonight.

5 DEPUTIES NAMED

County Assessor W. W. Everhart has announced the selection of 5 field deputies of 13 who must be appointed for the year. Those named Tuesday are L. M. Davis, Beaver Creek; W. B. Barksdale, Oak Grove; W. H. Holder, Estacada; Julius Paulsen, George, and William Morand, Boring. The deputies will begin the annual reapportionment about April 1.

BETTER HIGHWAY BILL PRESENTED

LAURGAARD PROPOSAL WOULD PUT MAIN VALLEY ROAD THROUGH OREGON CITY

MAY CHANGE HIGHWAY CODE

New Measure Considered Best Yet Offered for Legislation. Is Approved Here

A substitute road bill which would take the place of that presented at Salem last week by Representative Barrett was offered on Monday by Representative Laurgaard of Multnomah county. The proposed measure would appear to answer all the requests of Clackamas county by including practically what has been asked, and, on the face of it, there is far greater justice in the Laurgaard bill than in the one first presented. Mr. Laurgaard would revise most of the highway code of the state, in addition to designating the western Oregon state aid road as one running through Oregon City to Salem.

Three highway commissioners to serve without pay, and the selection of a practical road-building engineer as the ex-officio chairman of the commission are provided by Representative Laurgaard's house bill No. 191. It is believed in Salem to be the best of the several highway codes to be submitted.

If the bill is passed it means the elimination of State Engineer Lewis and the defeat of the Claude McCulloch highway commission bill.

Each congressional district is to be represented on the contemplated commission by one commissioner who will serve a six-year term. The bill specifies that the state engineer shall have practical training in road building as well as technical knowledge. He will receive a salary of $6000 a year.

The primary highways of the state are specified as follows:

State highway No. 1—From the city of Portland in an easterly direction direct to the California line, passing through Oregon City, Salem, Albany, Eugene, Roseburg, Grants Pass, Medford and Ashland.

State highway No. 2—From the city of Portland in an easterly direction to Ontario, Ore., passing through Hood River, The Dalles, Pendleton and Baker.

city of Portland in a northwesterly direction to Seaside, passing through St. Helens and Astoria. Secondary highways are still to be designated.

On work involving an expenditure of less than $2000 the question of spending the money will be left to the discretion of the commission.

Under the provisions of the act, the state engineer may be called upon in an advisory capacity by the county courts of the state. It is left to the judgment of the commission as to the use of convicts in the construction of roads, and should the commission demand convict labor, it is mandatory with the governor to provide such labor as the commission may call for.

$4000 CHECK RECEIVED

County's Share of Automobile Fees Comes to Treasurer M. E. Dunn

County Treasurer M. E. Dunn has received a voucher for $4000.08 from Secretary of State Ben W. Olcott covering Clackamas county's share of the motor vehicle and chauffeur registration fees for the past year.

The receipts to the state government from Clackamas county amounted last year to $4875, and when the cost of license plates, chauffeur badges, postage and incidentals was deducted there remained the amount of the check received by Treasurer Dunn. The total receipts from licenses and registrations during the year were $145,232, while the entire cost of producing plates, badges and incidentals was $26,244.55, leaving a total of $119,987.45 to be distributed to the counties.

It is interesting to note, in connection with the report on the automobile department under Secretary Olcott, that Clackamas county receives more than any other county but five. Only Multnomah, Jackson, Umatilla, Lane and Marion receive a greater return, Multnomah, of course, being the greater benefactor. Clackamas pays more into the state automobile department than any but these five counties.

The average fee collected for all transactions by the state department is $3.17, while the average fee for the registration of automobiles is $3.57.

$1000 Judgment Granted

T. J. Concannon and Josiah Welch were Saturday given a judgment against Archie L. and Florence W. Watt in the sum of $1000, with interest at 8 per cent. The judgment is secured by a first lien to property in the J. D. Garrett donation land claim. The suits of John Vigildis against H. H. Johnson and W. W. Walker against C. M. Pierson were dismissed.
