About the State

Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

At a meeting of the directors of the Gresham Fruitgrowers' association last week Theodore Brugger was elected president; D. E. Towle, vice-president; James Elkington, secretary-treasurer, and Mr. Towle, manager. Work toward the task of making the cannery a success next season is now on in full swing and a number of committees are busy securing new stock for the cannery and making plans for its rebuilding at as early a date as is possible. New and improved machinery of all the needed kinds will be put into use and it is expected that besides canning fruit the cannery will be able to can vegetables, chief of which will be beans and corn.

At a meeting called by J. H. Beeman at his residence at Gold Hill 12 representative farmers formed the Gold Hill Farm Loan association with a capital stock of $15,000, fully subscribed. The charter will remain open until January 25 for other farmers to join the association. Those elected officers were: I. T. Galliger, president; C. E. Blackington, S. A. Dusenberry, J. H. Drake and J. L. Wyland, directors, and Fred Guy, secretary-treasurer.

County Engineer M. B. Germond and Engineer Floyd Fear, of Douglas county, have returned from Myrtle Creek and Canyonville, where they have been surveying the new location for the Pacific highway. The road at Myrtle Creek hill and Thomas Creek hill, the latter being at Canyonville, will be improved so as to eliminate the grades and dangerous curves now found at those points.

Oregon is better suited to the cultivation of flax than any other state in the union, in the opinion of E. J. Hansett, manager of the Oregon Flax Fiber company of Turner. Mr. Hansett, who was born in Belgium, believes that the climate here is as favorable for flax growing as that of his native country and that flax culture will supplant the hop industry in this state. The days of experimentation have passed and success is now certain.

The last heavy rains caused a large slide of earth, rock and trees to come down the mountain into the county road one mile west of Niagara, completely blocking the road to travel. Supervisor Conrad Miller of that place had a force of seven men and two teams at work clearing the debris away, and expected to complete the work by the end of the week.

By a vote of 17 for to eight against the farmers of the Gold Hill and Foothills Creek irrigation district. This Foothills Creek districts created the Gold Hill Irrigation district. This vote gives the required 60 per cent of the votes cast. The land coming into the district embraces about 1300 acres lying along the south side of Rogue river, in what is known as the Riverside colony and Foothills Creek district.

While the movement is being opposed by the Commercial club, the orchardists of the different Hood River valley communities are evidencing a desire for the organization of more than one Federal Rural Credit Loan association for the community. This trend was brought out at a meeting when the first association of ranchers organized. All the officers of the new association were chosen from the west side. It was declared that the work of assessing the valuation of farm land would be facilitated by smaller associations, where the boards making the valuations would be better versed in the character of soil.

During the year 1916, according to figures submitted by L. Rosasco, manager of the Columbia River Canning and Produce company, the company disbursed more than $25,000. The amount paid the farmers for their produce was $18,417.31, and the outlay for labor during the canning season was $7085.50.

Construction of that portion of the proposed Oregon, California & Eastern railway between Bend and Klamath Falls will be accomplished this year if Portland does half as well proportionately as has Klamath Falls, according to Robert Strahorn, projector of this pioneering railway line for developing the great interior country east of the Cascades.

Ground was broken last week for an addition, 225 feet long, to the Newberg cannery. This will make a total length of building 412 feet with a width of 63 feet. Extensive additions to the equipment are to be made for this season's work and the fruit and vegetable growers are pleased with the prospects for an increased market at home for their products. President Rupert of the cannery company is desirous of having the growing of sweet corn become an important industry. He says the corn grown in the Newberg vicinity is superior to that of the middle west and fully equal to the famous Maine product.

"Farmer" Smith, agriculturist for the O. W. R. & N., is in The Dalles appraising more than 8000 acres of land which is listed with Manager J. W. Brewer of The Dalles Chamber of Commerce in the Union Pacific colonization scheme. "Farmer" Smith, with his assistants, expects to place accurate valuations on these lands and, with detailed descriptions, the lists will be sent to eastern people who wish to come west to farm. The Dalles expects to reap beneficial results from the railroad company's scheme, inasmuch as this point has been selected by the company as an experimental point in the northwest. The Union Pacific system's immigration department was organized a few months ago and The Dalles will be used to experiment on the department hoping to demonstrate big results from its effort to bring
