

KODAK

Get out in the open with a

KODAK

There's healthy recreation and lots of enjoyment in making pictures of all the pleasures which the summer holds for you. And with a Kodak you can make such pictures with practically no effort.

We carry everything that's worth while in photography, and will be glad to have you step into our store, without any obligation to buy, and let us show you how easy, and inexpensive too, amateur photography can be.

For prompt handling and the best possible results from every film, try our developing and printing dept.

Burmeister & Andresen

Oregon City Jewelers Suspension Bridge Cor.

COUNTY AND CITY LOCALS

Rev. E. A. Smith will preach at Highlar Sunday August first at 11 a. m., and at Alberta at 3 p. m., completing the day at Henri by preaching at 8 p. m.

Rev. George Nelson Edwards returned last week from a brief vacation at Seabeach, Washington.

Frank P. Nelson, a Gladstone contractor, was stricken ill Sunday while on an outing near Sandy. He was hurried to his home, where he is recovering.

William Shannon and A. Dillman, who have been prospecting in California, returned to Oregon City last week. They expect to leave for a claim which they have leased near Mt. Lassen shortly.

Mrs. C. A. Nash returned to the county seat early this week after a visit with friends in Eugene.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Waldron, who have been visiting in Newburg, returned to their home in the county seat recently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Huntley have returned to their home in the county seat after a pleasant and extended visit at the California expositions.

Fred and Otto Hogg, of Parkplace, spent the week-end at Wilhoit.

Martin Lennartz, a Sandy rancher, spent the fore part of the week in the county seat.

Miss Esther Stout, of Clarks, was married to Otto H. Elmer in the county seat Saturday, the Rev. T. B. Ford performing the ceremony.

The Rev. T. B. Ford left the county seat Monday for Eugene, where he spent several days at an interdenominational church conference.

Willamette Falls camp, Woodmen of the World, installed new officers Saturday night. Those honored were: Past consul, M. R. Snidow; consul, Frank Oliver; advisor, C. A. Anderson.

drug; escort, A. R. Griffin; sentry, M. R. Cooper; manager, M. D. Phillips, and W. D. Janin; musician, musician, I. L. Kellogg.

Miss Mary Adele Case, a singer of more than local repute, will appear as soloist at the Methodist church, Oregon City, next Sunday.

Mrs. James McFarlane, a sister of ex-County Treasurer Tufts, is visiting friends in the county seat, and will leave for her home in Powell River the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Greaves, who have been house guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Loder, left early in the week for their home in Peoria, Ill.

J. P. Lovett and family, of the county seat, are entertaining for the summer Miss Lucile Farrington, of New York.

T. L. Lagar, a former resident of the county, was in town the latter part of last week, renewing old friendships.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gadke, of the county seat, spent the week-end at Colton with Joseph Schaefer.

NEWS FROM AFAR

Easterners Hear about Oregon, but They Don't Hear All

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, published at Springfield, Ohio, an Oregon contributor describes in part as follows the strange disease that has sprung up among animals in the west:

"Our locality is afflicted with a mysterious disease that effects all kinds of animals. Several experts have examined the brains of dogs and coyotes that have died with the disease, and pronounced it hydrophobia."

"The disease has now spread into all the counties of eastern Oregon. Besides dogs and coyotes, pigs, sheep, cows and horses are affected with the same disease."

"As soon as animals become affected they look wild and want to travel. Hogs jump up off the ground squealing and biting. Some of the animals are also affected in their backs, others in their legs."

"A number of farmers have lost as high as ten head of stock. Nearly all the dogs and coyotes in the localities first affected have died from the effects of the disease."

"So grave is the situation that the State has placed a bounty of $300 on coyotes in an effort to exterminate them, and a fine of $100 is imposed on any owner whose dog is found at large without being muzzled."

Sure and correct—as far as it goes. But the last paragraph skips some of the details. The fine of $100 for unmuzzled dogs is to be found in the law, all right—but has anybody heard of a dog-owner in Oregon being fined? Look about you on the road next time you travel, and see how many muzzles you can discover—and then ask if anybody in the neighborhood has been fined for not keeping the law.

Oregon laws read well—but somehow they don't do much more.

MOLALLA HAS WOE

Editor of "Pioneer" Seems Peeved Over Baseball Results

Last week's issue of the Molalla Pioneer devotes considerable space to bewailing the fact that the Oregon City Moose won the Chautauqua baseball championship, and intimates that seven members of the Moose team were semi-professional players from Portland.

If the Oregon City Moose had been the only team that used semiprofessionals in the Chautauqua season's games, the kick might come in good standing from Molalla—but as the entire series was a good deal of a contest between the Piedmont Maroons, the Sellwoods and the Monarchs, we can't see that the Molalla fans have very much kick coming. And at that the semi-pro put up about as ragged a variety of baseball as it has been our fate to see for many a blue moon.

It would have been nicer if the teams in the Chautauqua series had been forced exclusively of home talent. It would have added interest to the games, and would have brought out more "rooters." There are indications that next year such will be the case. But the teams that played this year were all "strengthened," and it ill becomes Molalla to make any strenuous kick. And for one thing, the teams that did play put up a game every day that playing was possible—so did their share towards entertaining the Chautauques. Some of the contests were staged in driving rain, and most of them were played in mud; so it is hard to see just where there should be any violent kick from any of the losers.

ALBRIGHT LAKE GOING

Engelbrecht and Boguslaski Drain Swamp Into Hidden Stream

Tapping a subterranean stream that flows under "Albright lake," by which name the swamp lying north of the city limits is known, L. H. Boguslaski and Gustave Engelbrecht have succeeded in lowering the level of the pool some six feet, and expect before the end of the year to banish all the water and to have the old swamp planted to crops. They have so far redeemed considerable acreage formerly covered by the water, and soon will harvest hay therefrom.

Inspiration for this project was furnished by former City Councilman F. J. Stooze, who some years ago had the city drill for drinking water near the lake. At that time the subterranean flow was discovered, but the water was not regarded as suitable for drinking purposes by many aside from Mr. Stooze. At that time Mr. Stooze's efforts to get water so near the borders of the morass were referred to by Councilman Albright as "digging a muskrat hole in a swamp."

The lake is underlaid by a layer of hardpan, and beneath this is a natural drainage course that empties into the Clackamas and Willamette rivers. By tapping this drainage, and letting the surface waters of the swamp run into it, the present developers of the property have reclaimed the swamp land.

WOOD WASTE VALUABLE

Federal Efforts to Bring About Economy Prove Successful

Since the inauguration of its wood waste exchange, on April 15 last, the Forest Service has been requested to list 147 mills and factories as having waste material for sale, while during the same time 76 other wood-using concerns have asked to be listed as desiring to purchase waste of a wide range of species in specified dimensions or as mill or factory run. The latter have been included in the list of "Opportunities to Sell Waste" which is sent monthly to concerns which have waste material for sale. This list is growing steadily, but the Forest Service is anxious to accelerate its rate of growth inasmuch as it comprises only about half as many buyers as there are sellers listed under "Opportunities to Buy Waste."

The Forest Service has just been notified by a large novelty manufacturing concern in New York City that the Wood Waste Exchange has enabled it to obtain its raw material at a considerable saving of money. This factory uses small, semi-finished blocks of dogwood which it makes in to patent spool holders. The factory's requirements were published under "Opportunities to Sell Waste" and a manufacturer of shuttle blocks promptly seized the opportunity to dispose of the pieces of dogwood which previously were discarded as waste in his factory.

R. L. Holman and T. P. Randall, Leading Undertakers, Fifth and Main St.; Telephones: Pacific 415-J; Home B-18.

THE ART OF LOVE

A Lecture on How to Secure a Husband

By F. A. MITCHEL

Mrs. Matilda Robbins, a widow of fifty, who had buried four husbands, announced that she would give private lectures in the parlor of her home to young ladies on how to get husbands. A lecture would be given every Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

On the first afternoon a numerous audience were gathered in the lecturer's parlor.

Mrs. Robbins spoke as follows:

Young ladies, you have doubtless derived your ideas as to woman's part in a courtship from novels, and that is the reason why you are not married. The heroine of a novel is usually so modest that she doesn't dare say her soul's her own. There's more accomplished in this world in other fields besides matrimony by assurance than modesty and more accomplished by management than by assurance.

The best way to teach is by example. Therefore I shall put this lecture in the form of a story. But it's a real story, not an invention. The heroine didn't sit round and look pretty. She was up and doing. That's what we must all be in this world if we want to get on. Do you suppose a young fellow who wants a position whereby to start a fortune sits round and waits for it? No, he goes out and hunts for it. And when he gets it does he modestly wait for somebody to tell him to do things? Not if he wants to succeed. He does everything without being told and before it's wanted. That's the part of a young fellow starting out to fix himself in the world, and you young ladies should act on the same principle.

Now for my story of the way one young lady secured a husband.

Her name was Jones, Sarah Jones, just plain Sarah Jones, not Maltravers or Montmorency, like the heroines of novels, or Gwendolyn or Jaquelin for a first name. A girl doesn't need a high sounding name to get a husband; she needs something that I'm going to tell you about. Sarah Jones the day she was eighteen sat down and did a job of thinking. She wasn't long about it, for she was an acting girl, and when she had got her thinking done she acted at once on her decision. That decision was that her place was in a home as a wife and the mother of children.

Sallie Jones didn't go at things blindly; she thought them out beforehand. She knew that she couldn't get married if restricted to the society of girls. So she joined a dancing class. She couldn't afford it, but she had to do it, and whatever has to be done is done if the party to do it is of the right stuff. She had her eye fixed on that dancing class, and she joined without knowing where the money to pay her way was to come from. There were twenty young men members and twenty-five girls.

Miss Jones realized that there is safety in numbers but for the man she was after, not for her. She didn't go fooling about among the twenty men. She picked out a steady young fellow and made up her mind to land him. His name was Abel Rogers. Nothing romantic about his name either. Rogers didn't have anything except what he was getting together himself, but he was frugal and a hard worker.

The first thing Sallie did was to let Abel Rogers understand that she liked him. She didn't pout when he danced with some other girl more than with her or look troubled if he didn't dance with her at all. She smiled on him when he came back after a lack of attention just as pleasantly as if he hadn't neglected her.

This sort of work has been called angling, and so it is. A skillful fisherman if a fish doesn't bite right off wouldn't think of trying to jerk the hook into its gills, and when it does bite he doesn't try to haul it out of the water all at once. Some fish can't be caught that way, but a many fish can be allowed to play itself out. So it is with a man. First get him on the hook, then play him.

We like those who like us, and Abel Rogers, being aware that Sallie liked him, was disposed to like her. There was nothing deceitful about this in Sallie. She really liked him or she wouldn't have tried to catch him. There is a difference in a girl showing a man that she likes him and showing him she wants him. Showing it would end uncertainty, and uncertainty is the line by which she must pull him in after getting the hook in his gills. Abel knew nothing about Sallie's feelings for him except that she liked him. She might have liked several other men and loved one other.

It wasn't long before Sallie found an opportunity to favor Abel above other men. He came one evening to the dancing class after an absence, having no partners engaged. Sallie turned down several names on her engagement card to give the dances to him. This was an excellent way of showing him her good will without indicating that she coveted his attention. Perhaps there are some among you who will not see the distinction I make here, but I assure you it is one of no little importance.

Abel felt not only that some return was due for this kindly act, but it gave him pleasure to make a return. He invited Sallie to go to drive with him.

COWS MAKE RECORDS

Profitable Yields Shown by County Stock Under Observation

Registered cows on official test, under the Clackamas County Cow Testing association, have shown up extremely well for the 30 days ending April 30, according to Neal C. Jamison, official tester. Seven cows gave an average yield of over 1000 pounds of milk and over 50 pounds of butterfat. Kadia F., a three-year old Jersey owned by N. H. Smith, him. That was the time before automobiles came. I am not in favor of autos for courting purposes. There is too much rapid motion, and the driver's attention must be constantly on his machine, to say nothing of his grip being on the steering wheel. Abel and Sallie drove out in a box buggy behind a lazy going horse. Everything pertaining to love in its early stages is zephyr-like, though I admit the climax or a brief period just before the climax may be in the nature of a hurricane. There was just a suspicion of perfume about Sallie, so delicate that it could only have come from articles that had been kept in sandalwood drawers or more likely, in a mouchoir case. It was very entrancing to Abel, and as they rolled slowly over the smooth road, the reins lying loosely on the horse's back, Abel had nothing to think of except the girl beside him.

Sallie had by this time come to the most difficult part of her work. Every man doubtless thinks that some time he will be married and have a home. But marriage to him is like old age to all of us. It is—like I mean—far distant. The bachelor thinks of the present. Some men do not like to give up their liberty for the obligations of matrimony; some, who expect to do so in time, never find a convenient season. All men must be won. Only widowers or old bachelors, tired of their bachelorhood, marry intentionally.

Abel Rogers was looking forward to the day when, having accumulated a competence, he would settle down and take a wife. It was the business of Sallie Jones to break through this future intention and make it a present one. And here, again, girls' work shows a similarity to men's work. Many men who have good address and are excellent talkers fail in putting through schemes because they cannot bring the person on whom they are working to the point. Girls also often fail in landing a man whom they have got to the water's edge.

Mr. Rogers, having been brought thus far, bid fair to remain with the hook in his gills dopping about in the water. The timid girl, having thus far succeeded and being balked, would remain in statu quo. The rash girl would jerk the line, break it, and the fish would go swimming away merrily. The wise girl would use a landing net.

That is what Sallie Jones did. She used a landing net. But even a landing net may be used carelessly or at least injudiciously. Miss Jones studied out whatever she did. After a few months of dallying on the part of Mr. Rogers she set up a rival—not a real, bona fide rival, but one merely to excite a bit of suspicion. Indeed, by this time she was considered by the young men to belong to Abel Rogers, and it was not easy for her to secure a rival.

Abel did not seem very much frightened. At any rate, he showed no signs of being brought to terms. Perhaps he was thinking that he couldn't afford to marry or that, after all, it wouldn't be such a hardship to let Sallie Jones go to another.

The experiment having failed, Miss Jones resolved upon another. She became suddenly very gracious to Mr. Rogers. At the same time he noticed that whenever he asked her to go out with him she made some excuse. It did not occur to him that the excuse was not valid. He supposed he happened to ask her at times when she was engaged.

One evening Mr. Rogers called on Miss Jones and waited in the parlor while he was announced. On a lounge lay a piece of white satin, a long white veil and some orange blossoms. While the gentleman was inspecting them, a vague suspicion as to the reason for their being there breaking through into his brain, a maid entered hurriedly, gathered up the articles mentioned and, with a look at Rogers indicating that it had not been intended he should have seen them, carried them out of the room.

By this time it seemed to Mr. Rogers that he stood on the edge of a precipice and was about to topple over. When the maid re-entered with a message from Miss Jones asking to be excused, since she was very busy, he caught at the mantle for support.

Could it be possible that the girl he had been hanging about so long was going to be married?

The proper thing for Mr. Rogers to do was to excuse the lady on whom he had called and go away. He did no such thing. He sent a message to her begging her to see him for only a few moments.

She came. To carry out her supposed plan she should be in sewing dress. She knew better. She wore the most becoming costume for ordinary wear she possessed. When she saw Mr. Rogers looking as if the bottom had dropped out of the universe she regarded him with a gaze of interested surprise.

"Oh, heavens!" he exclaimed frantically. "How could you have done it?"

"Done what?"

"You are about to be married?"

"I?"

"Yes. Don't deny it. I have seen the wedding dress, the veil, the orange blossoms."

"You have?"

"Yes. I suppose I should not reproach you, but it is maddening. After all my devotion—Who is the man? I demand to know!"

Young ladies, I have gone far enough in my illustration. This is not a love story; it is a lecture. I trust that I have made myself plain and that I may have been of benefit in bringing about for some of you that state which is woman's part to fill. The next lecture will be given on next Friday afternoon at the same hour. Those who have not procured course tickets may procure them for $2 each. I bid you good evening.

26 SAVE BONDS

Highschool Enlargement Assured, Though Majority Vote Is Small

A $20,000 bond issue for an addition to the Oregon City highschool was authorized Saturday of last week by a majority of but 26 votes when the matter came up at a special school election. The figures of the ballot reflected a remarkably light interest in the matter, 201 school patrons voting in favor of the bond issue, and 175 opposing the plan. Following the authorization of the bonds, the school directors let the contract for the highschool addition to Stebbinger Brothers, whose bid was $15,362, exclusive of furnishings. The addition to the highschool must be completed within four months, according to the terms of the contract. W. G. McPherson gets the contract for revising the heating apparatus in the old building and for connecting up the new one, the bid of $1800 that he put is being accepted. These two bids make the new addition cost $17,162, exclusive of furnishings—nearly $3,000 less than the bond issue. The furnishings, however, will probably take up the difference.

Summer Aches and Pains

That backache or stiff muscle that cannot be explained on account of having "sat in a draft and caught cold" is more than likely the result of weakened or disordered kidneys. Foley Kidney Pills promptly relieve backache, sore, swollen or stiff muscles and joints, rheumatism and sleep disturbing bladder ailments. They put the kidneys in sound, healthy condition, and help them eliminate uric acid and other poisons from the system—Jones Drug Co.

REAL BROTHERLY, THIS

Estacada Progress Pays Respects to Local Paper's "Annual"

Commenting on the annual edition of the Enterprise, the Estacada Progress notes the following interesting things:

"Considerable advertising and news space is given up to the exploitation of Molalla and Liberal and also a few general statistics are shown of Clackamas county, but no mention of Estacada or Eastern Clackamas or even a picture of the famous Estacada school is shown among the county schools."

TRUE NEIGHBORS

Maryland Farmer Unusually Blessed With Real Friends

Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, tells the following little story: "Mr. Abraham Hahn, living near Taneytown, Maryland, had been sick for a long time and, his farm work had not been done. On April 28th, 14 three-horse teams started into a 30-acre field owned by him, and at 5 P. M. it was ready for the harrow. His neighbors had turned out and done his work. The percentage of warm hearts and happy breasts in that neighborhood is estimated to have been larger that night than ever in the history of the community."

Courier and the Western Stock Journal $1.50 per year.

PLOW SHARES SHARPENED

We've installed a new Emery Wheel for grinding Cast Iron Plow Shares and exercising precaution to have the job done right.

Steel Plow Shares Drawn Out

Scientific Horseshoeing

General Blacksmithing

Our Price and Work is Right

SCRIPTURE & MAY

5th St., near Main

Phone—Pac. 297-J

LIVE AGENTS WANTED, BIG MONEY MAKING PROPOSITION

THE ICELESS QUEEN REFRIGERATOR

Refrigerators without Ice or chemicals. Low priced, sells on sight. Everybody needs one. Just the thing for the farmer, summer hotels, country stores, etc.

Write for Booklet and Agent's proposition. A few territories still open.

COAST, CULVERT AND FLUME COMPANY

Portland (Kenton Station) Oregon

Hammond & Hammond

Attorneys at Law

Abstracts

Real Estate, Loans, Insurance

Oregon City, Oregon.

William M. Stone

Attorney at Law

General Law Practice

Beaver Building.

OREGON CITY, OREGON

NINTH ANNUAL FAIR

of the

Clackamas County Fair Ass'n

To Be Held At

CANBY, OREGON

September 20-21-22-23rd

Everybody is invited to save their best grain and grasses and farm products.

A GOOD LIST OF PREMIUMS OFFERED AND A FINE RACE PROGRAM

For further information and list of premiums, address WARD B. LAWTON, Sec'y, Oregon City, Ore., Rt. 1

100,000 FT. LUMBER FOR SALE -- $10 Pr. M Delivered Any Place in City.

3,200 lb. fine dapple gray Team; Harness and Wagon; 1-3 Horse Gas Engine; 2 Cows; 2 Brood Sows; 1 Hay Rope; 1 House, 16 x 24; Delivered any place in town Cheap; Slabwood $3.00 per Cord Delivered.

GEORGE LAMMERS' SAWMILL, OREGON CITY, ORE., ROUTE NO. 3.

D. C. LATOURETTE, President. F. J. MEYER, Cashier.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

OF OREGON CITY, OREGON

CAPITAL $50,000.00.

Transacts a General Banking Business Open From 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

W. S. U'REN, formerly of Oregon City FRANK C. HESSE

Phone Main 6376

U'REN & HESSE

Attorneys at Law

DEUTSCHE ADVOKATEN

601-2-3-4 RAILWAY EX. BLDG. PORTLAND, OREGON

Office phones: Main 50, A50; Res. phones, M. 2524, 1715 Home B251, D251

WILLIAMS BROS. TRANSFER & STORAGE

Office 612 Main Street

Safe, Piano, and Furniture Moving a Specialty

Sand, Gravel, Cement, Lime, Plaster, Common Brick, Face Brick, Fire Brick —is a tent that will stand hard wear and weather.

—That won't come apart through cheap material or workmanship.
—That will be as good next year and the year after, as it is the first season.
—you can get such a Tent by asking for the "Willamette" and making sure our trade-mark is on it. Every Tent is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction.

"Willamette" Tents are made in all sizes and styles. They cost no more than Tents without name or guarantee.

For Sale by All Reliable Dealers

HIRSH-WEIS MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Makers Formerly Willamette Tent and Awning Co. PORTLAND, OREGON