

LOOPING THE LOOP AT NIGHT IN AERO

This is a bona fide picture taken of an illuminated aeroplane flight made by Art Smith, the "upside down aviator," flying at night over the Panama-Pacific International exposition in San Francisco. The picture was made from a single timed exposure and is now published for the first time. The camera shutter was opened during the period of flight. The picture is unique, as it is the first photographic record of an aeroplane's course ever made on a single negative.

THE FASHIONS

New York, Aug. 5.—Have you seen the new suits in two materials? They are quite the rage, with their jaunty, flaring coats in one, and swaggy skirts in another material which is totally different. To see them, one must take a run down to Long Beach some afternoon, or slip over to Newport and stroll by the Casino in the morning. They are worth seeing, as they come now fresh from Paris and are worn by New York's smart society. It is an opportunity of a lifetime. Never has such style been displayed on our own shores. They only wait—these fashionable people, politely bored by the things at home—for the war to cease, that they may winter or summer, as chance may be, on the other side of the great Atlantic. Now the modes are brought to them. If they cannot be at Monte Carlo, Trouville or D'Eauville, they will at least wear here what they would have worn there.

Blue and White Serges, Checks and Worsteds in Combination.

Paris' first venture for the fall is accepted with open arms on this side of the Atlantic. Perchance, it is because her venture is suits, for Paris knows well the American woman's weakness for the strictly tailored. It's a clever idea, this showing of jaunty little jacket-suits before plunging into long coats and heavy skirts for cold weather. The serges are especially summery, as they appear in combinations of blue and white. Most noticeable was a suit worn by one of a party of ladies at Long Beach last Sunday—a distinctly military type in cut. The coat of dark blue serge, patterned on straight lines, with a high collar like the dress coat of the cadet, braiding and all. The skirt was of fine white serge, a bit scantier in width than the usual run of things, with a strip of broad white

Hercules braid at the side seam. With this, she wore a broad, straight-brimmed, blue chiffon sailor, with a scarf of the chiffon edged with beads resembling the "Boy Scout."

We hear from Paris that the idea of two materials in one suit will be carried out in checked and plain, and striped and plain worsteds; already there is a showing of these models by the exclusive shops. Unlike the serges, the coats of these suits are usually belted and are amply supplied with patch pockets, more like the khaki suits worn by soldiers. One model just received from the other side is made in this style, with a plain full skirt. The coat is of dark brown worsted and the skirt, collar, belt and cuffs of a two-toned brown check. Enter the Hat of Italian Bersiglieri.

The suit is given the honor place in the window of one of our great department stores and with it is escauchevynavouted the shown on'tw shown the hat of the Italian bersiglieri. Whether or not this hat will be popular remains to be seen. As it appears in black velvet, with slightly tilted brim, stiff high crown and drooping cock's plume at the side, it is a bit trying to the average. It takes a daring person to wear it at the necessary forty-five degree slant to give it style. That Paris has taken up is a fact. We hear from this city: "One of the very smartest lit-so ago at the Ambassadeurs wearing not only the bersiglieri hat with its flowing cock's plume at the side, but also a cock of Tyrolian-striped taffeta, with a short, plain, surplice corse in Italian green silk."

Bracelet Handbags.

The mode has remained sober already too long. This is evident in the accessories that are being shown with the midsummer suits. Handbags are especially frivolous. Not only do they appear in brilliant silks with gate-tops, but leather bags, too, tend decidedly toward fancy effects. White kid is favored, alone or in combination with black patent leather or pale blue. These are usually in the gathered bags. The latest novelty is a black kid bag, with an imitation tortoise-shell frame and bracelet to hold it by. It is lined with black and white striped moire and a mirror is introduced in the form of a semi-circle mounted on an inside gold-plate frame.

Colored Fourchettes in Silk Gloves

Silk gloves, too, are more elaborate than in past seasons. The introducing of the colored fourchettes between the fingers is one of the new ways of making the white glove match the costume. The gloves are usually made in gauntlet style, with the strips between the fingers black, dark blue, or green, with the buttons and, perhaps, a vent in the cuff section of the same shade. The idea is finding favor, and it is rumored that the kid gloves imported for the fall will also show these contrasting colors in even more elaborate effects.

Dance Frocks Pointed.

Dance Fashion is not confining herself solely to the military. The Colonial contributes its share to the present-day modes in dance frocks. These, too, diverge somewhat from the simplicity which marked their entry a season ago. One of the new frocks worn at a mid-week dance showed how effectively the pointed trimming can be carried out in a dress of this type. The dress was made wholly of tulle bound in silk. The waist was a delicate blue, with neck edge and deep sleeve ruffle bound in rose silk. A broad giraffe of the same material finished the waist, and the skirt, cut in deep points at the lower edge, was of the blue tulle bound with the silk which made it twist and billow out until the points were almost indistinguishable. Below the first skirt there was yet another, and another, of the tulle, pointed at the lower edge and bound with the silk. The first layer was rose and then under that the blue again, giving a veiled rainbow effect.

Slippers Accept Buttonhole Bouquet. With this were worn slippers and stockings to match the rose red. In the front there was a wee bunch of rosebuds and foliage in the place of a buckle—for all the world a buttonhole bouquet in a new place. This same idea is carried out in all shades of slippers. They are certainly charming with the dance frocks these delicate blue, pink, yellow and white slippers, each with its bud or cluster of blossoms at the toe.

Fans Dolly Varden.

It is only natural that the fan should accord with the rest of the costume. Now that the skirts are voluminous to the extreme of fullness and waist plain, tight and basque-like, fans return to the Dolly Varden ivory and pattern creations. They are coquettish despite their diminutive size, the bright, painted crinoline figures giving a certain gaiety to their aspect. One of the novelties is a fan of this type of ivory, with an ivory bracelet to slip over the arm.

Evening Wraps Veiled.

The wraps designed to wear with the costume have nothing of the crinoline simplicity. They are three-quarter, loose and flowing, of striped and figured satin, veiled with white and colored chiffon. Square, deep collars predominate, edged with black velvet or a bit of fur.

WATCH THE RECORD

County Warrants Should Show Where Every Penny Is Spent

C. C. Chapman, in last week's Oregon Voter, remarks, among other things:

"Several counties are following the irregular practice of drawing warrants for lump sums to be turned over to roadmasters and district supervisors to apply on road construction work, both for buying small supplies and meeting pay rolls.

"This is strictly against the law, and the county officers are liable on their bonds if any taxpayer sues, or if any funds miscarry.

"It is required that the warrants be drawn in favor of the men who do the work of the firms from whom supplies are bought by the regular method of purchase prescribed by law.

"The purpose of the law is to prevent padding pay rolls. Dishonesty is impossible with some roadmasters, but if anything went wrong, like a roadmaster being held up and robbed, or any other miscarriage of funds, it would raise a mean row, and the bonded county officer who authorized the irregular procedure would have to make up the sum.

"With as much irregular practice as is going on in many road districts it behooves county commissioners to watch carefully."

BANDIT IS FUSSY

Alleged Canemah Hold-up Artist Shows Taste for Candy

News from Grants Pass, where John Austin Hooper, alleged general bad man, is in jail, show that the gunman who stuck up an interurban car at Canemah some months ago is far from what might be imagined. Hooper, who is well supplied with money, doesn't like the jail fare provided, and often sends the sheriff's helpers out for fruit and candy. One day recently he ordered a dozen bananas, a dozen oranges and a dollar's worth of chocolate creams.

This candy-eating crook is the same gentleman who was heralded in Portland papers by various special agents as the thug who "befriended the Indians" in the Siskiyou mountains by giving them automatic revolvers and who was said to have been "the worst bandit since Jesse James." Officials at Grants Pass, where the man is being held on the charge of having robbed a bank, are having no difficulty with their prisoner; and are inclined to think that he is just a foolish youth who tried to pick up some easy money.

Planting Sugar Cane.

In a bulletin of the Pan-American union on cane sugar in the Americas it is stated that sugar cane is planted, not sown. A small piece of the cane, long enough to include two or three of the rings, or nodes, is laid lengthwise, or stuck in a slanting direction, along a furrow which runs the length of the field. In some sections the primitive fashion of planting in holes is still employed. When the trench is planted with earth. In a few weeks they show growth above the ground, the germ buds at the rings having begun to shoot out in the form of young cane, the ring having at the same time thrown out rootlets into the soil. The parallel trenches are made far enough apart, say at least three feet, to enable the workers when the wide spreading canes are getting ripe to go between the rows and remove the dying leaves which burden the ripening cane, thereby enabling the naked cane to mature faster.

Our Universe.

Simon Newcomb, one of the most eminent mathematicians, wrote: "Speaking roughly, we have reason from the data so far available to believe that the stars of the Milky way are situated at a distance between 100,000,000 and 200,000,000 times the distance of the sun.

"It is not a chance. It is not even a collection of things, each of which came into existence its own separate way. If it were there could be nothing in common between two widely separated regions of the universe. But, as a matter of fact, science shows unity in the whole structure and diversity only in details.

"The universe, so far as we can see it, is a bounded whole. It is surrounded by an immense girdle of stars, which to our vision appears as the Milky way. While we cannot set exact limits to its distance we may yet confidently say that it is bounded."

When a Man Marries.

His bachelor friends are about equally divided in thinking that he is a nut or a mighty fortunate gink.

His wife's relatives plan to visit them during the county fair or the automobile show.

His own relatives plan to give his wife a good talking to if she proves to be extravagant.

His neighbors hope that he will prove to be a good hand at bridge and that his wife will throw as many tees as the rest of them.

His boss wonders how he can do it on the salary he is getting, but does not increase it.

His wife wonders why it is that a little house takes so much time to look after.

Navy That Crossed a Mountain.

In 1430, when the Venetians were at war with the Milanese they brought half a dozen war galleys with twenty-five smaller craft up the Adige river as far as Mori, some miles above Ala. Then came a feat which reminds us of the Turk's extraordinary achievement fourteen years later at Constantinople. By means of rollers and 2,000 men the Venetians hauled these ships up to the mountain saddle and lowered them on the other side to the Lake of Garda. "It was a task of fourteen days," says J. J. Stoddard, "and cost an enormous sum of money, but the result justified the boldness and extravagance of the undertaking, for in the following year the Venetians, aided by their imported galleys, vanquished their opponents and gained possession of the lake."—London Chronicle.

The Ideal Soup Kettle.

One of the woeful aspects of soup making in the pre-enameled ware days was the cleansing of the heavy iron kettle, for washing a kettle big enough to hold a shin bone of beef with trimmings was no joke.

Today, however, one can have the trim enameled kettle in any size, light yet strong, and all it needs is hot suds and a good rinsing to make it beautifully clean and sanitary. If, in addition, there is a collander of enameled ware for the straining of the soup into a pan to match the equipment is ideal for cleanliness, quickness and results.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Time Required.

"How long does it take you to go fishing?"

"Well, if you consider the time I actually fish it takes only a few hours. But if you count in the time I consume waiting for conditions to be just right and arranging for bait it takes several weeks."—Washington Star.

"Then, dear, wouldn't you like to have charge of its make-up?"—Baltimore American.

Valuation.

"You say that dog has a pedigree?"

"Yes."

"How much is he worth?"

"Well, the dog is worth about 20 cents, but the pedigree is valued at over a hundred dollars."—Washington Star.

His Obligations.

"I owe Pjenska a call."

"Going there this evening?"

"No. You see—er—that isn't all I owe him."—Cleveland Leader.

Insane Man Held

While enroute from Newport to Portland, in charge of a physician, Chris Jacobson, believed to be insane, jumped from the window of a Southern Pacific train in the county seat Saturday last; and for a few minutes enlivened local history. Jacobson was demanding his hat of passersby when Chief Shaw overhauled him and took him to the city jail. Later he was transferred to Portland at the request of the Portland police, to whom he had been reported as "missing."

CONFER ON CHURCH.

Property Owners Object to Some Phases of Meetings.

A conference was held between Mayor Jones, Chief of Police Shaw, City Attorney Schuebel and a number of property owners Wednesday morning, at which complaints were voiced by the property owners against certain phases of the meetings of a religious organization that has erected a tabernacle in the Mountainview district. It was said by the property owners that the religious enthusiasts not only made an unnecessary amount of noise, but that some of the members of the congregation, while "under the power," behaved in ways that were detrimental to the peace of the locality.

Numerous instances of alleged infractions of the peace were cited and city officials were asked to take some action in the matter. After much discussion it was finally agreed that if any of the property owners would swear to complaints, the offending folk would be taken into custody and brought before Recorder Loder. Just what action would then be taken is still a problem that has not been solved.

While admitting that there could be no interference with the actual religious meetings of the disturbing sect, city officials said that they believed the municipality had a right to interfere with members of the congregation who, after leaving the meetings, misbehaved in any way upon the streets. The conference was called as the direct result of the actions of a woman, who this week, after one of the meetings, threw herself prone upon the lawn of a nearly property owner and refused to move.

SHOW YOUR SPUDS

Oregon Needs Tubers for Display at San Francisco Fair

William Grissenthwaite, who has just returned from the Panama Pacific fair at San Francisco, says that Clackamas county's exhibit is one of the real wonders of the fair, and that it is easy to see how Oregon won the many prizes that have come her way. Only in one regard could Oregon's exhibit be better, says Mr. Grissenthwaite, and this is in a way that Clackamas county farmers can help.

There is a dearth of good spuds on hand. Every Clackamas farmer knows that spuds from this neck of the woods are better than spuds raised anywhere else, and Clackamas county should prove this at the fair. Hence Mr. Grissenthwaite calls upon every Clackamas farmer to bring in his best potatoes to the publicity show rooms of the Oregon City Commercial Club, so that they may be sent to the exhibition for display.

Great big potatoes, such as are commonly raised in Clackamas county, are needed to win prizes—more prizes—with. Every farmer should pick out some good ones and send them in, so that they may show easterners and California folk what the best section of the Willamette valley can do in this line. All potatoes sent in will be forwarded to Mr. Freytag at San Francisco, and when exhibited there will bear the name of the grower. Clackamas county can win prizes with its spuds, and Mr. Grissenthwaite believes that the county ought to do all it can.

NEW LIBERTY BELL

Oregon Building at Frisco Fair Has One Made of Cherries

There are two Liberty bells at the Panama-Pacific fair at San Francisco. One of them is the real article, and has a place of honor in the Pennsylvania building. And the other thanks to C. M. and G. C. Stackland, of Cove, Union county, Oregon, graces the interior of the giant Oregon building.

The artists, who last week supplied the Eastern Oregon booth with two immense designs in which light and dark cherries were used to form the American flag and an eagle upon a shield have now sent down a "Liberty Bell" done in Bings and Royal Anns. The design is four by six feet, and the representation of the bell, even to the crack in this historic relic, is perfect. The idea pleases the public and the size and beauty of the cherries pleases the visitors even more. Eastern Oregon cherries, coming in two weeks after the Willamette Valley, Rogue River and Hood River cherries, have the field to themselves and attract very much attention. Most easterners have never seen cherries the size of Oregon Bings and Lamberts, such as Eastern Oregon has on display at the Palace of Horticulture and the showing is in the nature of a real treat. Besides the Liberty Bell, the immense flag shown at the Cove cherry fair two weeks ago, and which travelled 1,050 miles to get there, is still on display in the Eastern Oregon booth.

Perilous Times

Deer hunting opens August 15. Already in other states men are being shot by nervous hunters who think "a rustling in the bushes" can be nothing else than a deer. And to lessen this peril of the fool with a gun, comes again the suggestion that all hunters wear scarlet coats. And also arises the suggestion that all hunters wear scarlet coats. And also arises the question: It is better to wear a scarlet coat and be gored by passing bulls, or is it better to wear ordinary clothes and be shot by a fool? These are indeed perilous times that are approaching.
