SINS, DEBTS AND DISEASES

We Have Many Millions Dollars Worth of Them on the Books

For all the average reader knows about the quarterly reports of the banks, they might as well be printed in Yiddish or Polish. They are entirely unintelligible to most people.

The last report of the State Bank Superintendent shows over 80 million dollars of loans and discounts. That the people of Oregon are paying nearly eight million dollars of interest to the banks annually. This is a good deal of money, but is only a small part of the total tax of rent and interest.

The tragic part of it is the veil of secrecy that is woven about it. It is really amusing as it is tragic. The people take it seriously—so very seriously that it must not be spoken of except in whispers, but in reality it is the greatest fake that ever was put over in the world. The people are paying interest on their own money.

The people deposit the money in small sums. It is entered on one side of the report as deposits and on the other side as loans and discounts. The small depositors get no interest. Time deposits, which are larger sums not subject to check, draw a small interest.

The banks loan the money out at eight or ten per cent. It is borrowed by merchants and other business men. It is a tax on business. This interest must be added to the price of goods or taken out of wages and is therefore paid for by the whole people who thus pay interest on their own money.

The great secret about it is, who borrows the money? There must be a lot of highly respectable folks in debt to make up a total of 86 million. No one but respectable and worthy people can get into debt at a bank. But no one wants to admit to being in debt.

Debts are in the same class as sins and diseases. A patient confesses his sins to a priest—the priest dares not tell. He is sworn to secrecy.

A patient confesses his or her diseases to a doctor. Some diseases are more private than others, but the doctor is not supposed to give out information about any of them.

No one knows who all owe these 86 million dollars of loans, and discounts, except the bankers, and they won't tell. So we have sinners and debtors and people with secret diseases, going 'round imagining they are not recognized.

But they are recognized. These are the latter days when knowledge is increasing on the earth and people are running to and fro and shooting off their mouths. The country is full of detectives and every stenographer and bookkeeper is a recording angel (or a demon.)

And it is getting so that nearly everybody can read the signs of sin and disease and debt. It will soon be impossible to keep such things secret. The people are eating of the forbidden fruit. They are getting their eyes open and becoming as God. God knows all about these things and the people are finding out because they want to know and they ought to know.

That is the reason the banks are compelled by law to make reports. If they had to make itemized reports, giving the names of all debtors and creditors and amounts of their credit more interesting and intelligible.

The doctrine of Christian Science is that sins and diseases are unreal, but sad to say Mrs. Eddy never carried out her program of emancipation to its logical conclusion, which would be to declare that debts are also unreal.

If the people who owe these 80 odd million dollars would wake up tomorrow morning and discover that they don't owe anything, what a jolly lot of debtors they would be. But the creditors would look at

A FAMOUS BATTLE.

The One Described in History as the "Victory of Victories."

The battle which is known in history as the "Victory of Victories" took place at Nehavend, in Ecbatana, and was fought between the new Moslem power in 637 and the empire of Persia, then one of the most powerful of the eastern monarchies. It was one of the most absolutely decisive battles in the history of war, and it was all the more amazing by reason of the fact that it was won by a people who twenty years before had been unknown barbarians, lost in the deserts of Arabia. Arabian historians place the Persian loss in a single day at 100,000 men killed. This may be and probably is an exaggeration, but the fact remains that the Persian dynasty came to an end when the battle was over and that Zoroastrianism, which had been the religion of Persia for over a thousand years, was at once supplanted by Islam. Its modern representatives, as is well known, are now the Parsees of India.

The victory was so absolutely decisive that it extended the Arabian dominions over the whole of the region lying between the Caspian sea and the Indian ocean. With the exception perhaps of the battle of Tours, no single fight ever made such a difference in the after history of the world.—Exchange.

AN ARMY AND A MOB.

It's Discipline That Marks the Difference Between Them.

An army is not an army, but a mob, unless every item in it can be trusted to do the same thing at the same moment at the word of command. So obedience is not a virtue in a soldier, but a necessity, for, unless he learns it, he cannot attain to the military virtues. It has been proved, for instance, again and again that obedience is the way to courage.

When it is a habit with men they face danger as they form fours because they are told to, and the habit of obedience is stronger in them than their natural fears. It is, in fact, part of a soldier's technique, and unless he has learned it he is an amateur liable to stage fright.

There may, of course, be an irrational discipline which destroys a soldier's intelligence, as irrational technique destroys intelligence in any craft. But the fact remains that soldiers have to learn obedience by means of a training specially designed to teach them obedience scales. When he has learned it he can exercise his intelligence far better than if he had not learned it because he is braver and cooler for having learned it.—London Times.

Butler's Reply.

There was a time, while Lyman Trumbull was chairman of the senate committee on judiciary, that Benjamin Butler was chairman of the judiciary committee of the house. It was at this period that a delegation from one of the southern states visited Washington with a desire to secure the impeachment and removal of the federal judge of their state. They interviewed Mr. Butler as to the probability of carrying such a measure through that session.

"I don't know," was Mr. Butler's reply. "I am chairman of the judiciary committee of the house. The necessary action can be had here. But Lyman Trumbull is chairman of the senate committee, and Judge Trumbull is troubled with two things—the dyspepsia, which makes him miserable, and conscience, which makes him uncertain."

A Giant Among Dwarfs.

The intellect and genius of Franklin were perhaps never more manifest than when, as the colonial agent of Pennsylvania, he appeared before the British house of commons in order to undergo an inquisition into the taxation questions which were brewing the trouble which subsequently resulted in American freedom. Not fewer than 300 questions were propounded to him by some of the acutest legal and political minds of the old country. To each and every one of them he replied in a masterful manner. Edmund Burke in commenting on the matter said that Franklin reminded him of "a man being examined by a parcel of schoolboys," while Charles James Fox remarked that his inquisitors were "dwarfs in the hand of a giant."

Regulating Bread Prices.

A simple plan for the regulation of bread prices was in vogue in England from the time of Henry III. to the beginning of the nineteenth century. The "assize of bread" was set every week by the authorities of every borough and manor, when the price of the loaf was regulated by the ruling price of wheat, the margin of reasonable profit being left to the baker and miller. Departure from the official price was heavily punished.—London Mirror.

The Ruling Passion.

"Fore!" yelled the golfer. But the lady never moved. For she was thinking of a coming shopping tour. He should have called $3.98 to have attracted her attention.—Philadelphia Ledger.

By Hook or by Crook.

The phrase "by hook or by crook" originated with the Irish defenders of Limerick, who had to defend two channels, the Hook and the Crook, from English attacks.—Exchange.

It is not helps, but obstacles; not facilities, but difficulties, that make men.—W. Matthews.
