CHERRYVILLE.

The dry days are at hand.

August instead of a month of terrific heat and frightful and terrifying storms as in the east is a delightful season of the year in the mountains. Campers are now enjoying life and the woods resound with their care-free life and pleasant pastimes.

An exchange relates with pride the splendid bill of fare Uncle Sam provides his army and navy boys. Now then if the government can serve such a comfortable and abundant living for men engaged in killing and destroying lives and property or protecting the property of the idle and greedy rich, why not do something better for the vast army of people seeking a livelihood in the absolutely necessary pursuits of peace. The Industrial commission which has been in session for the past year in different cities in the land, has just handed in its report, and says the great cause of industrial unrest and dissatisfaction among the toiling masses is insufficient wages and that is supplemented by a statement from Col. Gorgas, the man who by his wise sanitary measures made the digging of the Panama canal possible—who says the average wages are too low by one-half for the average person to live in any kind of comfort. The hardest hit by the industrial commission is given to the telephone companies.

Rumor has it that Ford will sell on his birthday—early this month—a machine to any person for $250. Send one this way, Mr. Ford, and we will pay you when the cows come home. Some of these cows are hypothetical and aren't even calves yet, and some, it is feared mightily, are hopelessly lost in the mountains.

The Germans owe much of their success in industrial life and in the great war to their preparedness and the care they take of their people in peace and in war. Their soldiers are well fed and well clothed and are consequently strong and robust and when pushed against the half-starved Russians and the poor starved soldiers of London soon run over them. The Mormons with all of their absurdities and their hypocrisy and which in the last analysis is a scheme to enrich a few big church dignitaries are still smart enough to take care of their workers and they see that they are comfortably housed.

The auto road that runs through this place is to be part of the great scenic highway that runs up the Columbia to Hood River. A loop is being surveyed now from Mt. Hood lodge to a point on the Barlow road east of Government Camp so that when looping the loop you will come through Cherryville on your joy-ride. This whole route will be eventually hard-surfaced.

Every church should be an industrial center and community builder, as well as guide and instructor for the higher life. The bodies of all the children of men must be cared for as well as the souls and it is useless to talk of a home in the skies when the vast majority of mankind have no home of any kind here on earth and lead wretched existence all their days. Let us take each world in its proper order, said Horace Greely.

"Teddy" says he is just as progressive as ever. This is what was to be expected, as whatever his faults are he is no hypocrite or two-faced politician, and it is certain he will never run in the same crowd with "Boss" Barnes. "Boo!" Penrose or "Dirty Ditch Drinker" Weeks. This makes a hard battle next year for the stand-patters.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mrs. Rose gave a one o'clock dinner Saturday in honor of Mrs. Smith of Galesburg, Ill. The following ladies were present: Mesdames Schelly, Dixon, Bullard, Shonts, Bereling, Holbeck, Little and Van Anker.

Miss Little, a cousin of Mrs. Beverling, from Galesburg, Ill., is visiting in the Beverling house.

Mrs. Elmer Dixon entertained the Ladies' Aid and Bible class last Friday in honor of her niece, Mrs. Dr. Smith, of Galesburg, Ill.

Mrs. Scouton, with mother and sister, left Saturday for the California fair.

Mrs. R. M. C. Brown returned Friday from Klamath county, looking much better after her much deserved rest.

Louis May and wife, from Seaside, are at the bedside of his father, W. W. May.

The little Bonnick boy that was so badly burned is much improved.

Mrs. Van Anken and members of her Sunday School class took the jenny Wednesday morning for a picnic at the Chautauqua Grounds, Gladstone.

Mrs. Elsie Chandler underwent an operation last week at St. Vincent's Hospital, Portland.

REDLAND

The end of the week will see all grain cut and the thresher a humming.

Mr. Babler, of Logan, has threshed his wheat, which went 968 bushels to 19 acres, the field being the forty fold and Klondike varieties.

Wm. Gaskell, while picking berries, was attacked by Mrs. Bargfeld's dog and cowed on both arms quite severely.

An up-river paper says that washed river gravel is the dope for roads and intimates that the people out here don't know what is best. There is no arguing the point; river gravel as applied in District No. 13 is an utter impossibility, as there is no binding in same, the roller pushing the gravel before it and bunching it up.

The Redland and Crescent nines had a game here last Sunday, regular town ball. One man was ginned up when he got home his wife gave him a beating and the next day when he sobered up he retaliated by beating her.

The Redland Literary gave an ice cream social and entertainment last Saturday, with a large attendance.

The proceeds were about $17.

Our bachelor farmers had a regular Dutch row last week in which it is reported that a gun and knife came into play, thereby losing their cook and possibly a dissolution of partnership.

THE PROPHET SPEAKS

(By Alfred D. Cridge)

The p-o-o-r w-i-d-o-w! Whenever privilege and organized legalized robbery is confronted with limitations on its exactions it promptly hides behind the poor widow.

What has become of the poor widow who had her little all invested in the British slave-trade less than a century ago? She was paraded in parliament by the British slave ship pirates with great success for two generations.

What has become of the poor widow in anti-belum times? She was trotted out at every Abolitionist gathering, and appeared so many times in Congressional oratory as to tire out everybody. The one slave that was the sole support of her family, was taken away from that poor widow.

Now we have the big special privilege pirates with their poor widow owning stock in railroads, water power, timber, electric lights, gas plants and street car lines. That poor widow is being worked overtime to keep various and sundry forms of graft and imposition strapped to the backs of the workers that some well-fed gentry may ride thereon. Whenever a defender of privilege and plunder is hard pushed he gets behind the skirts of the poor widow. Sometimes he trots out the poor orphan, and when very hard pushed talks about the old people relying on graft for a living. It always goes for a time, too. Many a rascally, blue-sky grafter gets away while the popular mind is being focussed on the skirts of the poor widow. She is the most useful piece of old stage stock to trot out when people ask for justice.

Some years ago an old fox, Pat Calhoun, was wrecking the Southern railway that ran from New York to New Orleans. That meant robbing widows and orphans by the thousands who had invested in it. He and a bunch of scoundrels deliberately so managed that it paid no dividends, and the assessments levied cleaned out the widows and orphans of millions in the aggregate, for they were forced to dispose of their stock when they were not frightened into doing so. At the same time the same bunch of millionaire crooks were beseeching the people of San Francisco not to go on with municipal ownership, and not to allow decent pay and decent hours to the workers because of the dividends needed by the poor widow.

The poor widow often smokes $1 cigars, rides in palace cars, wears broadcloth and silk ties and looks very much like disreputable, grasping heartless public grafter. Don't worry about her.

There are hundreds of settlers in Oregon who have little holdings of hardly any value other than what improvements are on them. Many of them are held back from developing land because of the need of livestock and tools. If Oregon was annexed to some of the Australian states we would have thousands of them loaned small sums at 4 1/2 percent interest with which to improve their homes. Wouldn't Oregon be better off? We don't need to borrow the money loaned to the people who want to build homes.

All we need to do is to take a part of the annual ground rents produced by the whole people, and now taken by a very few people for their own use, and apply that money thus turned into the public treasury to the use of the working, home-building, home-loving people of Oregon. The people of Oregon create this annual ground rent and have a right to take any part, or all of it, at any time. In fact, a small portion of it is now taken in taxation. There is nothing to prevent us from taking more, or all, any time we have sense enough to reach out for our own.

The state of Western Australia borrows on its credit millions of dollars which it loans to farmers at 4 1/2 percent to enable them to clear land, fence it, put up buildings, dig wells, construct drains and TO BUY LIVE-STOCK. It is a thing that Oregon could do at any time. Its credit is good, and it has plenty of land on which men could make a living if given a few hundred dollars loan from time to time at 4 1/2 percent. Of course if we are frightened at terms sound of Socialism, uttered in a deep bass voice by the Oregonian.

All the same, there are thousands of farmers in that far off land who have been given happy homes by this process, and are not aware of it being socialism, and don't care if it is.

NICE FAT MEAT

Local Attorney Becomes Patron of Butcher for Two Days

This is a story of an attorney at law and a butcher. The butcher was made defendant in a suit recently, and the attorney heard of it. He thought that maybe if he was real nice to the butcher he could get the job of handling the case. So he hastened over to the butcher and bought an 80-cent steak. Next day he went back to the butcher's and said that the steak was the finest one he had ever eaten, and that he wanted a fine, fat, big and juicy roast cut off the same animal for dinner.

The butcher obliged. He put up a dandy roast, and it cost the lawyer about a dollar and a quarter. The lawyer took it home, and next day he came back to the butcher shop and said that the roast was even finer than the steak. He conversed on the pleasure the butcher must have in serving customers with such good meat, and finally got the conversation around to the suit in which the butcher was defendant. He asked the butcher if he didn't want a lawyer.

"Lawyer? What for," replied the butcher, "I settled the case yesterday. Do you want some meat today, Mr. Stone?"

And the lawyer coughed, and said that he didn't think he wanted any meat, that there was still some of the roast left over.

NEWS FROM HOME

Prominent County Attorney Comments on Killing of Becker

Editor Courier:—I read your article entitled "The Killer" in your issue of August 5th and I wish to say that I endorse every word of it. I watched the Becker case very closely and I am satisfied that the views expressed in your article are sound and correct. The state depended upon the testimony of the parties who actually committed the murder for their evidence to connect Becker with this case or with the killing of Rosenthal. This man Rose was granted immunity and I think it is a very dangerous thing for the government to permit the life of an American citizen to be taken upon the testimony of a man who admits he is guilty and for the purpose of saving his own neck, endeavors to involve some other person in his crime. The temptation is great for a man to commit perjury and testify falsely to save his own life. Under such circumstances a Governor certainly ought to commute a sentence to imprisonment for life, as in the Becker case, and I congratulate you on having the fairness, ability and courage to write the article criticising Gov. Whitman's action in refusing to commute Becker's sentence. It shows that he is not big enough to be president or anything else.
