

PROHIBITION IS HIT

George C. Brownell Makes Weird Comments on New Law

On the first page of the Oregonian of August 13, appears an article from Redding, Calif., stating that the names of 350,000 tipplers in Oregon and Washington are catalogued and arranged in an alphabetical index by mail order liquor houses that propose to open for business in Hornbrook, Calif., which is near the Oregon and California line.

The law passed by the legislature of 1915, provides in substance, that any person in either of these two states may purchase a certain number of quarts of beer (twenty-four in Oregon) and a certain amount of whiskey, every 28 days during the year, and have it shipped to their address, at any place in the state of Oregon. The people of this state voted for and adopted a constitutional amendment, which is as follows: "From and after January 1, 1916, no intoxicating liquor shall be manufactured or sold within this state, except for medicinal purposes upon prescription of a licensed physician, or for scientific, sacramental or medicinal purposes."

Aim of Voters Avoided.

The intention of the people undoubtedly was to prohibit all sale of intoxicating liquor within the boundaries of this state, except for the purposes expressly permitted in the amendment itself. The legal and moral effect of this law, now upon the statute books of the state, is to permit liquor stores outside of the state, to ship liquor to individuals within the state, thereby indirectly accomplishing, by this indirect means, what the temperance people of the state were anxious to, and supposed that they were prohibiting by the adoption of this amendment. If this law stands it will be a repetition of what occurred in Kansas years ago. It was a common thing then, in that state, for any individual who went to the depot to board a train, to see the platform literally covered with jugs of whiskey and packages of beer, shipped in to individuals, from points outside of the state of Kansas, like St. Joseph, Kansas City, St. Louis or other points. The effect of this was, in a greater or less degree, to increase drunkenness; to make a saloon out of a man's house and home and to surround the boy in each home with the temptation that always results from liquor being commonly used about the home and in their presence, thereby corrupting and demoralizing them to a greater or less degree.

Principle of Law Denounced.

I cannot conceive of how the legislature of this state, in face of the expressed vote of the people at the last election, could have passed and placed upon the statute book, a law of this character. The principle contained in this law is bad; it is wrong; it is slapping the people of the state in the face; it is an insult to the conservative temperance people of the state. It is a law that was passed in obedience to the wishes and dictation of certain interests in the city of Portland who dictated directly and indirectly its passage. It does not and never has, represented or expressed the real temperance element of the state of Oregon, but does express the wishes and the desires of the liquor interests and of certain other interests in Portland.

It is wrong for the additional reason that it is a compromise with a thing that the people had, by their vote, declared to be wrong. The point is that the use of intoxicating liquor is either right or it is wrong. The temperance people are either right or they are wrong. If they are right, then this law is wrong and ought to be repealed and a law placed upon the statute books that will carry out the expressed will of the people. If it is right under this law for any individual to have shipped to his home, where his children are to be associated with the whiskey and beer environment and to be educated that its use in the home is right and proper, then as a matter of logic or principle, it would be equally right, if they can ship in 24 quarts of beer every 28 days, to ship in 24 barrels or any other quantity.

Measure Called Compromise.

The effect of the law is to destroy and make light of and place in disrepute, the temperance people, because the law recognizes that it is right for a man to have whiskey and beer shipped to his home, provided he only ships 24 quarts every 28 days, but if shipped in more, then it becomes a wrong. Compromises, as a rule, are always wrong. History records numbers of them. The slavery problem and its expansion and maintenance was the result of a compromise for years; the end was a bloody war with all its suffering and misery.

There seems to be something wrong in the human race; instead of meeting any problem straight and fairly; they will always temporize or compromise and in a way or degree recognize an evil instead of killing it at the proper time. The people themselves, will frequently overlook drunkenness and elect a man who has no sympathy with temperance, to high office, send them to the United States senate or put them into the governor's chair who have not sufficient force of character or backbone to stand firm and take a stand upon any question where there is a difference of sentiment, but for the sake of getting votes compromise, just as the legislature did at the last session, by striking a blow at the cause of true temperance in this state, by making it possible to permit people, by this law, to violate the intention and purpose of the constitutional amendment or at least, the wishes of the people as expressed at the ballot box.

Expense of Enforcement Great.

The expenses of the enforcement of this law will reach away beyond the expenses to the taxpayers in enforcing all the criminal laws now upon the statute books. The reason will be that one man, say in the town of Marymag, and other, in the town of Canby, and another in the town of Sandy, and say another, in the town of Milwaukie or Oswego, may all attempt to have 36 quarts of beer or some greater number than prescribed by law, shipped to them. In order to prosecute, complaints will have to be filed, mileage will have to be allowed for witnesses from all these different localities to where the trials will be held; mileage for witnesses before the grand jury, and the result will be that the expense to the taxpayers will simply be enormous when you come to put the machinery of the law into effect and into force, to enforce the violation of this law. If the shipping of liquor was confined to one town it would be comparatively easy to enforce the law, but four or five men in a distance of 25 or 40 miles from the county seat may violate this law in the different counties of the state, and the result will be as above stated, that the taxpayers would be ridden to death in paying the expense of prosecution and enforcing the said law.

Impossible to Enforce.

As a lawyer who has had some experience in prosecuting and defending men charged with crime. I am quite sure that this law will be found to be very detrimental and almost impossible to enforce. At least, the expense of its enforcement will be tremendous. For instance, suppose a concludes to have shipped to him 24 quarts of beer during the months of January, February and March of 1916, intending to bootleg or improperly dispose of the same. He has three or four confederates who also have twenty-four quarts of beer shipped to them for the purpose of helping supply A with liquor to dispose of. It will be almost impossible to get evidence to convict under these circumstances; at least this condition could run on for months before the officials would be able to get sufficient proof upon which to sustain a conviction. The four confederates, if investigated, would probably say that the beer they had had shipped to them, they had drunk or used themselves. You will see that it will be very hard to make the connection, so as to convict A under these circumstances, for the violation of this law. This would be the result in every town and village in the state of Oregon, and it would result in increasing our taxes beyond any conception at the present time.

Legislators Not Attacked. This is only one instance, there are others. This is simply used for the purpose of illustrating the weakness of this law. It would be much better for the temperance cause, if the people actually in favor of permitting individuals to have liquor, to use in their home, for them to strike out of this law, the right to have it shipped in, and of the two evils it would be better to let the parties desiring liquor to get it direct at some drug store or grocery store or any other place where it would be legal to have it, in moderate amounts, than it would to have it shipped into the homes by the people.

What I have said in this article is not meant as a criticism of any member of the legislature of this county or otherwise. I realize that the people who are to blame for this law, are certain Portland people and interests. I fully understand that the members of the legislature from this county, did the best that they could under the circumstances and conditions that they were placed in and surrounded with, and either had to vote absolutely against all temperance legislation or take this law, and they did probably exactly what I should have done under like circumstances. And if this law is not repealed or amended, in a proper way, we will have a higher tax rate in the state of Oregon, than we have ever had before; we will have liquor in thousands of the homes that have never been in the habit of having it there before; we will see and know sooner or later of drunkenness among boys and young people whom we never knew of before and the worst and most serious thing of all, is its corrupting and demoralizing influence in many of the homes. This law dispenses or abolishes the open saloon and in its place permits the establishment of one on a smaller scale in every home in the state. The law is unconstitutional and in my opinion will be so held by the supreme court of this state.
