SUNDAY BUSY DAY

Game Wardens, Forest Rangers and Others Fight Stubborn Fires

The usual Sunday rest didn't happen this week for game wardens, federal forest rangers, state forest guards and rangers on the Bull Run reserve 25 miles from Sandy, and along Oak Grove creek, on the south side of Mt. Hood.

The fire in the Bull Run reserve broke out without warning Saturday before noon, and fanned by a stiff wind spread rapidly through the timber, immediately assuming threatening proportions. Hasty calls for help were sent to Sandy, and practically every automobile in the little town was pressed into service taking men to the scene of the fire to fight the spread of the flames. State and federal forestry men led the fight on the fire, ably assisted by game wardens and people from Sandy and the surrounding ranches.

The extreme dry weather of the past several weeks had prepared the way for a bad fire, and the wind did its share in sweeping the flames along the tree-tops. With incredible rapidity the fire spread along the hilly country, frequently leaping gulches and breaking out anew well beyond its previous limits. Every available man was called to the scene, and the fight against the blaze lasted all through Saturday night and Sunday, and was still in progress Monday morning.

While this fire was threatening the timber in the Bull Run reserve, word was received of another and equally serious fire that had broken out along the banks of Oak Grove creek, on the southern slope of Mt. Hood. Forest rangers were busy there, too, and the few settlers on that side of the mountain were called on for aid. Owing to the practical isolation of the Oak Grove creek region, much time was needed to get an adequate force of fire-fighters within reach of the blaze, which gave the flames good headway before the attack began.

Sloth and Diligence.

Sloth said to Diligence: "You work too hard. For two days now you have been busy plowing that field. I hear Ingenuity has invented a plow driven by steam. Why not get one to plow for you while you sit with me in the shade and enjoy life?"

Diligence bought the plow which would plow a field in a fraction of the time it had taken him to do it. But instead of sitting in the shade he put more land into cultivation, and it took all his time to attend to the plow and see that it worked properly.

When harvest time came he had more to do than ever on account of the new land he had cultivated.

Harvest over, Sloth went to pay Diligence a visit, saying to himself, "Now he will have a little more time to talk to me." But he found him conferring with Ingenuity in regard to a larger, more powerful plow, that he might next season put still more land in cultivation.

Moral.—There is no cure for diligence.—Boston Journal.

Pigs as Watchdogs.

In some parts of Mexico the wild hogs, which the natives call jabalis (bah-bah-lee), savage beasts in their natural state, are used as watchdogs. If they are caught young and brought up with goats they will go out into the hills with the herd and fight off coyotes or other wild animals; if they are raised with chickens they will protect them, and round a ranch house at night they are as useful as any dog.

Although fierce by nature, they can be tamed until they follow their master round like a dog. The landlord of a hotel in one of the border towns even keeps one of the wild hogs as a playmate for his baby son.

The jabali is only first cousin, however, to the domestic pig. Swine are divided into two main branches. In one line is the farmer's pig, descended from the wild hog of Europe, and in the other is the jabali, which is really a peccary. But the jabali is quite "piggy" enough with his small flexible snout, long mottled bristles and long sharp tusks.

Ways of the Butcher Bird.

Some call it the butcher bird, but the real name is shrike. It is one of the oddest birds we have, because it represents a creature that is changing its type. Should you happen to walk through the country and come across a thorn tree with a small garter snake or a mouse impaled on a spike you may know that a shrike is around. Originally the bird was insectivorous and spent its time eating grasshoppers and such like. Somehow it got a taste of mouse or perhaps a smaller bird that it killed in a fight. It liked the meal, and naturally the bill of fare was extended to include mice, snakes and lizards. Very foxy is the shrike. It had no talons to tear its prey apart, so it hit on the plan of impaling the victim upon a thorn, where it could dine leisurely and on the installment plan. The butcher bird is about nine inches long and looks something like a mocking bird.—Philadelphia North American.

The Tyranny of Wills.

Many petty tyrants have sought to impose their will on posterity. Henry Budd, who died in 1862, gave proof in his will of a prejudice against mustaches. "In case my son Edward shall wear mustaches," he stipulated, "then the devise hereinbefore contained in favor of him of my estate called Pepper Park shall be void, and I devise the same estate to my son William, his appointees, heirs and assigns. And in case my said son William shall wear mustaches then the devise hereinbefore contained in favor of him of my estate called Twickenham Park shall be void, and I devise the same estate to my son Edward." Presumably the sons accepted that close shave for a fortune.—London Spectator.

A Mighty Workman.

Mrs. McTavish (to neighbors)—Is it true that your Jock started to work in the pit last Monday? Mrs. Christie (her face glowing with pride)—Quite true, Mrs. M., and, what's more, I see by the papers that there's been two thousand mair tons o' coal shipped last week than ever has before! I aye said Jock had the makin' o' a guld collier!—London Globe.

Fires in Holland.

Fires of any size are so scarce in Holland that the city of Rotterdam, with a population of over 400,000, has practically no fire department, while the prevalence of canals offers an ever ready water supply to fight any fires which might occur.

Long and Short of It.

"Mr. Blinks," said So, "do you think that anticipation is greater than realization?" "Well," replied Mr. Blinks, "anticipation is broader and higher, but realization is longer and flatter."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Pitched Battle.

"From the viewpoint of an innocent bystander," philosophically remarked the old codger, "I believe that the keenest competition I know of occurs when two chronic dyspeptics get together and compare their symptoms."—Judge.

War Lances.

The war lance of the middle ages was about sixteen feet long. The present day lance rarely exceeds eleven feet.

There is no greater delight than to be conscious of sincerity on self examination.—Mencius.

Dante's Fierce Retort.

The secret of Dante's struggle through life was in the reckless sarcasm of his answer to the Prince of Verona, who asked him how he could account for the fact that in the household of princes the court fool was in greater favor than the philosopher. "Similarity of mind," said the fierce genius, "is all the world over the source of friendship."

SUBURB LOSES POLICE

John Gillette Resigns as Guardian of Mountain View

John Gillette, who for some time has been special police officer at Mountain View, has resigned and turned in his star. The council will be asked to make provision for his successor.

Mr. Gillette resigned because he tried too hard to do what was right. Aside from Mr. Gillette, Mountain View has in its midst a tabernacle within which certain religious enthusiasts nightly hold meetings. And sometimes they hold them in between nights, too. Some of the neighbors who do not attend the tabernacle have said the place was pretty near a nuisance; and last week somebody evidently not in sympathy with the meetings heaved a few broken bricks and assorted rocks through the windows.

An appeal was made to Mr. Gillette to get on the trail of the criminals. Mr. Gillette didn't feel able to take the job, so he asked a friend to do it for him, and clothed the friend with authority by giving him his special police star. The friend did his best, but he didn't make a hit, and Monday some Mountain View people wanted to have him pinched for "impersonating an officer."

Mr. Gillette said he gave the star to his friend in good faith, the friend said he thought he was deputized in good faith, Chief Shaw said that he knew Mr. Gillette had done what he thought was right—but so many folk had so much to say about the incident that Mr. Gillette thought it best to end the squabble by turning in his star. Chief Shaw says Mr. Gillette has been an efficient and useful officer; and the council will be asked to appoint a man who will continue to make the law respected in the suburban community.

WILSON GAINS POINT

President Brings Germany to Terms on Submarine Warfare

People who have believed that President Wilson knew his business were more than pleased this week when announcement was made that Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, had notified Secretary Lansing that his government had determined upon a modification of its plan of submarine warfare, and that henceforth no enemy ships engaged in passenger traffic would be sunk until after passengers had been warned and given an opportunity to escape. The new rule will not apply to vessels that resist submarines.

Germany's action in this matter is a great triumph for President Wilson, and his methods of calm but steadfast diplomacy. The ruling not only safeguards citizens of the United States who may be upon the high seas; but embodies the broad principles of humanity for which President Wilson has been conducting a campaign. The successful termination of this campaign adds new laurels to those already won by President Wilson, and marks him more than ever a leader in advanced world affairs.

Republican papers that have been short-sighted enough to condemn the President, and Roosevelt and Bryan, who have shown open hostility to him and who have hampered the executive whenever possible, will now have an opportunity to eat crow, or to furnish lame explanations of their politics.

FINE CONCERT GIVEN

Springwater Folk Turn Out To Hear Real Musicals

Last Saturday evening a concert of more than usual excellence was given in the Springwater church, and many people from nearby communities attended. A well trained chorus, under the direction of David Homer, rendered Dudley Buck's "Hymn to Music" and Sullivan's "Lost Chord," while for an encore Webb's "When Winds Breathe Soft" was given. A male quartet sang two songs that were well received.

Others on the program were Mrs. C. F. Aue and Miss Minnie B. Aue, violin soloists; Miss Mary Folsom and Miss Rachel Reed at the piano; Fred Homer, baritone; Harold Homer, tenor, and C. F. Aue, cello. Refreshments were served after the concert.

DYNAMITE ENDS LIFE

Boring Farmer Blows Self to Atoms With Stump Powder

Gottfried Boese, who lives near Boring, on the Damascus-Boring road, complained of stomach ache early Wednesday morning, got up from bed, put on some of his clothes, and went out of the house. A few minutes later his wife heard a terrific explosion near the house.

Investigation showed that Boese had taken 25 sticks of dynamite, sat down upon them under an apple tree, and lighted the fuse. His body was literally blown to bits, and his remains were scattered in all directions. Mr. Boese had been an inmate of the insane asylum some time previously, but had been released as convalescent. His father and mother had both ended their lives by hanging themselves.

Aside from his widow, the dead man is survived by three sons. Coroner Hempstead investigated the suicide, but deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Self Sacrifice.

No man has ever sacrificed himself in the common meaning of that phrase, which is self sacrifice for another alone. Men make daily sacrifice for others, but it is for their own sake first. They must content their own spirit first. A man must feel better for doing a duty than he would for shirking it.

Take the case of the Berkeley Castle, a British troopship crowded with soldiers and their wives and children. There was room in the boats for the women and children only. The colonel lined up his regiment on the deck and said, "It is our duty to die that they may be saved." There was no murmur, no protest. The boats carried away the women and children. When the death moment came the colonel and his officers took their several posts, the men stood at "present," and so, as on dress parade, with their flag flying and the drums beating, they went down, a sacrifice to duty for duty's sake. They were soldiers with a soldier's pride—a soldier's self respect. They had to content a soldier's spirit.—Mark Twain.

Brush Your Tongue.

Brush your teeth. By all means brush your teeth religiously and well, but for pity's sake brush your tongue too. Wield your brush backward and forward, under and over, to the north, to the south, to the east and west, scour it with fervor, for it is in truth a tiny forest of dense foliage wherein lurks the unseen enemy.

Every time you open your mouth a whole regiment of little microbes charge through the aperture and take up quarters somewhere in the confines of your chewing apparatus. Seek them out and annihilate them before sleep enfolds you, for, fortified with an enormous capacity for work, they rest not, neither do they weary, and you may awaken in the morning to find whole companies firmly entrenched in the middle of your tongue. If you can't conceive of your own particular organ being so invaded take a microscope and mirror and get busy.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Terrible Abyss.

The greatest ocean depth yet sounded is 31,200 feet, near the island of Guam. If Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain, were plucked from its seat and dropped into this spot the waves would roll 2,000 feet about its crest. Into this terrible abyss the waters press down with a force more than 10,000 pounds to the square inch. The stanchest ship ever built would be crumpled under this awful pressure like an egg shell under a steam roller. A pine beam fifteen feet long which held open the mouth of the trawl used in making a cast at a depth of more than 18,000 feet was crushed flat as if it had been passed between rollers. The body of the man who should attempt to venture to such depths would be compressed until the flesh was forced into the interstices of the bone and his trunk was no larger than a rolling pin. Still the body would reach the bottom.—Pearson's Weekly.

How Plants Die.

That plants die like animals we all know, but we do not know the exact moment when they die. For hours a dead plant seems alive. There is no twitch, no death spasm. A scientist has, however, succeeded not only in noting the precise moment when a plant gives up its life, but in recording its death spasm. The plant is heated very gradually so as to avoid all excitation. This is done by placing the plant in a water bath the temperature of which is continuously raised by the application of a gas or spirit flame. At 60 degrees C. a spasmodic extraction takes place. All attempts to obtain response after this fall, even though the plant is cooled down to its normal temperature. This death temperature of 60 degrees is constant for all plants.

Eyes of a Bird.

Fishes and birds have an advantage over human beings in their ability to see on both sides of them. Their eyes are set not for looking straight ahead, but for looking out on each side. That is because they balance their bodies to right or to left, while we balance forward and backward. A bird can watch the tips of both wings at once. The pilot of an airplane has to turn his head from side to side to see his wing tips.

Foreshadowed.

Madge—Why did you throw him over? Mabel—He would have been a very parsimonious husband. Madge—But he fairly lavished money on you during the engagement. Mabel—Yes; but as soon as we began to talk honeymoon the first thing he did was to look up excursion rates.—Judge.

Inconsistency.

Mrs. Bacon—He's a very inconsistent man. Mrs. Egbert—Indeed? "Yes. Why, he tried to break his boy of being left handed, and he could only punish the little fellow with his left hand."—Yonkers Statesman.

A Great Effort.

"Quiet, children, quiet!" says the German mother in Fliegende Blätter. "Father is tired to death. He wrote a letter today that will go so very far—all the way to America!"

Take Along a Hammer.

She—Have you been up to break bread with the new bride and groom yet? He—No! I'm not feeling very strong.—Boston Transcript.

The virtue of prosperity is temperance. The virtue of adversity is fortitude.

The Vinegar Bible.

A copy of the "Vinegar Bible" may be seen at Newchurch church, Isle of Wight. It is a name given to an edition of the Bible published in 1717 at the Clarendon Press, Oxford. A misprint in the title of the twentieth chapter of St. Luke was made to read "Parable of the Vinegar" instead of "Parable of the Vineyard."

Bigger Tires At Lower Prices

Sizes 30 x 3 1/2 and 30 x 3

This year we have added to Goodyear Small-size tires these three vast improvements:

We have added 20% to the air capacity, which means much added size. The larger a tire the more it will carry, as you know. Or the longer it will carry any certain load.

We have added 30% to the side wall strength. That's where constant bending breaks a thin-walled tire—just above the rim.

And we've improved the tire's design in new ways found to give it added strength.

Cost $317,000

These improvements, on this year's output, will cost us $317,000.

Yet this year we made another big price reduction—our third in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Super Tires

These are Goodyear tires which we have bettered—the leading tires. They have for years, on sheer merit, outsold any other.

Now we have added vast extra capacity. We have added much extra strength. No other tires in the world in these sizes give such value for the money.

Be sure that you get them.

MARKET IS DEAD

Oregon City Booths for Farmers are Ordered Discontinued

The public market in the county seat is a thing of the past, and bids fair to remain so unless there is a radical change of feeling on the part of Oregon City people. At a recent meeting of the Board of Trade, which originated the market, and which provided a location at Fifth and Main streets, voted to discontinue further efforts owing to lack of local support.

The public market in Oregon City—as elsewhere—has been bitterly fought by merchants, and so successful has been their fight that people have not given the market enough patronage to attract farmers. After several efforts to revive the proposition, the plans of the Board of Trade have been dropped, and the old market stalls will be torn down and placed in storage indefinitely.

PAVING IS TESTED

Freight Train Bumps over New Street Surface at Night

Main street's new paving, of which the county seat is so proud, received a severe test Thursday night of last week, when a Portland Railway, Light & Power company freight train left the rails on lower Main street and wended its merry way over the new asphaltic concrete. The pavement was scarcely dented by the flanges; though when power was applied to drag the runaway cars back to the track half an inch or so of the surfacing was scraped off.

Captain Worswick, in charge of the paving job, said that if the pavement had set a little longer, the cars would have been hurt more than the street. As it was, the quality of the new pavement was well shown by the unusual and unexpected test applied.

Newspaperman Recommends It

R. R. Wentworth of the St. James, (Mo.) News, writes: "Two months ago I took a severe cold which settled in my lungs and I had such pains in my lungs that I feared pneumonia. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and it straightened me up immediately. I can recommend it to be a genuine cough and lung medicine." Many mothers write this reliable medicine cured their children of croup. Hay fever and asthma sufferers say it gives quick relief.—Jones Drug Co.

Slater Has Troubles

At noon last Thursday Frank Slater, of Parkplace, was arrested by the sheriff's office, charged with beating up his family. Three hours later, while Slater was occupying a cell in the county jail, he was served with summons and complaints in a divorce suit, filed by his wife, who charges that he has mistreated her and threatened to carve her with a knife. The Slaters were married in Butte in 1910.
