WOMEN TO KEEP TABSMembers of Congress to be Watched in Suffrage Fight

Members of the National Union for Woman Suffrage are planning to go to Washington, D. C., in force this fall, and will index every member of the Senate and House, so as to tell exactly where he stands and to leave no stone unturned to bring him into line. Mrs. Lucia Grimes, an expert in research work, and Mrs. A. Lowell, a student of history, are coming to Washington to take charge of this indexing. They will ascertain whether each member of the Senate or House is married or single, what business he is in, what church he attends, and what interests, if any, influence him. This information will be used, legitimately, of course, to induce him to support the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

Mrs. Edward Breitung of Michigan, who gave $1500.00 to start the woman suffrage campaign in her own state will take a house in Washington next winter. Her home will be a favorite gathering place for the society women of the suffrage movement and will add much to the social side of the campaign. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, of New York, will spend much of her time in Washington, where, with other New York women, she will urge Empire State Congressmen to vote and work for the Anthony amendment.

A TRIPLE SCARE

By SADIE OLCOTT

Mrs. Carpenter returned from shopping and rang the bell of her dwelling. The maid who admitted her looked at her, surprised.

"What's the matter, Ellen?" asked the mistress.

"La' sakes, mum! I thought you'd come in and was upstairs."

Mrs. Carpenter thought nothing of this. The maid went back to the kitchen, and the lady went up to her room. Standing before a dresser was herself!

Mrs. Carpenter put her hand to her forehead, then rested it on the doorpost for support. Her double was arranging her toilet, looking at herself in a mirror. On hearing some one at the door she turned her face and, seeing Mrs. Carpenter, exclaimed:

"My gracious!"

"Who-o-o are you?" asked Mrs. Carpenter, gasping.

"Who are you?" was the reply. "I'm Margaret Carpenter."

"So am I!"

There was an interval of silence, during which each woman regarded the other with obvious terror. The woman before the glass showed signs of fainting.

"Oh, my heavens!" she cried. "Have I lost my mind?"

"Do go away!" begged Mrs. Carpenter.

"Go away yourself. What do you mean by coming into my house, as though you were I? Oh, my! Can it be that?"

She looked again at Mrs. Carpenter, then buried her face in her hands. The latter staggered to the head of the stairs, held tight to the banister, descended and tottered into the kitchen.

"Ellen!" she moaned.

"What is it, mum?" asked the girl, frightened at her mistress' appearance.

"Who is it upstairs?"

"I don't know, mum. You came in ten minutes ago and went to your room, and now you have come in again."

"Then there really is some one there. I'm not gone daft."

"I don't know, mum. I'll go and see."

"Do," moaned the mistress.

Ellen ran upstairs and was back again in a couple of minutes looking much troubled. She was very pale.

"I knew it," cried Mrs. Carpenter. "I've received a stroke. Oh, Ellen!"

And she fell back into a chair.

There was a sound of a latchkey in the front door, and Mr. Carpenter walked in. He saw the swish of a skirt on the landing above. His wife had fainted in the kitchen, and the maid was trying to keep her from falling to the floor. Mr. Carpenter went upstairs to his wife's room and saw her standing before the dresser. He was surprised to see the blinds closed.

"Why, my dear," he exclaimed, "why shut out the light?"

"I'm afraid I've had something break in my brain."

"Break in your brain? What do you mean?"

"I've seen myself."

"In the mirror, of course."

"No; standing in the doorway where you are now. It's gone."

"Vanished?"

"No; it went downstairs."

"Calm yourself. Some one who resembles you was here."

He approached her, but she drew away. "Go downstairs," she said, "and see if I am there." He stood irresolute for a moment, and she gave him an appealing look. "Steady, my dear." She sank on the lounge. "I'll be back in a moment. You have mistaken some one for yourself."

He ran down the stairs, passed into the living room, then the dining room, and, pushing a swinging door, stood in the kitchen. There on a chair, pale as a ghost, supported by the maid, was his wife. She gave him an appealing glance.

"Oh, Henry," she cried, "I'm afraid something awful has happened to me!"

"Great Scott!" cried the man, "I'm afraid something awful has happened to me!"

"Has she gone?"

"Are you Margaret or is the woman upstairs Margaret?"

"Then there is really some one there?"

"A woman who looks exactly like you, only the blinds are closed and I couldn't see distinctly."

An explanation occurred simultaneously to both Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter righted herself. The front door was heard to close. Mr. Carpenter ran into the hall and opened the door just in time to see the swish of a skirt around the corner. He stood thinking, then ran upstairs into his wife's room and opened a jewelry box in which his wife kept her jewels. It was empty. Going to the landing, he called:

"Margaret, come up here."

Mrs. Carpenter, considering the fright she had been under, went upstairs and into her room with remarkable rapidity. There stood her husband with her empty jewel box in his hands.

"You've been fooled," he said.

"How—where—what?"

"Some woman resembling you has scared you out of your wits and taken your jewels."

"The horrid thing!"

The police were put on the case and the woman was arrested, but the jewels were not recovered. The thief had seen Mrs. Carpenter and, struck with the likeness to herself, had resolved to play a game for some plunder. And she played it well.

School Change Proposed

Gladstone school patrons are considering dropping the two high school grades now maintained in their building, so as to reduce the school tax, which is now eight mills. Failure of the proposed union high school plan has made the change seem desirable; and if it is made, Gladstone high school pupils will attend the Oregon City high school.

An Exclusive Decoration.

Among the most inaccessible of decorations is the Grand Cross of the Russian Order of St. George, founded by Catherine the Great in 1793. In all its history of more than 150 years there have been but four Russians to receive the grand cross. The first was the Empress Catherine herself, who assumed it ex officio. The late Grand Duke Michael Nicholasievitch, having received the inferior grades in the Crimean and Caucasian wars, was awarded the grand cross for his achievements as commander in chief of the Russian army in Asia Minor during the war with Turkey in 1877. His brother, Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholasievitch, was on the same occasion elected a knight grand cross of the order for his victorious leadership of the Russian forces in Europe to San Stefano, within sight of the walls of Constantinople, while Czar Alexander II. was persuaded by the knights of the order to don its grand cross on the occasion of the celebration of the centennial of its foundation.

Giraffes and Telephone Wires.

At a recent meeting of the Institution of Electrical Engineers in London W. L. Preece told of the damage done to telephone systems in the tropics by animals. The giraffes in East Africa, he said, have not sense enough to duck their heads when they find a telephone or telegraph wire across their tracks, but push on and carry the wires and sometimes the poles with them. While ants eat the telegraph poles if these are of any wood but teak. He showed a telephone instrument that had been used as a hive by bees, which entered by the slot for the switch hook and formed inside a comb that was renewed as often as it was cleared away by the engineers. Spiders also destroy the insulation by spinning over the wires webs that when saturated by dew reduce the insulation resistance to a few ohms.

Ancient Iceland.

Iceland was founded A. D. 874 by men from Norway. In the words of John Fiske, "It was such a wholesale colonization of picked men as had not been seen since ancient Greek times and was not to be seen again until Winthrop sailed into Massachusetts bay. It was not long before the population of Iceland was 50,000. Their sheep and cattle flourished, hay crops were heavy, a lively trade—with fish, oil, butter and skins in exchange for meal and malt—was kept up with Norway, Denmark and the British Isles. Political freedom was unimpaired, justice was fairly well administered, naval superiority kept all foes at a distance, and under such conditions the growth of the new community in wealth and culture was surprisingly rapid."

Disliked Egotism.

"What's the matter with you?" asked his wife.

"I'm feeling lonely," was the reply. "Don't you like this town?"

"I don't like this earth."

"What's the objection to it?"

"People are too egotistical. If there is anything I hate it's egotism. And when I see kings going about confidently and doing things wrong, and diplomats trying all sorts of insincere tricks with complete effrontery, and lawyers seeking applause for arguing on the wrong side of a case, and everybody displaying utter selfishness without a blush, I am forced to the conviction that I am the only consistently moral gentleman on this globe. And it makes me feel lonely."—Exchange.

Ebony.

Ebony of the best quality comes from India, Ceylon and other tropical countries, where it is obtained in logs sometimes fifteen and twenty feet long. The darkness of the wood increases with the age of the tree. It is a very hard wood, and hence it is desirable for furniture making. Its unique color, too, makes it always worthy of notice, and it was combined with ivory by the Greeks to bring out its color.

Not For Her.

"I don't see how you can tolerate that man."

"Oh, but he is a foreign nobleman, my dear!"

"I don't care," said the other girl. "I'll be jiggered if I'd marry a man who does his courting with a bored air."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PASTOR REALLY WORKS

George Nelson Edwards Lives for Day by "Sweat of His Brow"

The Rev. George Nelson Edwards, pastor of the Congregational church in the county seat, isn't afraid of work, and has proved it. Last week on his way back from a vacation at one of the Tillamook beaches, the minister put in a day's labor on a threshing crew working upon the ranch of J. W. Kohler, at Carlton. Dr. Edwards took the job because Kohler was unable to muster enough men for a threshing crew; and after his day's labor Mr. Kohler said that the divine had worked as well as any other member of the outfit.

Possibly from information gathered while laboring in the field, the Rev. Dr. Nelson on Sunday night preached upon the subject: "Industrial Unrest and Industrial Peace." People who heard him said he seemed to be in thorough sympathy with the troubles of the man who has to earn his living in the trades.

HEAVY WHEAT YIELD

Man Near Canby Has Remarkable Record on Six Acre Field

A yield of one hundred and seven bushels of wheat per acre, or 642 bushels from six acres, is the amount of grain which G. W. Scramlin reports he threshed this week from the six acres wheat field, concerning which an account appeared in these columns several weeks ago. These figures denote the amount of grain by machine measure, which is less than the actual amount of the grain in weight, as Mr. Scramlin says the grain weighs out quite a bit heavier than it measures.

From another field of spring wheat that was sown on March 10th was harvested an average yield of 40 bushels per acre, which Mr. Scramlin also considered pretty good.

From a total of twenty-one and one-half acres of oats and wheat were harvested 1209 bushels of grain, machine measure, which Mr. Scramlin estimates will weigh out easily 1500 bushels in weight.

The six-acre field of wheat, with a yield of 107 bushels to the acre would seem to be the record for grain grown in this section this year. The grain was of the Shading Challenge variety. The soil was fertilized with commercial fertilizer and put into good condition before the crop was sown, the fertilizing costing about $15 to the acre, and the amount of seed sown was less than usually sown to the acre. Mr. Scramlin is well pleased with the results and says it demonstrates, at least to him, the value of fertilizing and building up the soil and getting it in first class condition ready for the crop to be put in.—(Canby Herald.)

House Is Burned

Sunday morning fire completely destroyed the house occupied by a Slavonian family in the Mountain View district. Though an alarm was turned in, members of the department did not arrive in time to be of much aid. None of the occupants of the house were injured in the fire, which originated in a defective flue.

IS YOUR SPINAL COLUMN PLUMB?

Showing curvature of the spine. Natural position of the spine.

HERE are so many contributing causes which lead to a defective spinal column, that to enumerate them would require an almost exhaustive review of life from cradle to grave.

The position assumed by the child at the school desk, or the man or woman while at work, suggests the tendency for abnormal spinal curvature; also a fall or bruise, no matter how slight, may easily throw the spinal column out of plumb, and these may cause the fatal pressure upon the nerves and throttle the life giving currents, leading to disease of the organs.

Chiropractic Adjusts Spinal Defects

It lifts the pressure from the nerves, permitting them to nourish the famished and worn out tissues and organs. Nature is then able to bring about normal conditions, which mean Health.
