

MOTER FINDS BOY

California Woman Reunited to Son With Sheriff's Aid

Kidnapped under mysterious circumstances in Oakland, Cal., last February, Gerald Warner, four and a half years old, was returned to his mother last week, the boy being found with Mrs. Lewis Cohn, in Milwaukie. The story of the recovery of the child reads like a romance, and in it Sheriff Wilson figures as the hero.

Gerald Warner is the son of Mrs. A. Warner, of Oakland, who some time ago secured a divorce from her husband. Following the divorce, the child was kidnapped while at play in front of his house, and no clue to those who took him was found. Mrs. Warner subsequently searched for him in the Hawaiian islands and even in Mexico, as well as in many American cities. But she found no definite trace of the lad until a month ago, when she received an anonymous letter saying the boy was in Portland.

The mother wrote to the Portland police, and after considerable work members of the detective bureau found reason to believe that the child was in this county. They wrote to the mother to that effect and also notified Sheriff Wilson that there was a "case" here for him. Mrs. Warner sent the sheriff a photograph of the boy, and knowing the mother's grief, the sheriff did what he could to locate the lad. Deputies were instructed to look for the child, and finally a clue was obtained that led to Milwaukie.

Friday of last week Mrs. Warner reached Oregon City, and in the evening she and Mr. Wilson went to the "border town" at the north end of the county, where they slouched around with Deputy Sheriff Sam Riley and a neighbor of the Cohns, who had furnished the officers with a "tip." Finding conclusive evidence that the child was in the house, the sheriff and Mrs. Warner returned the following day, and while the child was at play the mother rushed up and secured him.

It took the boy only a few seconds to recognize his mother, once she had spoken to him and reminded him of the scenes and events of his earlier childhood; and with tears of joy streaming down his face the little fellow hugged his mother and exclaimed: "Oh, I am so glad to be with you again." During the time the child had been in the custody of Mrs. Cohn he had been taught to regard himself as "John Cohn"; but he said that aside from this change in his identity—which puzzled him somewhat—he had been well treated.

Mrs. Warner was content to have her child again, and expressed no desire to prosecute Mrs. Cohn. In view of this Sheriff Wilson made no detailed inquiries into the case; and beyond the statement that the former husband probably engineered the kidnapping, Mrs. Warner would vouchsafe no opinions. Monday the mother and child were on their way to their home in California.

For his part in the recovery of the boy Mrs. Warner expressed the warmest gratitude to the sheriff; and little Gerald Warner said before he left that Mr. Wilson was one of the nicest men he had ever met. During the brief period that he saw the sheriff the little fellow and the big officer became the best of pals, and it was with genuine sorrow that they bade each other goodbye when time to go to California arrived.

Regarding the above incident the Portland Oregonian, of September 14, says:

BOY FOUND BY DETECTIVE

Information Given by H. H. Hawley Leads to Family Reunion

H. H. Hawley, city detective, yesterday was congratulated on his part in the finding of Gerald Warner, kidnapped last February from Oakland, Cal., and recovered from the home of Mrs. Lewis Cohn at Milwaukie, Or. On the information that he furnished to the Clackamas County authorities, the lad was restored to his mother who took him yesterday back to their home in Oakland.

On February 6 the Portland police received a letter from Mrs. Warner of her son's disappearance and Detective Hawley was placed on the case. On August 15 he made a report, telling where the boy was to be found, even to the postoffice box and telephone of the Cohn house, in Clackamas county. This information was forwarded to Mrs. Warner at Oakland, and she came North. It was on the suggestion of the Portland authorities that she took the matter up with Sheriff Wilson, of Clackamas county. The house had been pointed out by Detective Hawley and all that remained was to conduct the mother to the place.

HEALTH WEEK PLANNED

New Impetus to be Given War Upon Tuberculosis Cases

Plans for a national Medical Examination Day, a Children's Health Crusade Day, and a Tuberculosis Sunday, all to be held in Tuberculosis Week, December 6th to 12th, were announced today by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Medical Examination Day is set for Wednesday, December 8th, and will be the first effort on a national scale to urge an annual physical examination for everyone. Plans for the day include an appeal to induce everyone, sick and well, to see a doctor and learn whether they are in good physical condition. The scheme includes also the inauguration on the part of factories, stores, and offices of an annual physical examination for all employees. Thousands of anti-tuberculosis associations, other societies, and dispensaries all over the country are expected to cooperate in furnishing free examinations for those not able to pay a physician.

Children's Health Crusade Day on Friday, December 10th, is planned to interest and instruct school children in healthful living. Special exercises will be held at which lectures, essays and playlets will be given on the subject of health. This will also be the occasion for launching the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale in the schools. The culmination of the campaign will be the sixth annual celebration of Tuberculosis Sunday. Last year on Tuberculosis Day over 100,000 churches gave attention to the subject of tuberculosis by sermons, talks and announcements. The governors of all the states will be asked to issue proclamations calling attention to the importance of increasing the knowledge of the public on how to avoid consumption. Clubs, lodges, and societies will be asked to consider the subject at a meeting either on Tuberculosis Sunday or some other day of Tuberculosis Week.

MORE ABOUT WEEDS

Agricultural College Again Comes to Bat to Aid Farmer

Since its inquiry regarding the best methods to eradicate weeds, the Courier has been favored with two bits of advice from the Oregon Agricultural College. One was published a week or so ago, and the second helpful hint comes in time for this week's issue, and is here given.

Repeated hoe cutting at the surface of the ground and salting the area affected is the recommendation for eradicating spreading dogbane made by H. S. Hammond, instructor of botany at the Oregon Agricultural College. It is practicable to do so the infested land should be put into thorough cultivation for two or three seasons, thoroughly harrowing the land after it is plowed and gathered stems and roots for burning. A somewhat easier method of control but one requiring repeated going over is to

POOR CLOVER SEED

Uncle Sam Issues Warnings Against Imported Offerings

In an effort to protect the farmer from the waste brought on by the purchase of imported clover seed of low grade, the Department of Agriculture issues the following statement: "Since July 15, 1915, twenty-six lots of crimson clover seed have been imported. In three of these lots, containing enough seed to sow over 2,850 acres, there was no seed that could be expected to grow under field conditions. The seed in five other lots, aggregating enough to sow 8,600 acres, germinated only from 45 per cent to 55 per cent. The importation of this seed, together with 1,000,000 pounds of seed of low germination imported during May and June makes it more important than ever that farmers should know the germination of the crimson clover seed they are seed-ing. As the Department is without power to prevent the admission of seed of low germination, unless particular attention is given to the germination of crimson clover seed this fall many crop failures are sure to result from sowing dead seed."

now the tops off above the ground whenever they reach a height of 6 or 8 inches. The success of this method depends upon not permitting the plants to mature seeds.

"PROFS" KEEP BUSY

O. A. C. Experts in Demand at Smaller Community Fairs

The week ending September 11 was a very busy one for specialists of the Agricultural College Extension Division who were called upon to act as judges of various county and community fairs held in Oregon. E. B. Pitts, W. S. Brown and Miss Anna Turley judged the exhibits of the George community fair and the Estacada East Clackamas fair, Professor Pitts giving a lecture and Miss Turley a demonstration at the latter. These three judges, in addition to Professor A. G. Bouquet and J. E. Larsen, officiated at the Seio Linn County fair; Professors Pitts and Griffin at Medford, September 10; Professor Reynolds at Baker on the same date and Professor W. A. Barr at the Coos and Curry County fair, Myrtle Point, September 10 and 11.

MODEL FARM SHOWN

Lebanon Man Has Interesting Display at Panama Fair

F. M. Sherman, of Lebanon, has just reconstructed his ten-acre farm exhibit, in the Oregon section of the Palace of Agriculture. This now contains 80 varieties of wheat, 38 of potatoes, 23 of barley, 26 of oats, five kinds of clover, two kinds of vetch, many kinds of grasses, vegetables, dried and canned fruits, an endless variety of seeds, and a score of other products possible to a ten-acre farm. The exhibit is placed without embellishment, though it is decidedly attractive in arrangement, and is intended to give the farmer an exact idea of what is possible on Willamette Valley soil.

The varieties are there for comparative purpose, and all grains and grasses are tied with binding twine, rather than ribbon. Mr. Sherman says he will produce more than 500 different varieties of products this year. He has farmed eight acres for eight years and placed himself in excellent financial circumstances, though he had but $30 and ill health to start with. One year ago last February he added two acres at $325 per acre, and the knowing ones laughed. Mr. Sherman won second at the state fair last year and is exhibiting there also this year.

HONORS ARE PAID

New Era Couple Greeted by Friends On Golden Wedding Day

Last Sunday, September 12, at their home in New Era, Mr. and Mrs. David McArthur celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. The Warner Grange, led by Fred Chinn, Master of the Grange, came in several dozen strong and the Grand Army and the Women's Relief Corps were represented by 15 of each order. A dinner was served and the day was passed in a very pleasant and profitable manner.

Old hymns were sung and old time music rendered on piano and violin.

Mr. and Mrs. McArthur are natives of Scotland and were school mates in their childhood. In later years they met again on this side of the ocean and became sweethearts. They were married in Alleghany county, Pennsylvania. They were the parents of nine children, all of whom are living, as well as 33 grand children, four daughters and two sons, four sons-in-law and two daughters-in-law. These were present to celebrate the occasion.

One son, Frank, had not been home for seven years and greatly surprised his parents the day previous.

Mr. McArthur was one of the first to enlist when Lincoln called for 75000 men for three months' service, and he afterward re-enlisted for four years.

Mr. and Mrs. McArthur were the recipients of a number of valuable presents. Mr. Fred Chinn, in a neat little speech in behalf of the grange of which they were members, presented Mr. McArthur with a gold clock and Mrs. McArthur with a gold headed silk umbrella. Mrs. R. M. C. Brown, in behalf of the W. R. C. in a few well chosen words presented Mrs. McArthur with a gold emblem pin. Commander Clyde, of the G. A. R. in touching language gave Comrade McArthur a gold emblem pin from the old boys of the Post. Several presents from children and friends in the form of gold coins and rings and pins were also presented. The good people were deeply touched by the loyal friendship shown by all present.

The following ladies and gentlemen were present from Oregon City: Mrs. Clemmie Martin, Mesdames Mad-dock, Moore, Grant, Hobbie, Christenson, Donovan, M. E. Brown, R. M. C. Brown, London, Paetz, and Messrs. E. B. Grant, J. J. Mallatt, J. Ackley, J. Kelly, Wm. McClelland, I. Kellogg, T. Brown, J. Martin, H. S. Clyde, H. J. Roman, D. Williams and R. W. Owen.

MANY PICKERS RETURN

Trains and Boats Busy Throughout Week Bringing Folk Home

The annual exodus to the hop fields is over, and now the return flow of traffic has commenced. Starting early in the week, and increasing in density as the days have advanced, the traffic of returning pickers bids fair to swamp trains and boats in the Willamette valley. The Southern Pacific and the Oregon Electric lines are getting the greater part of the travel, and every train is crowded so that extra coaches are necessary.

The river boats, too, are also carrying capacity loads, even though the low stage of water has made travel uncertain. At Oregon City the locks have been out of commission, and passengers and freight for upper river boats have been forced to transfer at the mills; but in spite of this big barges have been cared for.

Returning pickers say that the hop season was not up to the average. Not only was the pay less, but the condition of hops in most of the yards made the amounts each person could pick much smaller than usual. The redeeming feature of the season, however, was the lack of rain; there being but few showers to dampen the spirits—and clothes—of the campers. The usual good times in the yards were reported, and a number of dances were held in the larger yards, which brought out big crowds.
