

VALLEY EXHIBIT DRAWS

Lebanon Man's Showing of Farm Produce Astounds Fair

Panama-Pacific Fair, Sept. 23:—One of the really interesting and effective exhibits offered by the state of Oregon is that ten-acre showing of F.M. Sherman, of Lebanon, just now rebuilt with fresh products. This is located in the Palace of Agriculture occupying 25x50 feet, and is inspected by hundreds of visitors each week. This exhibit shows 80 varieties of potatoes, 38 of wheat, 23 of barley, 36 of oats, 5 kinds of clover, and all kinds of grasses, plus the bamboo. There are dried and canned fruits, fresh and canned vegetables, several varieties of corn, as well as innumerable varieties of seeds, also China pheasants. There are many pictures showing the products growing on this Lebanon farm, and topping the exhibit is a fine specimen of the Barred Rock hen, by which Mr. Sherman swears. New products just placed show oats almost eight feet tall, and vetch with a 25 foot spread, common vetch eight feet in length.

Soudan grass, 72 days from seed, measures 6½ feet, and the exhibitor says that neighboring farmers, Clem Brothers, are showing Soudan grass measuring nine feet in height. He believes this grass, introduced into the United States from Egypt about four years ago, is going to prove a very superior hay grass for the Willamette valley. Besides all of this, the exhibit shows many varieties of more or less important products and the statement is that "Ideal Gardens Ranch," the somewhat ambitious valley farm, will grow this year more than 500 varieties of all kinds of produce. It is not intended to convey the idea that these 500 varieties are grown by him for commercial purpose or that Mr. Sherman specializes in any considerable number of them.

Neither is it the purpose of the exhibits to induce anyone to take up farming on a ten-acre tract in Willamette valley or anywhere else. Mr. Sherman specializes in strawberries, cantaloupes and year-round garden products, with a few chickens and minor side lines thrown in for good measure, and while the Lebanon man has done almost phenomenally well on ten acres (or 8 acres until a year ago last February, when he added two more to $325.00 an acre), he happens to be a happy combination of business man and scientific farmer. He is a man of method, of abounding energy, faith in himself, and a determination that is apparent in every move. And he has a wife who has always had flowers on the table—perhaps his greatest asset.

Others who lack any part of the combination that has entered into the success of Mr. Sherman might well hesitate about confining themselves to

UNIVERSITY TO BOOST

Exhibits Showing Resources of Each Section Are Wanted

A commercial museum of the industrial products of Oregon has been undertaken by the department of commerce of the State University, which is asking every locality to send to Eugene the following:

1 A list of all manufactures, a sketch of the development of each and the outlook for each, value of plant and output, and markets and possible markets. "We want facts, and not the extravagant claims often indulged in to the ultimate detriment of industry," says the school of commerce letter. This letter is being sent to every commercial body in Oregon.

2 Samples of manufactured products; or, if not feasible, samples of the materials, with appropriate information.

3 Samples of minerals and other natural products that have possibilities of commercial development. The purpose in establishing a permanent commercial museum is to acquaint commerce students and visitors with the state's resources, and to build up a center of practical commercial knowledge. The new school of commerce is headed by Dr. D. W. Morton, who came this September from the school of commerce of the University of Wisconsin.

ten acres, even in the Willamette Valley. The exhibit, however, together with Mr. Sherman's story, tells what one man has done for himself, shows the prolific production of countless varieties of products that will grow on Willamette Valley soil (of which that at Lebanon is typical), and offers to others the encouragement there should be in the splendid performance of a man of ordinary intelligence, dead broke ten years ago, a stranger in a strange land and in ill health—a man now risen to comparative affluence, restored to health and to social position happy in the possession of independence and a bright outlook for the future.

MORE ABOUT WEEDS

Agricultural College Experts Give Further Hints on Prevention

The method of controlling weeds by spraying is said to be growing in popularity in certain sections of Eastern Oregon. The degree of effectiveness of iron sulphate spray is reported in an experiment by Robert Withycombe, superintendent of the Eastern Oregon Experiment Station as follows: The number of mustard seeds per pound in sprayed oats was 12.65. The number in the non-sprayed oats of the same field was 26.05. The yield of grain was but slightly reduced by the treatment.

The spary was applied when the weeds were making a rapid growth and the grain ready to cover the ground. The spray injures the grain to some extent by turning the tips of the leaves brown, but it soon recovers. Not so with the mustard. Its broad, succulent leaves receive and hold larger quantities of the spray mixture, which under favorable conditions enters the tissue and destroys it. This holds the plant practically dormant while new leaves are being formed, by which time the grain has entirely covered the ground, smothering out most of the mustard plants.

The results, reports Mr. Withycombe, are not what might be expected because weather conditions were dry and windy when the spray material was applied. For these reasons the spray did not have an opportunity to work into the tissues of the plant but dried on the leaf and scaled off. The standard preparation of iron sulphate spray is 100 pounds of iron sulphate to 50 gallons of water.

A Curious Mineral

Perhaps the most curious mineral found in the United States is staurolite, otherwise known as the "fairy stone." This is an iron-aluminum silica found only in Virginia and North Carolina, the reddish-brown and brownish-black crystals occurring in well-defined single and double crosses. There is some commercial demand for the crosses as curios, which are worn as watch charms or on chains in the manner of a locket or lavalier—a demand perhaps stimulated by the quaint legend which is told of their origin; the fairies living in the caves of the mountains on hearing the sad tidings of the death of Christ, fashioned these crosses as mementoes of Him.

CHANCE FOR FUN

"Happy Canyon," at Pendleton Round. Up Will Be Worth Seeing

Pendleton, Ore., Sept. 23—"You bet."

That's exactly what you do and that's why it's the slogan and the mouthword of "Happy Canyon."

Where is "Happy Canyon?" The maps, and the encyclopedias and atlases may fail to define the location of such a place but anybody who attended the 1914 Roundup in Pendleton can tell you all about it and take a great deal of pleasure in doing so.

"Happy Canyon," literally speaking, is the institution which the Pendleton people have provided for the entertainment of the throngs which gather here during the Roundup week. It is located in a huge pavilion bordering on Main street in Pendleton, but once a visitor enters the portals of the pavilion, he very promptly forgets the outside world. Inside he sees a reproduction of a frontier town in which romance and history is so rich. Weather beaten lumber store fronts line the "street" and each proclaims its individuality in letters more bold than artistic. For instance there is the "Stagger Inn," "Spender's Bank," the "Log Cabin Saloon," the old jail, the fire house, the general store and many other places of business to remind the visitor of "the days of old and the days of gold."

Most of all there is the "Red Dog Saloon and Gambling Palace," where roulette wheels whirl, where there are faro banks, crap games and almost every other gambling game known to the frontiersman. Everybody gambles. The spirit of chance is in the air. Of course you don't place real money on the game, for modern civilization frowns upon such practice, but you bet the only medium of exchange in "Happy Canyon," the Ten Buck banknotes, issued out of "Spender's Bank."

A huge dancing pavilion, which will accommodate hundreds of couples, is just off the "Red Dog" and it commands as much patronage as the gambling palace. In these two places the entertainment lingers latest, but early in the evening an hour's programme of a thrilling, wild west nature, including a steer fight, is given before the general festivities begin.

"Happy Canyon" will close its doors this year on Sept. 25.

PAUL REVERE RIVALLED

Excited Citizen Gives County Seat Warning of Approaching Woe

Speeding madly down Main street Tuesday afternoon, when most of the population of Oregon City was at Canby looking over the fair, a driver of a Ford car shouted at the top of his lungs:

"Clear the street! Clear the street! There's a drunken jitney driver coming along behind me and the road ain't big enough for him."

People who understood the warning got in sheltering doorways, and those who didn't lined up on the curb to see what was coming off. Alone and unaided Chief of Police Shaw started for the southern end of the city to await and capture the on-rushing peril.

Presently another Ford car turned slowly around the corner where the South End road merges with the Worswick paving, and pursued a serpentine course up Main street. The driver was plainly excited, and his car lurched and twisted about as if it veritably had delirium tremens. In front of Holman's undertaking parlors it started for the property line, and stopped with the front wheels on the sidewalk.

Chief Shaw grasped the front end of the Ford in a vice-like grip, and asked the operator what was wrong.

"The ding-busted steering gear is out of whack," said the operator, who was not the least bit drunk, "and I'm trying to get the ding-busted thing to a garage so I can get it fixed, ding-bust it. I've come all the way from Canby like this, and I couldn't go more than five miles an hour, and I'm pretty ding-busted tired."

Then he got out, cranked up the sick Ford, and with the chief's blessing, continued on his odd and wayward passage to a garage.

Chief Shaw says he admires the self-sacrifice of the man who hurried alone and gave warning, but he doesn't think much of his judgment. Furthermore Chief Jones says that all automobiles and wagons that travel upon the new pavement between the hours of sunset and sunrise must be equipped with lights as provided by law. To enforce the ukase, Mayor Jones says he will appoint a special traffic cop, if necessary; so all festive travelers are hereby warned.

VERDICT IS $7100

Woman Said to Have Been Hurt in Wreck Gets Big Balm

A jury in Judge Campbell's court last week allowed Mrs. Sarah E. Dillow $7100 damages against the Southern Pacific, in payment of injuries which she testified she received while riding on a car that was struck by a freight locomotive on the west side line last April. Numerous doctors testified in regard to Mrs. Dillow's injuries, though the railroad company admitted liability at the start.

Thirty days was granted by the court for the railroad company to fill a bill of exceptions. George C. Brownell and William E. Stone appeared for the plaintiff in the case.

NEW DISPLAYS IN

Oregon Exhibit at Fair Increased as Fall Approaches

Additional exhibits are being placed in the Oregon building at the Panama-Pacific fair at San Francisco, and many of these have come from the Willamette valley. Last week the Oregon City Commercial club sent down a number of displays from this section, and other Willamette exhibits are as follows:

Willamette Valley: Globe Peaches by J. W. and W. F. Dodge, of Corvallis; Gravenstein apples, George Armstrong, Corvallis; Red Hybrid wheat, 100 bushels to the acre, E. Berchtold, Cornelius; Plums, Mr. Cornum, Eugene; Hop vines, of great interest, Fred Bynon, Salem; Bartlett Pears, W. J. Fullerton, Warren, Columbia county.

All of the booths need constant replenishing, and everything sent is used to the best advantage possible. Some of the fruit, grain and grasses, vegetables, etc., do not arrive in perfect condition, and some of it is not superior display material, but it is used whenever and wherever possible. In certain instances there is fierce competition, and the directors and representatives here get discouraged over the failure to receive answers of any sort to the hundreds of specific requests sent to well known growers, firms, associations, commercial clubs, etc. Oregon is making a creditable showing, but it could make a much better one if some more of the really superior products of all sorts grown in Oregon were forwarded.

If you are a grower of either pears, apples or fine vegetables and have even a few choice ones with which you are willing to part, you can help the situation here very materially and assist in interesting the stranger in your particular section. For display purposes in baskets, fifteen to twenty pears of any variety, if they are good looking and of uniform size, will be appreciated immensely. And even six or eight top-notch apples for plate display will make a hit. Pack the fruit well, each specimen by itself, place your name and the variety plainly on the box and send by express collect, such charges being paid here providing the box is labeled, Oregon Commission, Oregon Building, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

GEORGIA TOWN AWAKENS

Waycross Adopts Charter Given Women Privilege of Ballot

Leaders in the movement for woman suffrage are delighted with the prospect of woman suffrage in Waycross, Georgia. They believe that the enfranchisement of women in that municipality is the entering wedge that will finally open the way for equal suffrage for male and female in the South.

The Congressional Union, in a moment of joy, gave out the following statement concerning the situation in Waycross.

"At a meeting of the most prominent business men of Waycross, Georgia, a city charter was drawn up which would include citizenship for the women of Waycross. This charter was passed by the Legislature and

U. S. LEADS WORLD

This Nation Produces Greatest Wheat Crop, with Russia Second

Your Uncle Samuel will harvest 57,936,000,000 pounds of wheat this year, if statistics prepared by a London trade journal are correct. This vast crop is practically an increase of one-twelfth over the crop harvested last year, and establishes a new world's record for production. The only other nation that anywhere near approaches the wheat yield of the United States is Russia, which this year will have a crop totalling 55,200,000,000 pounds.

The United States first passed Russia as a producer of wheat in 1912, when Uncle Sam barely crept ahead of the czar as a farmer. In the next year Russia won the world's record for wheat production, but in 1914 the United States leaped to the lead again, and this year it has increased its advantage over the Slavs.

The next world nation in order of wheat production after Russia is India, with a yield of 22,992,000,000 pounds, or considerably less than half of the Russia mark. Great Britain and her possessions, including Canada, India and all other sections of the United Kingdom, cannot equal either the Russia nor the United States record, as the 1915 total for the British wheat yield is but 46,272,000,000 pounds.

These figures give some idea of the vast resources of the United States as a grain storehouse for the world. Owing to the exceptionally large yield of wheat in the British possessions this year, however, the English will not draw as heavily upon the United States as formerly.

KINDNESS.

It is easy to offer a kind act or a pleasant word. A good deed is never lost. He who sows courtesy reaps friendship, and he who plants kindness gathers love. Pleasure bestowed upon a grateful mind is never sterile, but generally begets reward.—Basil.

must now be ratified by the people of Waycross at an election on October 9. It is said that the most substantial citizens of the town are strongly desirous of municipal suffrage for the women of the city, believing that it will substantially improve conditions. The owner of a large store in Waycross voices reasons for his wish for suffrage in the following terms:

"The women of Waycross are the most substantial citizens we have, and it would seem to me that their having a voice at least in the municipal government of our city would better things for all of us, commercially as well as morally. I have always believed in equal rights for all; but this has been brought home to me particularly in the past few months, when I see the need for women in the city government of Waycross."

Have a nice parlor
when company
comes

Dear Amy:—

Of course, you absolutely MUST have a nice parlor so you can entertain company. But I believe in having a nice parlor for your own family all of the time, and that they should use it.

Children are influenced so much by their surroundings, and the best way to keep the boys at home nights, and out of mischief, is to make home attractive and happy for them.

When Baby John grows up, he shall have a nice home.

Your chum,

Lou.
