RIGHT FROM THE HEART

Valley Newspaper Hits Nail Upon Head With a Bang

Oregon country newspapers have of late been replying to appeals to patronize Oregon manufacturers by advising these manufacturers to adopt the same plan of doing business that has brought success to their eastern competitors—tell the people about it through advertising. Prior to that the newspapers printed for nothing columns without number sent out by promoters and also boosted the efforts of paid lecturers who traveled the state spreading the gospel of home industry. Well, some of the manufacturers are seeing the light and are advertising on bill boards. The newspapers were all right to carry their appeals to public spirit, and the appeals were printed in them because the appeal cost nothing—but with singular perversity when at last it is decided to invest money in advertising the surest means of impressing upon the public the merits of what is sold is neglected. As an illustration: The Independent recently closed a contract with a large eastern manufacturer of a popular prepared food. There is no sentiment about this manufacturer. He has grown rich by hammering the merits of his prepared grain into people through constant repetition through the newspapers and the placing of this contract proves that he realizes the value of the country newspaper as an advertising medium. The Oregon firm is in the same line of business, yet apparently when it decided upon uplicity it never gave a thought to the fact that the surest way of reaching the people to whom it desired to sell its product is through the papers they read. Instead, the publicity consists of a glaring bill board of which passengers on electric trains may or may not get a glimpse as they are whisked by. And possibly the next thing we will hear is that Oregon people are not loyal because they do not patronize home manufacturers. Of course the money the manufacturer spends is his own and he has a perfect right to spend it in any manner he chooses. The only excuse for newspaper criticism is the fact that the newspapers are used for appeals to public spirit in an effort to increase the output of Oregon manufacturers and then the accepted method of increasing that output is ignored.—(Hillsboro Independent.)

The Mean Thing

Night Editor McKechnie, of the Enterprise, bought a penny Portland paper Friday afternoon of last week, and offered the newsboy a five-dollar gold piece. The newsie threatened to give "Mac" 499 pennies in change, but finally decided it would be less work to trust the notable editor until he had secured some small change.

Mrs. Fred Severs, of Oreion City, was called to the bedside of her father, Mr. Hayford, of Gladstone, who has been very ill for the past three weeks.

GALLEY 10--

NO FIGHT HELD

Peace Officers Present, but not Needed at Council Meet

Rumors were rife last Friday that the adjourned council meeting scheduled for the evening was going to be a lively affair, and in some quarters it was even said that there would be at least one knock-down-and-drag-out fight. Possibly on this account it happened that Sheriff Wilson, Chief of Police Shaw, Chief Deputy Sheriff Hackett and three deputy sheriffs sat in the council chamber throughout the greater portion of the meeting.

However, all was as quiet and peaceful as a babbling brook. The second "sale" of the $12,000 worth of five percent elevator bonds, which will become due in 1924, was consummated without debate, and "with nobody voting 'no.'" Ordinances calling for the establishment of the grade and the macadam improvement of Tenth street, from Jackson to John Q. Adams streets, and for establishing the grades of various downtown alleys, all went through on greased ways, with harmony prevailing.

A new resolution for the improvement of Eighth street, from the Southern Pacific tracks to the end of the street above the river was approved, and will come up for adoption on October 6. E. G. Caulfield said that before he would sanction the improvement abutting on his property he wanted assurance that the anti-hitching-post ordinance would be enforced impartially on all the improved streets including Eighth street. He was given this assurance.

For a few minutes the council then listened to suggestions from Mr. Caulfield and others that the city and the property holders unite in building a public barn to accommodate teams driven by farmers, and the scheme was apparently generally favored. No action was taken, however.

Assessment of Main street for the Worswick improvement was declared to be $14,861.01, and property owners may protest on October 6 if they so desire. Bids for the improvement of Seventh and Tenth streets with Worswick paving were let by the council, the first job to cost $1090, and the second $832. Also $5760 was ordered paid the Standard Paving company in warrants for work already done on the new business thoroughfare.

Action on ordinances declaring the improvement of the other downtown cross streets was put over until a later meeting, owing to delay in publication of formal notices.

Harvey Cross, of counsel for the Portland & Oregon City railroad, otherwise known as the Carver Line, submitted a franchise under the Templeton public utility vehicle ordinance, granting to Mr. Carver or his assigns a franchise to operate automobile busses for the transportation of freight or passengers over all the streets and alleys of Oregon City. The franchise provides that the grantee may operate "passenger cars" propelled by gasoline, compressed air or electricity, or any other motive power except steam, for a period of five years, or until such less time as may pass before the Portland & Oregon City railroad builds into the county seat. On completion of the Carver line the franchise becomes void.

Mr. Cross explained that it was Mr. Carver's desire to run his autos not in competition with local jitneys, but to make regular schedule trips between the heart of Oregon City and Clackamas, connecting at Dedman's with trains of the Carver line for Portland and the upper Clackamas valley, and thus opening up a new territory to Oregon City trade. Mr. Cross said that he was looking forward to greater prosperity in the county, and that as soon as it came he felt sure Mr. Carver would carry out his original intentions and extend the P. & O. C. into the county seat.

The application for a jitney franchise, added Mr. Cross, had been brought about by a report that had reached Mr. Carver that the council was about to grant Earl D. Van Aukken an exclusive franchise on the streets of Oregon City.

Councilman Cox moved that the franchise be considered on first reading, and Councilman Van Aukken seconded the motion. Mayor Jones suggested that it might be wiser first to submit the matter to a committee, and upon consent of Cox and Van Aukken turned the franchise over to a joint committee consisting of Cox, Metzner and Hackett.

Councilman Van Aukken asked that final action on the weird jitney franchise that was headed in his general direction be postponed until the first regular meeting of the council in November; and Mr. Meyer moved that in the meantime the council give special privilege to operate the local jitney up the hill. This motion carried unanimously.

At this stage of the proceedings it was evident that there would be no battle-royal in the council and Sheriff Wilson and Constable Frost left the city hall.

City Engineer Miller reported a plan for the reconstruction of the hill walk up the face of the bluff on city property and upon an easier grade, and estimated the cost at approximately $200. Councilman Cox moved that the recorder advertise for bids for the work, and the motion carried.

Discussion of some plans for the paving of the downtown side streets followed, and adjournment was taken.

Certificates Filed

Three more chiropractic practitioners in the county filed their certificates with County Clerk Harrington last week, increasing the number legally qualified to practice to seven. The three late-comers were H. S. Burdon and H. S. Stone, of the county seat; and Charles W. Livesey, of Canby.

ANOTHER "FRAME" DUE?

Sudden Boost of Northwest as "Steel Center" Is Made

Down in San Francisco last week a delegate to a meeting of engineers lauded the Northwest as the coming center of the steel industry of the United States. "Unusual iron deposits are held here," said the speaker, "and the quality of some of the ore can compete with some of the best Swedish ores." Yea, verily, some of it can.

And maybe we wouldn't have noticed this at all, only the Oregonian gives the article reporting the speech of the delegate prominence on its front page. And that reminded us of a "steel plant" that was put up near Bellingham some years ago, and of "iron mines" that were dug near Bellingham, and of stock that was sold in both the "steel works" as they were later called, and in the mines.

And then there was the famous steel plant near Seattle, that got a lot of money from trusting widows and orphans, and there was also, if we remember correctly, quite a boom in the "steel industry" around these parts.

Of course these "steel plants" were all unfortunate affairs, jobbed on the public by unscrupulous folk. And of course there is a vast quantity of high grade iron ore in the Olympic peninsula, in Washington—only it costs more than it is worth to get it to transportation. Some day probably this will be developed—but in the meantime the Courier is mighty doubtful about any immediate prospects of making this section of the country the "steel center" of the United States. And our doubt isn't lessened a whole lot when the Oregonian boosts the idea, either.

SHOW OPEN TO ALL

Portland Exhibit Invites Whole Northwest To Take Part

The Second Annual Manufacturers and Land Products Show at Portland this year will receive exhibits of goods from any jobber, manufacturer or retailer, without reference to where manufactured. This throws the exposition open to Oregon manufacturers, and those in the Northwest and the Pacific Coast in general, or the world at large.

This year a grand prize will be given by the manufacturers' exhibit committee of $100 for the best exhibit made by an Oregon manufacturer. Working exhibits are to be a feature and the one believed best by the judges will receive $75. There will be second and third prizes of $50 and $30. The best exhibit occupying more than three booths will receive $60. The second and third prizes in this class are $40 and $20. Three prizes of $50, $30 and $15 go to the three best exhibits occupying less than three booths.

A cash prize of $100 goes to the most harmonious section of booths. The second prize calls for $75. The most attractively decorated concession booth receives $25 and the booth displaying the best Made-in-Oregon slogan receives $10. The girl voted by popular ballot the most popular demonstrator will receive $20. She will also be crowned "Queen of Demonstrators" on closing night, November 13.

Already requests have been received for space from industrial concerns in several cities of Oregon and Washington.

TWO SHOTS FIRED

But Dick Linville Gets Away and Continues His Career

At 2 o'clock Wednesday morning Marshall Keeney caught Dick Linville in Charley Cobb's tailor shop, endeavoring to fit himself with a new suit of clothes when the proprietor was not in. He surrendered to the marshal and was taken to the city jail for lodgement. On their arrival there and while Mr. Keeney was getting a mattress for a bed, Dick took to his heels and made a get-away. Two shots were fired by the marshal, but these only served to put more "pep" into Dick's walkers, and he was soon lost in the darkness.

The Presbyterian church was broken into recently, and it is said that Dick admitted that he was the guilty party when cornered and charged with the crime.

Poor Dick, he seems to be built that way, and he has had many unsavory experiences for one of his age. He was transported to Salem from Oregon City on a charge of forgery a year or two ago, and was released on parole. He has been about Newberg for the past few months.—(Newberg Graphic.)

COL. TIMMONS DIES

Well Known Gladstone Man Passes Away in 64th Year

W. H. Timmons, familiarly known all over the county as "Colonel" Timmons, died at his home in Gladstone last Thursday after a brief illness. He was 64 years of age, and until a short time before his death was one of the most active and successful auctioneers in the county.

Mr. Timmons was born at Cadiz, Ky., and lived there many years, serving as jailer and deputy sheriff for twelve years. Four years ago Mr. and Mrs. Timmons moved to Gladstone. The funeral was held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Gladstone Baptist church, Rev. R. E. Dunn and Rev. Broomfield officiating. He is survived by his widow and the following children: Harry Timmons, Gladstone; Mrs. Orville Dann, Sellwood; Mrs. Albert Stone, Woodburn; Bunyan Timmons, Cadiz, Ky.; Archie Timmons, Lake Charles, La.; Mrs. Richard Solomon, Mrs. Newton Wallace and Mrs. Gertrude Timmons.

WHAT HE THINKS

Abraham Nelson, Gladstone, Doesn't Value Auto Highly

There is one automobile owner in Clackamas county who doesn't think much of his car, and who is not afraid to say so. This is Abraham Nelson, of Gladstone, who has petitioned the county board of equalization to reduce the assessed value of his machine, which the assessor valued at $100. Among other things, Nelson says in his application for a reduction that:

"The said automobile is a Maxwell machine of model AB and of the year 1911; that the said automobile is therefore nearly five years old, that it is not even a Ford; that the propelling power of said automobile consists of one two-cylinder engine; that the said automobile is commonly called by the unprincipled youth of Gladstone a 'two-lunger' and is also designated as 'No. 348'; that your petitioner bought said machine after it had been used two months and paid $400 therefor; that in the year 1913 the said machine was assessed $150 in Multnomah county; that in the year 1914 the said machine had depreciated considerably and was assessed in the sum of $80 in the same county; and your humble petitioner calls your honorable body's attention to the fact that the said depreciation was $70; that therefore your petitioner moved to Clackamas county and that the roads in said county have not caused the said automobile to increase in value; that your petitioner has applied to N. A. Mann, Railway Exchange building, Portland, Oregon, for insurance on said automobile and also to the Pitts-Grossmeyer company and each of said companies has declined to insure the said automobile for $100 or for any sum whatever, advising that it had no insurable value whatever or at all."

MANY TROUT PLANTED

Streams in Molalla County Are Well Stocked with Fish

A car load of trout arrived here last Wednesday and was distributed in the different fishing streams about Molalla. The load consisted of 70 cans of Rainbow, 25 cans of Steelheads, and fifty-five cans of Eastern brook trout, 30 cans of which were yearlings. These are too big for the other fish to eat and will be large enough to catch next year. They also will spawn this season.

These fish were divided as follows: Woodcock Creek, 17 cans Rainbow, 8 cans Eastern Brook; Teasel Creek, 20 cans Rainbow, 6 cans Eastern Brook; Dickey Creek, 10 cans Rainbow, 4 cans Eastern Brook; Rock Creek, 32 cans Eastern Brook; Molalla river, 25 cans Steel heads, 23 cans Rainbow; 15 cans Eastern Brook. T. J. Craig had charge of the distribution car.—(Molalla Pioneer.)

HUBBARD ADOPTS CHARTER

Vote of 62 to 41 Favors New System of Home Rule

The Hubbard charter election Monday resulted in the adoption of the new charter by a vote of 62 to 41. This gives that city a liberal workable system of government. The administration in power favored the change, which is along modern progressive lines for small town government. Under the new system the council is authorized to make any tax levy up to 8 mills. The change comes into time, as the city will lose several dollars per year from liquor revenue beginning January 1. It is reported that the opposition to the new charter came chiefly from the liquor element in Hubbard, which hoped to defeat the charter, thus placing the town in an embarrassing position financially.—(Aurora Observer.)

FAIR DRAWS MANY

Industrial Display at Milwaukie is Largely Attended

An industrial fair held in the Milwaukie school last Saturday drew large crowds in the afternoon and evening, and brought out a range of exhibits that surprised even the most sanguine promoters of the affair. Many valuable prizes were warmly contested for, and the judges had considerable difficulty in deciding the winners in the different classes. In the evening an entertainment added to the interest of the fair, and practically everybody in the northern county town was on hand to enjoy the program. Refreshments were also served, and added their part to the success of the undertaking.

TRADE NAMES VALUABLE

Farmers Urged to Give Title to Home Place, So Products may be Known

A Portland man has been offered a quarter of a million dollars for his dairy and condensed milk trade-mark. This was pointed out by Dean J. A. Bexell of the O. A. C. School of Commerce, in speaking of the value of a suitable distinguishing name for a farm. He thinks that every farmer should select an attractive name that may also serve as a trade mark for his products.

By keeping his goods up to the standard indicated by the trade-mark and then by advertising them where he expects them to be sold, he will be able to dispose of most of his surplus at good prices and fair profits. The trade-mark should also be printed on his farm business stationery.

ware were the result. Here we have a true picture of what will be; for "as it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be also in the days of the son of man." Luke 17:26.

John, the Revelator, in speaking of the last days, says: "I saw three unclean spirits * * * They are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold, I came as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." Rev. 16:13,15. In referring to the final outcome, he says: "The nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldst destroy them which destroy the earth." Rev. 11:18. And to "destroy them which destroy the earth." He comes in mercy to cut short this cruel work of destruction.

In reply to the inquiry, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" Jesus said to His disciples: "As the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and took not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also be the coming of the Son of man be." Matt. 24:37-39.

While a power from beneath is taking possession of those who have cast aside the restraining influence of the Spirit of God, a power from above will take possession of God's loyal subjects. While "evil men and seducers" are waxing "worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived," the good will be developing characters that will give a right to eternal life. The line of demarcation between the two classes necessarily will become more distinct as time advances. Wars, earthquakes, famine, and pestilence are unmistakable forerunners of Christ's coming. Matt. 24:7-14.

Very Sincerely Yours,
C. O. PERRY,
Elder of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

MILWAUKIE BONDS SOLD

New Distribution System for Bull Run Water to be Rushed

The Western Bond & Mortgage Company took the entire $25,000 bond issue under conditions that give Milwaukie practically the entire $25,000. These bonds will run for 20 years, at 5 per cent, the money to be used to construct a distribution system throughout Milwaukie.

City Engineer J. W. Morris has started to prepare details for the distribution system. The pipe in the distribution system will range in size from two to eight inches in diameter, but will be mostly six-inch pipe, all to connect with the trunk pipe laid from the Portland water system.
