THE FASHIONS

New York, Sept. 30, 1915.

Winter fashions have been fully settled upon and it is gratifying to say that for many a season, if ever, they have not been as attractive as they are this year. There is a charming variety. Fabrics are rich both in quality and coloring, trimmings are artistic, and designs are simple. It is itself.

Trimming Notes

The simple serge and gabardine frocks, so much favored for all day-time occasions, are trimmed effectively with braid, designs in soutache, Hercules and novelty braiding; but the touches that render them distinctive are the curious color notes that are being introduced for contrast on many of the smart new French models.

Pink silk embroidery is often seen on frocks of dark blue serge, and a dull reseda wool embroidery is unusually smart on dark blue; this wool embroidery is one of the new notions of the winter; it appears on collars, cuffs, girdles, and trimming bands of frocks, coats, and blouses. Heavy wool worked out in a rib effect to imitate wide Hercules braid, is a detail of many of the imported serge and gabardine dresses. The various conventionalized soutache patterns on a foundation of net or chiffon, often edged with a band of a flat silk braid or an edge of fur, is much in vogue for trimming the more dressy frocks; the wide braids, in numberless attractive designs, are popular as well. The standing soutache designs are favored for yokes and chemisettes and for the half belts so much a feature of the smart panel Princess dress. The wide braids are often used for an entire panel or yoke on a skirt; also for cuffs and the standing band collars which appear on so many of these cloth dresses.

Cape Collars and Chokers

Another quaint and becoming detail of these dark cloth dresses is the collar. Many of the plain redingote serge gowns are made with single or double cape collars. Colored collars of all descriptions are being worn; turnover collars of colored velvet add a smart touch to the choker of the simple dress, and the idea of the colored chemisettes of the summer is being carried out for winter in failles and brocades, striped and figured velvets. Chemisettes of pale pink faille, made with high, unlined, unbanded collars, buttoning at the side and wrinkling about the throat like a mousque, taine glove, are worn with gowns of serge or velvet. The neckline of the dress is usually rounded in an old-fashioned curve and finished with a straight band of the material.

At one of the fall openings in Paris a chiffon afternoon frock was trimmed with wide, heavy Hercules braid; following this idea comes a frock of serge trimmed with soutached chiffon.

Interesting Buttons

Among the button novelties, both for service and for trimming purposes, there is a large gold button, patterned after the plain, four-holed porcelain underwear button; another is an acorn button of brilliants.

Colored Facings

Skirts are being trimmed considerably this winter; and there is a marked use of velvet and cloth, combined and of velvet and chiffon, and velvet and faille. Many of the skirts are banded with velvet, wide and narrow. Some of the prettiest and smartest notions along this line are the contrasting facings. Early last spring, Paquin introduced the idea in a chic little afternoon dress of dark blue taffeta; it is now being applied to serge and cloth frocks. Many of the strictly tailored dresses of serge, gabardine, or broadcloth, show these bright colored facings; the facing generally comes down and finishes the lower edge of the skirt with a narrow piping of the color. Blue gowns are faced with rose, red, old gold, and black velvet; the effect is wonderfully attractive and harmonious.

Leather As A Trimming

One of the smart innovations of the season is the three-quarter coat of leather, trimmed with fur and velvet. Paquin introduced this at her recent opening, and also introduced leather as a trimming for suits and frocks.

Fur—Becoming and Timely

Perhaps the most pleasing thing about the winter trimmings is the touch of fur which appears on many of the indoor costumes and most of the out-door suits and frocks. The tight little choker collars of one of the short haired pelts, beaver, nutria, or that smart Russian krimmer, are decidedly chic and most becoming. These collars are being worn with suits and with the one-piece dresses; generally they are accompanied with a muff, as round as a ball and strongly suggestive of Grandmother's day. Wide cape collars of fur closed under the chin with a stiff little bow of taffeta or moire ribbon are smart, too, with these small muffs.

Early in the season when Paris placed her stamp of approval on the frock of taffeta, and then a little later adopted the one-piece frock of serge and gabardine, on Princess and semi-Princess lines, for almost every occasion, a demand was straightway created for the separate coat. Designers are now giving much of their attention to this important garment.

A Season of Separate Coats

It is essentially a season of separate coats. At any public gathering the predominance of the one-piece dress with its accompanying coat is very noticeable. Princess and semi-Princess frocks of serge or gabardine, braid trimmed, and rather severe, are preferred for mornings; to wear with these frocks Paris has given us an all-enveloping coat, also of serge or gabardine, called the coat dress. Then there are many other models on the Redingote order, with revers extending from collar to hem; one or two designs showing the Louis XVth influence, and the 1870 period, with slender fitted backs and waists, and full circular flaring basques.

Frocks of taffeta and faille are accompanied by harmonizing coats of velours de laine, velvet, or plush, cut Redingote fashion, or on short, tight-fitting lines. Velvet is one of the smartest coat materials of the season. On the Avenue, and in the tea rooms every afternoon, one may see any number of smart little frocks of taffeta or faille, with short, full skirts, and harmonizing small coats or basques of velvet or plush. Some of these chic velvet basques, fitting snugly over the bust, curving at the waistline, button from the top of the high choker collar to the pointed lower edge, often forming pannier-like draperies over the hips. There is no material richer or more becoming than velvet.

The Russian Influence

In the more dressy coats, one notices a decided leaning toward the Russian. There is something smart and youthful about the double reast-ed, high collared Russian coat, with its trimming of fur which makes it appeal to many. These models are made in various lengths, according to the purpose for which they are intended. One of the smartest coats of the season was developed in Petrograd green velours de laine, on Russian lines, collared, cuffed and banded around the lower edge with beaver. Large crocheted buttons of antique gold cord closed the coat and finished the wide girdle of green velours. A smart little turban of the beaver completed a most attractive ensemble.

The Collar Makes the Coat

It appears as if all the designers' ingenuity has been centered on the collar of the coat. There are wide cape collars, Chin-Chin collars, Quaker collars, "A" collars, collars dating from the time of Ineroyables, high Redingote collars, and many others. Often these are of fur, one of the short haired pelts, preferably, beaver, nutria, seal, or krimmer; and then again they are of the material of the coat, elaborately trimmed with braid embroidery, or a smartly worked-out design in Angora wool. This latter is a very new and effective touch brought out at the early Paris openings. Cuffs, too, come in for their share of attention. Some flare, some are made gauntlet fashion, some are cut to fit the forearm snugly from elbow to wrist, where they flare slightly, and others are merely straight bands of the same, or a contrasting material.

Sleeves on both coats and frocks are varied most attractively, the models being taken from a number of different clothes periods.

Coats for Sports

Paquin introduced at her recent showing, a coat of suede; at a tennis match some weeks ago a duplicate of this same coat was worn, with matching spats, hat band, and girdle of the suede. It is an unusual fact, but one that is practical for motoring and all out-of-doors amusements. Stripes, checks and rather vivid plaids are popular for the sport coat as well as the various attractive tweed mixtures. One smart motor coat of plaid, in a subdued tone of gray, noted at the tennis games, was trimmed with emerald green suede, collar, wide belt and cuffs. The effect was unusual and extremely effective. Leather is a trimming detail of many coats this fall.

The huge motor coat of warmly colored plaid, heavy curly cloth, rough tweed, and various other warm, light weight fabrics, is often collared, cuffed, and belted in suede, or kid, in a plain, contrasting color. Leather buttons, too, are being used, and seam pipings of leather.

The Belted Norfolk

For the girl who golfs, walks and enjoys the great out-of-doors, no coat is more satisfactory than the Norfolk. It lends itself well to almost any material. In tweed, it is smart and substantial looking; in stripes, plaids and novelty mixtures, it is equally becoming and effective; while in plain, hard-finish serge, it is trim and tailored looking, a good model for the business girl. It is youthful, and suited to many types. No coat model is more satisfactory for the woman or girl who makes her own clothes, as it is comparatively easy to fashion.

A Word on Fur Fabrics

While these fabrics have been used for coats and wraps for a season or two, they have never reached the perfection that they have this winter. At a showing of coats and wraps at the Ritz, a short time ago, these fur cloths were used exclusively. There were baby-lamb cloths, caracul cloths, monkey skin, and any number of other kinds bearing the manufacturers' trade names. These materials are especially well suited to evening wraps, and the more dressy day coats. They are warm, light of weight, richly colored, and generally satisfactory. These fabrics are attractive, too, for trimmings, collars, cuffs, and trimming bands, on coats of other materials. An African brown baby-lamb cloth is especially beautiful for the last mentioned use.

A Disguised Compliment.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the eminent musical composer, while traveling in Canada some time ago, had an amusing and remarkable experience. Suddenly his train pulled up at a little way side station, and he and the other passengers were told that something was wrong on the line and that they must wait at least nine hours. "Nine hours in this hole of a place!" exclaimed Sir Alexander. "Away from all civilization! How I hate its very name! What is its name, by the way?" Putting his head out of the carriage window, he saw on a board in front of him the name of the despised station in large letters. It was "Mackenzie!"

Printers' Marks.

The interrogation mark or "point" (?) was originally a "q" and an "o." The latter placed under the former. They were simply the first and last letters of the Latin word "questio." So, too, with the sign of exclamation or interjection (!). In its original purity it was a combination of "i" and "o," the latter underneath, as in the question mark. The two stood for "io," the Latin exclamation of joy. The paragraph mark is a Greek "p," the initial of the word paragraph. The early printers employed a dagger to show that a word or sentence was objectionable and should be cut out.—Exchange.
