CANBY WHIST CLUB ENJOYS AN OUTING

The Canby Whist Club had an enjoyable outing on Trout Creek in the Molalla country Sunday, when the members left here at 8:30 by automobile, making their headquarters near Trout Creek Inn, where they partook of a delicious chicken dinner.

E. G. Robinson and Arthur Graham succeeded in catching a number of fish, at least Mr. Robinson did. Graham had a string of trout when he appeared at camp several hours after the party had arrived at their destination. No fishing tackle was seen and whether he waded knee deep into the water and caught the fish with his hands or where he secured his hook and line has been a puzzle to the other members of the party. Robinson did not have enough to divide, so the Graham and Robinson families were the only members of the fishing party enjoying trout for the breakfast on the following morning. Graham has always been considered an expert with the hook and line, but he has not made a wonderful record of catching fish then without the use of bait.

Those forming the party were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Eccles, Mr. and Mrs. Grant White, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Eckerson, Mrs. Green, Mrs. M. J. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bradd.

RECRUITING OFFICERS LEAVE.

The recruiting officers of the United States Army, Captain Huntington, Sergeant Thomas A. Lane, Sergeant Joseph A. Whitman and Corporal Swenson, who have been in this city, where they have been engaged in recruiting men for the service, left Thursday morning for Woodburn, to establish recruiting headquarters for three days. While here they made their headquarters at the Cottage. Very few of Canby's young men have answered the call, a number of those having just returned are now devoting their attention to the farm, where they are greatly needed at present.

Canby sent more young men into the service than any little city of its size when the United States became involved in the big war. Many high school boys being too young to enter the army entered the naval service, some of them are still waiting for their discharge. Some of the Canby families were represented by three sons in the service, among these being Mr. and Mrs. Schaubel, Paul Schaubel, one of their sons, has just arrived in the east from overseas, and has been placed in the recruiting office in New York, and may decide to re-enlist. He has been in France for some time. Another brother is still in France.

CANBY BOY RETURNS.

Glen Coleman, who has been in the service for the past 27 months, with Company F, Postal Express Service, stationed at Tours, has returned to his home at Canby, and says there is no place like the United States and that France is a—of a place. It is 100 years behind the times when it comes to farming, he says. Coleman visited Paris a number of times, and enjoyed his furloughs in that city.

Coleman left here with the Third Oregon, and was transferred to the Postal Express Service, having been a member of Company I, 162nd Infantry. His brother, Lieutenant Ralph Coleman, was disappointed in not being able to go overseas.

After visiting in Canby, Coleman will go to Newport, Oregon, where he will spend several weeks visiting his father, Professor P. L. Coleman, and family, and will later go to Mount Hood for an outing.

KIRK LODGE INSTALLS.

B. Hamilton; right supporter to noble grand, Laura Blair; left supporter to noble grand, Frances Dimick; right supporter to vice-grand, Cassie Fuller; left supporter to vice-grand, Mary Hamilton.

AEROPLANE PASSES OVER.

The people of Canby witnessed an aeroplane passing over the city Wednesday of last week. The plane was heard for some distance away before arriving here, and the people, being aware of its approach, were able to witness the flying machine at a good advantage.

MESSAGE FROM FRANCE.

Mrs. Schaubel is proud of a card received from France which is in the form of a message from the French mothers to the American mothers. Mrs. Schaubel having three sons in the service, two of whom have been in France, and Paul having just arrived in New York from overseas service.

The property of William Moore consisting of 56 acres has been purchased by P. A. Weber, of Snohomish, Wash., who will soon take possession. This land was formerly owned by E. PORTLAND LABOR IS AGAINST SYMPATHETIC STRIKE FOR MOONEY

PORTLAND, June 27.—The Central Labor council Thursday night defeated a resolution pledging support to the street railway carmen if they went out on strike in sympathy with the Mooney strike movement on July 4. The vote was close, however, 35 to 30, and the resolution was debated for nearly an hour and a half. A number of delegates explained that a sympathetic strike was out of the question in their trades. The radical element was sure of passing the resolution and voiced strong sentiment in favor of it.

One delegate assigned the council that the sentiment for a Mooney sympathetic throughout the country was seven to one. The conservative speakers called attention to the fact that less than half of the unions in Portland had voted on the question at all, and that less than 10 per cent of the total labor membership had voted on the strike resolution submitted to a referendum vote some weeks ago.

JOHN SIEVERS TAKES STAND IN FRAUD CASE

The jury in the suit of Mrs. Tyler against John N. Sievers, of Oregon City, and George A. Hall, of Portland, brought in a verdict Thursday for $21,500 against Sievers and Hall.

PORTLAND, June 26.—The fact Attorney George A. Hall drew up a settlement between Ethel Henderson and William M. Tyler the very terms of which indicated that she was not a married woman; the next day filed an information of a felony against Tyler, based on admissions in the statement Tyler had signed the day before, and three days after that brought suit for $100,000, founded on the signed admissions and the criminal proceedings begun, against Tyler and his aged mother, on behalf of the husband of Ethel Henderson, aroused no suspicion of Hall's conduct in the mind of John N. Sievers, attorney for the Tylers, he testified today.

"It was a peculiar coincidence," he confessed after the circumstances had been reviewed before him several times by Attorney Dan J. Malarky. "But I did not consider it suspicious."

"In view of what had gone before, what did you think when the $100,000 attention suit was filed?" asked Malarky.

"I thought just as I told Cap Tyler, that they were trying to get some money out of him."

Hall is co-defendant with Sievers in the suit of Mrs. Pamela L. Tyler, aged 86, to recover $24,000 alleged to have been taken from her by fraud by the attorneys in collusion with the Hendersons. Sievers admitted that he had not taken the matter before the grand jury, even after being convinced that the Hendersons had "framed" on his clients, because, he said, Tyler insisted on settling the case and was so pleased to have it over with.

TESTIMONY IN FRAUD CHARGE IS SENSATIONAL

PORTLAND, July 1.—George A. Hall, who represented Ethel Henderson in the settlement of a $1500 claim against William M. Tyler on January 21, 1918, went with Harry Henderson, Ethel's husband, the same night, to the home of Tyler to watch an open window for evidence against Ethel and Tyler, and the next day accompanied Henderson to the office of the district attorney to get a warrant for the arrest of his client of the day before and of Tyler.

This was the testimony of Hall in direct and cross examination today concerning actions which he said did not seem to him strange or improper for an attorney. At first an attempt was made to deny that he was acting for Henderson when a warrant was sought for Mrs. Henderson and Tyler, but an admission was forced from him after a severe grilling.

The examination of Hall was leading up to the events of January 27, 1918, when a $20,000 settlement was made of a $100,000 alienation suit which followed the criminal action begun January 23, all being part of what Mrs. Pamela L. Tyler, 86, says was a conspiracy to rob her, framed by Attorneys Hall and Sievers.

Earlier in the day the plaintiff scored in securing the introduction of Sievers' bank book, over the objection of his attorney, in evidence. The book showed that Sievers made a deposit of $2250 in his bank on February 1, 1918, the day following his supposed settlement with Hall for $15,000, $10,000 of which was supposed to have been in cash and the remainder in stock.

Sievers had secured the reduction of the settlement from $20,000 to $15,000 from Hall, he testified, leaving him a fee of $5000, according to the agreement which he purported to have made with Tyler, to the effect that his fee would be all he could save out of the $20,000 agreed upon as a settlement. Stock valued at more than $5000 had not been cashed at this time by Sievers and was not deposited, in cash, until February 11, according to the bankbook.

Sievers had testified that he paid Hall $10,000 in cash from the Diamond Match company stock, which he had cashed for $10,859.41, keeping $859.41 himself as a part of his fee, and also gave Hall Pittsburg Plate Glass company stock, worth more than $5000. Yet the day following this transaction Sievers deposited $2250 in the bank.

PORTLAND, July 2.—Efforts of Attorney Malarky to further substantiate the contention of the plaintiff in the alleged fraud case that Hall, Sievers and Henderson had split the $20,000 three ways were balked by the assertion of Hall that he had no bank account, and therefore no record of the money he received from Sievers the day of the settlement with Henderson. The bankbook of Sievers, produced Tuesday, had shown a deposit of $2250 the day following the settlement, which, with stock valued at more than $5000 withheld by him, totaled one-third of the amount the stock brought when sold above par. Sievers could account for $356 of the $2250, which he admitted was part of his "out," but not for the remaining $1400.

Hall testified that his agreement with Henderson was "50-50" on anything recovered from Mrs. Tyler. He said he gave Henderson $7500 cash, kept $2500 cash—all out of the sale of Diamond Match company stock for $10,856, of which Sievers admitted keeping $856 and kept Pittsburg Plate Glass company stock of the par value of $5000, later sold by him for $5580.

R. E. Bower and wife, of Laramie, Wyoming, were in Oregon City Wednesday.

Elmer Abel, of Walla Walla, Wash., who has been in Oregon City for several days, has returned to his home.

Farm Bureau Notes of Interest

Edited by R. G. Scott, County Agent.

GUERNSEY BREEDERS PICNIC.

The Clackamas County Guernsey Breeders Association held their annual picnic at Chas. Wagner's farm last Thursday. There was a good attendance of enthusiastic supporters of the Guernsey breed. That the interest in these cattle is increasing is shown by the fact that eight new members were added to the roll. No doubt this is due not only to the value of Guernseys as heavy producers of butterfat, but also to the fact that there is a big demand for both registered and grade stock.

The big table was spread under a huge maple tree near the banks of the Willamette, and the Guernsey breeders proved themselves to be equal to the occasion. After the big feed, there were speeches by prominent farmers. Octave Voget, the president of the association, presided, and in his annual address spoke of the need of good cows to make a profit on the high priced feed, and at the same time he urged the breeders to keep their cows and make their records under conditions similar to those on the average farm. N. C. Jamison, county agent for Washington county, spoke on the value of testing for advanced registry. Prof. E. B. Pitts of Corvallis gave some interesting figures on the value of breeding and complimented the Clackamas county people on the quality of their Guernseys. Later he illustrated his remarks by pointing out the good points of the bulls and heifers belonging to Frank Stangel and Chas. Wagner which were on exhibition. Mr. Goodwin, a well known breeder of Washington county, made a few remarks, followed by H. Addis, of the Oregon Farmer, and O. M. Plummer, manager of the Pacific Livestock Exposition. The county agent talked on the value of community breeding. Mrs. A. I. Hughes spoke of the number of calls for both registered and grade Guernseys that they were unable to fill, at prices much above the average. Clackamas county already has a reputation for its high class Guernseys, and the important thing now is to get more farmers interested in this breed so as to be able to fill the demand which is continually increasing.

FERTILIZER TRIALS.

Some of the fertilizer tests which were started this spring have already begun to show results. W. A. Carlson of Redlands says his corn is six inches higher where he used superphosphate. The fertilizer was applied with a fertilizer attachment to the corn planter, which put it right down next to the roots. On other fields where it was applied broadcast the effect is not yet visible.

Up at Elwood, Miss Nellie Vallen has some very interesting fertilizer trials. Twelve plots were laid out each one six by eight feet square, with a different combination of fertilizer on each. Then she drilled clover, alfalfa, barley, wheat, oats and soy beans lengthways through the plots. The results are remarkable. The best growth was where stable manure was used. Equal to this was the plot where all three fertilizers were used in combination. Next in growth is the plot where nitrate of soda and superphos-phate were used. On the manure plot the stand of clover was especially good. The soil that these trials were made on is the ordinary red hill soil, on which it is usually difficult to get a stand of clover.

The lesson to be learned from these experiments is that humus is lacking in many of the red hill soils. To get it back, it is necessary to either apply manure, or to grow vetch and rye to turn under. This can be done without losing a year's crop, by growing corn followed by potatoes, and sowing vetch and rye each year in the fall and plowing it under again in April or May. This will clean your land of weeds and put plenty of humus into your soil, so that the land will be in good fix to sow wheat, on which you should get a good stand of clover.

LOGANBERRIES.

Now is the time for those who are interested in loganberries to take notice of the crop on the vines, and to find out for themselves how much profit there is. The question arises—what crop can be grown on a small farm which will give as much profit as loganberries? Until now the way of the small farmer has been hard. It has been a serious problem how to raise enough on ten acres to keep body and soul together, besides paying the taxes and buying feed for the cow. With loganberries it is different. Five acres properly taken care of ought to bring in from $500 to $1000 net under normal prices. This year the loganberry growers will make much more than that.

OLD LUMBER MILL NEAR GREENPOINT RESUMES OPERATION

After eight years of idleness the machinery at the old lumber mill in the northern part of the city near Greenpoint started into motion last week, and railroad ties are now being manufactured by the Jackson Lumber Company, also a large amount of lumber has been turned out. The main business of the company is to manufacture ties.

A. C. Jackson is manager of the company's plant, and about 20 men are employed, most of these being residents of Oregon City and vicinity.

The company has a large camp near Newberg, securing the timber from that section. The land upon which the buildings are located is owned by the Crown Willamette Paper company, but machinery and buildings have been purchased by the Jackson Lumber company.

George Moulton, residing near Gladstone, is foreman of the new manufacturing plant.

By the starting of this plant, the establishment of the Young manufacturing establishment, where tops and bodies for automobiles are being built, and the Oregon City Sand and Gravel company operating with a force of about ten men gives that section of the city much activity.

The Oregon City Sand and Gravel Company has recently had erected an elevator on Sixteenth street and Railroad Avenue, and which is used for loading gravel and sand on the Southern Pacific flat cars. An electric device has been so arranged where the cars are loaded in short order. Hillsboro has an order in to the company's plant for 400 carloads of gravel and sand to be used in making the paved roads under construction in that section of the state. Clackamas county has also a large order for material for building roads in various sections of the county. The capacity of the company's plant is 360 cubic yards per day.

Loyalty To Your Town

(From the St. Helens Mist)

Here's a true story. One that came to us in a common everyday business conversation, but one, nevertheless, which is the best example of town loyalty that we have heard. A Portland salesman called at the Mist office Tuesday afternoon. He sold typewriter ribbons, carbon paper, legal blanks, etc. He said he had just come from the Willamette valley and business was good. He was asked "if he made Oregon City?" He did, he said. He was asked if he called on Editor Brodie, the publisher of the daily paper in Oregon City. He said, "I used to call on Brodie, but he is so loyal to his own home town merchants that he does not buy from me." Unconsciously the traveling salesman preached a good sermon on patronizing the home merchant and being loyal to one's home town. If many St. Helens people were as loyal to St. Helens as is Editor Brodie to Oregon City, there would be fewer Sears and Roebucks catalogues come through the St. Helens postoffice, and the money which is earned in St. Helens from industries located within the town, would not be sent to eastern cities to further enrich the big mail order houses.

MR. AND MRS. A. PRICE TO LEAVE SOON FOR LONG EASTERN TRIP

Late next week, Mr. and Mrs. A. Price will leave their home in Oregon City for an extensive trip through the eastern manufacturing centers to order goods for the coming year for Price Brothers department store. Stops will be made in all the principal middle east and eastern manufacturing centers all the way from Minneapolis to New York City. One feature of the trip which Mr. Price is looking forward to with a great deal of pleasant anticipation is a promised aeroplane trip from New York City to Atlantic City. A large wholesale house in New York maintains an express service by air route between these two cities.

Some of the cities Mr. and Mrs. Price will visit are Spokane, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Niagara Falls, Albany, New York, Washington, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Indianapolis.
