

MAN BADLY INJURED BY RUNAWAY, LEG BROKEN

In an attempt to stop a runaway team Tuesday afternoon near Elk's Prairie William H. Lamb, a resident of that district, was run over and seriously injured. A heavy wagon loaded with lumber passed over his body crushing and mangle his left leg and causing internal injuries.

Charles Todd, brother-in-law of the injured man, secured an automobile belonging to W. C. McNeil and in this a bed of mattresses and ticks was arranged on which the injured man was placed and brought into Oregon City. He was placed in the Oregon City hospital and is at present under the care of Drs. Todd and Hume.

According to the injured man he had stopped his team and descended from the load of lumber, and was in the act of mounting the load again when the team shied and started to run. Mr. Lamb secured the reins and in so doing was thrown under the wheels.

A consultation held at the hospital Wednesday afternoon showed an operation to be necessary and Mr. Lamb was placed under the anesthetic shortly afterward. A report from the hospital at a late hour last evening stated that Lamb came through the operation in good shape and was resting easily.

It was found that the injured man had sustained a compound fracture of the tibia and fibula of the left leg and in addition was suffering from severe contusions of the back. Unless unforeseen complications set in Mr. Lamb is conceded a very favorable chance of recovery.

BROTHER NARROWLY ESCAPES LIKE FATE

The beautiful 11-year-old daughter of I. A. Melendy, teacher in the Franklin high school in Portland, was drowned at the Melendy summer home at Peach Cove, opposite New Era on the Willamette river a short distance south of town, at about five o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Margaret, in company with a younger brother and two younger sisters, was wading in the river in front of the Melendy cottage and she and her brother waded into a deep hole, sinking immediately out of sight. One of the younger sisters managed to drag the brother to safety when he came to the surface the first time, but couldn't reach Margaret. She therefore ran to the home, a distance of over 500 yards, where she told her mother of the predicament of her sister. Mrs. Melendy enlisted the aid of J. W. McEachern and W. A. Mullen, who were engaged in building a cottage next to the Melendy home and they rushed to the scene of the accident. They succeeded in locating the body of little Margaret after it had been in the water for almost a half hour but all efforts to revive her proved unavailing.

Dr. M. C. Strickland and Coroner E. L. Johnson, who were summoned from Oregon City, worked over the body for a considerable length of time before all hopes of restoring life were given up.

The three youngest children had been staying alone at the summer cottage for several days and Mrs. Melendy and Margaret had arrived from Portland but the day before.

JEROME HOWARD IS APPOINTED AS NEW BLIND SCHOOL HEAD

SALEM, Ore., July 16.—Mrs. May Moores, superintendent of the Oregon state school for the blind since the death of her husband, September 2, 1918, has resigned and will be succeeded by Jerome W. Howard, for the last five years in charge of the public schools at West Linn, Clackamas county. Although Mrs. Moores filed her resignation on May 10, it was not accepted by the state board of control until today.

Mrs. Moores was matron of the school for 11 years prior to the death of her husband, and her faithful and capable service is highly lauded by members of the board of control. She expects to remain in Salem, although she came from Silverton, where Mr. Moores was superintendent of the public school for several years before taking charge of the institution for the blind.

ONE KILLED ONE HURT IN TRAIN AND AUTO CRASH

Mrs. George Kylo was instantly killed and Mr. Henry Kylo seriously injured at 6:04 this evening when the Ford automobile in which they were riding struck train No. 6 of the Willamette Valley Southern railway at Hitchman station twenty-two miles south of Oregon City.

Mrs. Christiansen, whose home is immediately adjacent to the right of way of the Willamette Valley Southern at Hitchman station, was an eyewitness to the tragedy and when interviewed shortly after the accident made the following statement: "I heard the train approaching and as is our usual custom sent my daughter out to get the evening paper which is thrown off from this train for us each evening. As I stood waiting for her to return I noticed a Ford automobile approaching the railroad crossing at a rapid pace and as it neared the crossing instead of stopping it appeared to speed up. An instant later the train appeared and at the same moment the automobile crashed into the front coach."

Members of the train crew hurried to the scene of the accident as soon as the train could be stopped and found that Mrs. Kylo was dead and Mr. Kylo was unconscious. The latter was carried into the Christiansen home where efforts to revive him were successful and he was later taken to his home, a short distance from the scene of the accident. Mr. Kylo stated when asked regarding the accident that when he saw the approaching train he attempted to apply the brakes of his machine but by mistake applied the accelerator. Drs. Todd and Hume of Molalla were called to care for the injured man and Coroner E. L. Johnson will go to the Kylo home this forenoon to take charge of the body of Mrs. Kylo. The justice of the peace of Molalla has taken charge at the scene pending the arrival of Coroner Johnson.

Grant B. Dimick, president and general manager of the Willamette Valley Southern railway, accompanied by Supt. J. L. Stacer and Special Agent F. A. Miles, left Oregon City on a special train upon receipt of word of the accident and brought train No. 6 back to this city, the special being substituted on the regular run of No. 6 for the regular trip.

The automobile struck the front coach of the train about twenty feet from the head end and was completely demolished. Mr. Kylo was thrown through a heavy woven wire fence, his body striking and snapping off a 4x4 inch fence post.

INQUEST HELD AT MOLALLA ON THURSDAY

Reports on the condition of Mr. Kylo, who was seriously injured at Hitchman station on the Willamette Valley Southern railway south of town Monday evening, received at the office of Coroner E. L. Johnson Tuesday afternoon state that he is still delirious and it is impossible to get a coherent statement from him regarding the causes which resulted in his Ford automobile crashing into Train No. 6, fatally killing a Mrs. Kylo and seriously injuring himself.

Mr. Kylo has been removed from the Christiansen home, near the scene of the accident, to his own home about a quarter-mile distant, and Drs. Hume and Todd of Molalla are in attendance upon him. Dr. Hume stated yesterday afternoon that Mr. Kylo would probably regain normal consciousness within forty-eight hours and it is not likely that a coroner's jury will consider the case until that time. Coroner Johnson stated Tuesday afternoon that he assembled the coroner's jury yesterday forenoon and formally swore them but that the inquest over the remains of Mrs. Kylo would be deferred until Mr. Kylo's recovery.

The remains of Mrs. Kylo were taken to Molalla yesterday and placed in the Todd & Hume undertaking parlors.

FORD SUNK IN RIVER AFTER HAVING MOST OF PARTS REMOVED

The rape of Belgium, immortalized in Rupert Hughes' novel, "The Unpardonable Sin," and screened under the same title, has nothing on the fate of a Ford automobile that was found in the river near the Holy Names normal school yesterday.

The luckless car, stripped of everything that was removable, even to the engine, and then ruthlessly cut in two, appears to have refused to give up the ghost, for the vandals who thus violated its person are presumed to have been forced to throw it into the river to effectually dispose of it.

Sheriff Wilson, to whom the find was reported and who investigated the scene, stated today that all numbers and marks of identity, together with approximately 699 parts, were missing and that it would be difficult to establish the car's identity.

Bryan the Lecturer

William Jennings Bryan has changed in appearance as well as in his manner of speaking since the well-remembered days of 1896. In that year Bryan was a young man, vigorous, combative, spoiling for a fight and intent upon sweeping the country with his magnetic voice for the support of the principle of free and unlimited coinage of silver. He antagonized the ideas of millions of people, and thereby gained millions of supporters. He was assertive to the nth degree, and the velvet tones of his wonderful voice echoed from one end of the country to the other.

But Mr. Bryan has changed. He is now a Chautauqua lecturer, and as such he does not offend. He strives to amuse his audience, and he succeeds. He endeavors to strike a popular chord and he succeeds in that also. At the Gladstone Park Chautauqua Sunday he accomplished the difficult thing of satisfying 10,000 people who came from far and wide to hear him, and who will come to hear him again.

Mr. Bryan believes in government ownership, with some modifications. He would have the federal government exercise ownership of interstate public utilities, but he must realize that the Wilson administration, through its mal-administration, has set the principle of government ownership back 30 years.

So Bryan the lecturer is a far different man than Bryan the politician or Bryan the candidate. He fits his own especial niche very well indeed, and will probably continue to be a drawing card on the Chautauqua platforms of the country.

GOVERNOR OLCOTT MAKES APPEAL FOR LOGANBERRY GROWERS

SALEM, July 16.—Governor Olcott has sent letters to Oregon's representatives in congress protesting against the 10 per cent tax levied on the gross selling price of loganberry juice. In his letters the governor points out the growth of loganberry culture in Oregon and contends that a continuation of the tax may menace the future of the industry. The governor's letter follows, in part:

"After the expenditure of many hundreds of thousands of dollars, progressive citizens of the state of Oregon have developed an industry of international importance out of the products of the loganberry. Congress has assessed a 10 per cent tax against the gross selling price of loganberry juice. Rail rates on glass bottles, as well as on the finished product, have increased materially during the past few years, and the life of the industry is threatened. As governor of the state I ask you to use your most earnest efforts to assist in removing the tax, which may force this industry to the wall."

LEADING MEN IN SEATTLE LIQUOR CASE INDICTED

SEATTLE, Wash., July 12.—Returning 12 indictments, the list being headed by Judge Clay Allen of the superior court, and including four deputy sheriffs, the chief of court clerk and a number of prominent physicians and business men, the grand jury called to investigate the county liquor scandal made its first report today.

After returning the indictments the jury recessed, with the permission of the court until November 17, when, in accordance with instructions given on Friday, they will take up the routine investigations ordinarily made by grand juries and will make special inquiry into alleged corruption and sale of large quantities of liquor.

The sudden termination of the investigation occasioned as much surprise as the indictments that were returned. Every indictment returned pertains to unlawful possession or disposition of whiskey, and is directly connected with the matter which the jury was instructed by Presiding Judge Boyd J. Tallman to investigate, the handling and disposal of the Hengen whiskey.

PROHIBITION HEADS BLOCK ALL WET MOVES

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Prohibition forces took full control in the house today, refused to permit a vote on a straight-out motion to repeal the wartime act, defeated overwhelmingly an amendment providing for the sale of 2½ per cent beer and stood solidly against all attacks on the general enforcement measure.

Just as fast as one "liberal" amendment was offered by opponents of prohibition it was voted down with out ceremony, always by a triple vote, for the minority, fighting every inch of the way, demanded a division after ayes and noes were called, and then asked for tellers. Before the house got through with the first section of the bill, the third of the three-part bill, there was more disorder on the floor than at any time this session.

PRINCIPAL POINTS OF PRES- IDENT'S ADDRESS

- Treaty would be scrap of paper without the League of Nations.
- People demanded league, and would brook no denial.
- America's material aid to Europe would be indispensable in days to come.
- If League of Nations was rejected, the world's heart would be broken.
- America is friend of all nations.
- America has just reached her majority as a world power.
- America's isolation ended 20 years ago.
- Moral leadership of the world is offered America.
- The question is whether we accept it or reject it.
- America in truth shall show the way to the world.
- The treaty squares with the 14 points as well as with the practical needs of the situation.
- It is not exactly the sort of treaty the United States would have written.
- We have sought no special reparation for ourselves, but only the restoration of right and the assurance of liberty everywhere.
- America's fighting made victory certain.
- A league of free nations is a practical necessity.

YOUNG FORGER ARRESTED IN BAD CHECK DEAL

Henry Clay Cole, alias William Davis, a Coleburg youth of 18 years, was arrested at the Crown Willamette Inn in this city late yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Wilson of Clackamas county and Sheriff C. M. Kendall of Linn county on a charge of passing forged checks in Albany.

In the warrant issued for the arrest of young Cole it is alleged that he cashed several of the forged checks in various places in Albany and with the money obtained started for the bright lights of Portland. His defection was detected within a few hours after his departure from Albany and Sheriff Kendall was started in pursuit.

The exact total obtained by young Cole has not as yet been determined and no report of his having passed any of the worthless paper in Oregon City has as yet been received by the sheriff's office.

CLACKAMAS ROAD CLOSED DURING PAVING PERIOD

The county has commenced paving a two-mile stretch of road between Clackamas station and Rook Creek bridge. The road will be closed to travel for a period of from ten days to two weeks, and vehicles going east from Clackamas station are advised to go to Parkplace to cross the river and take the road on the south side of the Clackamas.

It was stated at the courthouse this afternoon that during the period of construction work on this unit it will be impracticable to provide by-passes for traffic to get around the portion of the road which is closed, and that it will therefore be advisable for all traffic to take the route east from Clackamas as noted above.

REALTY DEAL INVOLVES DOWN TOWN CORNER

One of the most important real estate transactions recorded in this city during the past year was completed Wednesday when Lee and O. E. Hall, recently of Ashland, Oregon, purchased from Mrs. Ernest Matthews of Portland through B. C. Curry, local agent for Mrs. Matthews, the two large buildings at the corner of Twelfth and Main streets now occupied by the Independent garage and the Oregon City Battery Co.

The buildings have a frontage of 130 feet on Main street and are considered one of the best business sites in the city.

The new owners, under the firm name of Hall & Son, have also purchased the Independent garage and as soon as extensive alterations and improvements are completed to the buildings they will open an up-to-date garage and repair shop.

Hall & Son have also secured the Oregon City agency for the Chevrolet automobile and have been assured a sufficient supply of these popular cars to meet all the demands of the local trade.

In an interview Wednesday evening Mr. Lee Hall, senior member of the new firm, declined to state the consideration involved in the real estate transfer, but it is understood that the former owner realized a handsome figure for her property.

CLACKAMAS MAY DEVELOP POWER ON EAST FORKS

PORTLAND, July 10.—Consideration of important power development on the upper waters of the Clackamas river is believed to be the motive of officials and engineers of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company in a trip which they are making to Clackamas Lake.

Power rights of the Clackamas are possessed by the P. R. L. & P. company as far east as Timothy Meadows on the Oak Grove fork of the Clackamas.

This stream furnishes the most powerful and uniform supply of the power plants already built by the company in the vicinity of Cazadero and Estacada on the lower Clackamas. It drains Clackamas, Dinger, Little Crater and other lakes, and its flow varies but little the year around. The main Clackamas, rising in the vicinity of Olallie Butte, just north of Mt. Jefferson, varies greatly in its flow.

The Oak Grove fork of the Clackamas at Timothy Meadows just below the summit of the ridge of the Cascade mountains is a quiet, smooth flowing ice cold stream, occupying nearly as wide and deep a bed as the Clackamas, close to its confluence with the Willamette. Below Timothy Meadows the flow is swift, with a drop of probably 2000 feet. For some time the advantage has been discussed of conducting a power stream in a conduit to a point some 1500 feet precipitately above the confluence of the Oak Grove fork with the main stream.

Thus a very high velocity could be obtained and the power development would be much greater proportionately than from the hydro-electric plants lower down. Nor would the development of this power affect other power development on the stream.

During periods of low water the hydro-electric power generated by existing plants, both of the Portland Railway, Light & Power and Northwestern Electric companies, must be supplemented by auxiliary supply from steam plants. At the same time, it has been pointed out that all the existing hydro-electric plants are low pressure affairs dependent upon volume rather than velocity of water supply.

It is believed that the inspection now under way at the headwaters of the Clackamas is to determine the feasibility of a high pressure hydro-electric plant to aid in meeting the constantly increasing electrical needs of Portland.

State Hatcheries Receive Many Eggs

Four hundred and ninety thousand rainbow trout eggs, the largest shipment of trout eggs ever received in Oregon, were received by the state fish and game commission Friday afternoon.

A total of 440,000 eggs was received from Montana and 50,000 more from Wyoming. Commissioner F. N. Warren instituted the successful search for the eggs.

The trout eggs will be hatched at Bonneville and a majority of them will be distributed over the state. Some will be retained for propagation at various state hatcheries and the fish and game commission predicts an adequate supply of eggs from this source in a few years, so it will not be necessary to go outside the state for more eggs.

MILL PICNIC ENJOYED BY MORE THAN THOUSAND

Two trains and a line of automobiles crowded with happy, boisterous humanity, employees of the Oregon City Woolen Mills and their families and friends, left Oregon City Saturday morning for Crystal Lake Park, Milwaukie, to enjoy the second annual all-day outing and picnic.

The entire day was devoted to a program of friendly spirited prize contests and games of all sorts, even the old-time greased pig being in the ring.

The keenest interest in the various contests centered around the men's baseball game, the ladies' ball game and the department relay race. The prize for this relay race was a silver cup donated by A. R. Jacobs, president of the company. Teams composed of two men and two women from each of the eight departments competed for the prize, which was won by the spinning room team, to have and to hold until the next annual outing, when the cup will again be in controversy.

In the men's baseball game the single men went down to defeat before the married men as ingloriously as the late unlamented champion fell before the gladiator Dempsey. Age played no factor in this affair, for the married men had their eyes on the ball and slugged two pitchers out of the box, and the game was called at the end of the fifth with the single men hopelessly beaten 16 to 5.

Although the spinning and card room girls had been advertised as the ones to stake the money on in the women's baseball game, the weaver room girls easily defeated them in a contest replete with brilliant plays and many disputes regarding the rules. Perhaps the score was somewhat influenced by the large number of men rooters on the sideline for the weavers in their brilliant red bloomers, while their opponents in black were less flashy. The purse was $15. The score was 16 to 5.

Winners of other contests for prizes ranging from $1 to $3 were as follows:

Fifty yard dash—1st, Emma Schultz; 2nd, Margaret Gerber; 3rd, Elsie Filmore; 4th, Myrtle Brice.

Tag of war—Elimination contest won by garment factory team.

Fifty-yard dash for men—1st, Gordon Fauley; 2nd, Ernest Mass; 3rd, F. L. McGahuey.

Three-legged race—1st, Dorothy Sanatell and Myrtle Berry; 3rd, Cathryn Long and Ruth Limbucker.

Mens 100 yard dash—1st, Gordon Fauley; 2nd, Lyle Curran; 3rd, Ernest Mass.

Ladies' egg race—1st, Cathryn Long; 2nd, Louise Kinzy; 3rd, Margaret Gerber; 4th, Mary Thomas.

Department managers' relay race—One of the closest and most hotly contested races of the day. Two teams participated in this event, one captained by Supt. of Mill Collie, the other by Supt. of Garment Factory Tschirgl.

Mr. Collie's team won by a breath only. Winners received a box of cigars, and the losers must furnish a picnic dinner next Sunday to the victors. The dinner will be hash and nothing but hash, say the losers.

220 yard dash—1st, Gordon Fauley; 2nd, Lyle Curran; 3rd, F. L. McGahuey.

Boys' 50 yard dash—1st, Tom Rosenthal; 2nd, Leonard Hall.

Girls' 50 yard dash—1st, Alice Plenkine; 2nd, Ethel Gladys Bryant.

Boys and girls' shoe race—1st, Zelma Plenkine; 2nd, Tony Mosko; 3rd, Marvin Curran.

Boys' and girls pie-eating contest—1st, Francis Thomas; 2nd, Rutherford Bevans; 3rd, Donald O'Brien.

Mens free for all race—1st, A. Kosciulek; 2nd, Howard Mass.

Ladies' Race—1st, Elsie Filmore; 2nd, Laura Robinson.

Ladies' tub race—Elsie Filmore.

Mens tub race—H. F. Tschirgl.

Diving contest—1st, Francis Thomas; 2nd, Howard Mass.

The greased pig was captured by Elmer Bowles.

There being so many babies on the grounds, the sports committee decided to hold a baby show, as a result of which the judges picked little Herman Perlman, to whom was awarded a crib blanket.

After the sports dancing until 10 P. M. completed the day's program.

Although the first annual picnic last year was a brilliant success, the second far surpassed it in interest and enjoyment. Ninety gallons of ice cream and one hundred cases of pop were served free to the thousand or more merry-makers, besides numerous boxes of cigars and candy.

Illustrated Lecture "Closing Days of the War"

Henry Warren Poor

"It's the only thing not touched by the high cost of living." This was an expression used by an enthusiastic booster for the Gladstone Chautauqua, who was giving a reason for the greatly increased attendance this year. He might have added that there has been some especially good talent this year tending to draw the visitors back for several sessions. John C. Ketcham, national lecturer of the Grange, was the magnet at the forum hour Wednesday. Mr. Ketcham is a forceful and convincing speaker, and a staunch defender of the rights of the members of the organization he represents. His topic was, "The Farmer and the Reconstruction Program."

Mr. Ketcham advocates the removal of government restrictions from industries, excepting food and fuel, told the farmers present to organize, find out their production costs, and then through their organization be in a position to demand cost plus a fair profit. He brought out the fact that over 50 per cent of the farms in the United States are occupied by tenants; 30 per cent are mortgaged, and added the future of the country depends on those who own their homes and the farmers are willing to progress through evolution rather than revolution. The great danger lies in the vast numbers who do not own their own homes and can be swayed by the radical. He said: "Do not fear any outside invasion; the great danger to our country lies within our country and in its economic condition."

Mr. Ketcham paid his respects to the peace conference and President Wilson by stating that the articles of the league of nations uses three fourths of a column to say what labor shall have and not one word regarding agriculture. Neither the master of the national grange or the Oregon state grange had been bidden to the conference; but whenever Gompers speaks the President places his hand behind his ear and asks, "What did you say, Gompers?"

The Lewis Military Quartet, its members picked from 40,000 boys in khaki, every member a soloist, and every member one who has achieved prominence in the musical world, was a star attraction both afternoon and evening.

Dr. Elliott A. Boyd, one of the prominent Chautauqua lecturers of the country, occupied the lecture platform during the afternoon hour, and proved himself worthy of all the good things that had been said as to his ability as a platform speaker. At the symposium, Mrs. Robert C. McCredie, president of the Washington Federation of Women's clubs, spoke on "American Girls."

Classed as one of the best attractions on the entire program was the dramatic reading of Edwin Whitney, in "Turn to the Right," in which he impersonated twelve characters and appeared as a star in each one. He specifically characterized was the one in which he appeared as the old mother, and again when he essayed the role of Dynamite Muggs, the safe cracker.
