

CANBY AND SOUTHERN CLACKAMAS

MRS. HATTIE NORRIS
BUYS 10-ACRE TRACT

A deal has just been closed by the Bates & Gorman real estate firm when the Daniel Robinson place near Lone Elder, and consisting of ten acres, was purchased by Mrs. Hattie Norris, of Bend, who arrived in Canby Wednesday morning to take possession of her new home.

The Robinson place consists of a modern bungalow, good water, well constructed buildings, and much of the land is planted to wheat and potatoes.

Mr. Robinson and family are moving into the old home place of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lee, where they are to make their home for the present.

During the past two months there have been a number of real estate deals closed in and in the vicinity of Canby. There have been a large number of people visiting this section of the country looking over the land with the prospect of buying later.

At the present time Canby appeals to the newcomers. Everywhere the ripening grain appears, and the peach and apple trees laden with green fruit with prospects of bumper crops, immediately impressed these homeseekers. The grain has not looked more encouraging than at the present time. In many places it stands five and six feet high, and grain has been cut and early in the week the reaper commenced his work. The present warm weather will ripen the grain rapidly, and threshing will be somewhat earlier than in former years.

During the past week a number of the vacant houses have been occupied and a number of homes have been renovated preparatory for renting.

MR. KAUPISCH IS READY FOR FAIR

Among those to compete in the farm exhibit at the coming Clackamas county fair will be Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kaupisch, who have already made plans and are growing many varieties of vegetables for this year's event. Last year, as well as the previous years, they have carried off first prize in this class. Their farm denotes the activity of these two people are engaged in at the present time, and those to compete for the same prize will "have to go some" in order to get the prize this year.

A Kocher, who has charge of the poultry department, is interesting many poultry fanciers of this city and in other parts of the county to show their birds. One of the best judges of the Northwest, Mr. Keeney, of Eugene, and who will be judge of the poultry department at the Oregon State Fair, has been secured by Mr. Kocher, to act as judge of the poultry of Clackamas county fair.

COUNCIL EXPECTS TO PAVE STREETS

The city council met in special session at the city hall Monday evening, at which time the paving of Main and other streets was discussed. The meeting was well attended.

A resolution declaring the streets to be improved was passed, and the matter will be further discussed at the next regular meeting on the first Monday evening in August.

There are a large number of property owners of this city, who are in favor of beautifying the streets by having them paved.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO MEET.

The Commercial Club will hold its next meeting on Monday evening, July 28. At the last meeting, which was held the same evening of the city council, very little was done, and it was decided to hold the meetings on a different night, as there are a number of the members of the club in the council.

AUTO ACCIDENTS ON HIGHWAY FREQUENT

Several automobile accidents occurred on the highway between New Era Sunday evening, but none proved disastrous. There was a large number of automobiles traveling over the road Sunday, as Chautauqua took the people of this section north, and at times during the day there was a steady stream of cars passing.

One of the accidents was where George Hardisty's automobile became mixed up in a wreck, when Mrs. Mary C. Hardisty, his mother, was badly shaken up, and is now suffering slight injuries to her back. The automobile is slightly damaged. Mr. Hardisty was driving his automobile along the road, and in passing the stage he turned and fearing he would strike another passing machine, was forced to turn his automobile into the bank. The passengers in the car received a jolt that they will not soon forget.

Another accident occurred later in the evening, when a car owned and driven by Waldo Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, of New Era, collided with a machine. In the Brown car were Mr. and Mrs. Brown and their little adopted daughter, Betty, who is the little girl recently left on a doorstep in Salem by the mother, and later Mr. and Mrs. Brown took out adoption papers. Betty is a bright and attractive girl, and is delighted with her home, and the accident Sunday did not even frighten the little tot. The Brown car was slightly damaged in the head-on collision.

In Tours, France, and is with the Post-Ex Express Service.

Rosa Brown, who has been in the service, an stationed at Camp Lewis, has received his discharge, and returned to Canby.

INTERSTATE BRIDGE PAYING FOR ITSELF

The Oregon-Washington Interstate bridge will pay for itself within 10 years if the profits from the structure continue at the present rate of accumulation. More than a quarter of the cost has been covered by tolls for the first 2 1/2 years of its existence, which total $635,622.94. There are 20 employees on the bridge and the monthly payroll averages $2000. The monthly profits from the bridge are split between Multnomah and Clark counties, the former receiving three-fifths and the latter two-fifths.

COMMON LABOR AT $4.50

ALBANY, July 11.—Owing to the approach of the harvest season and the scarcity of labor generally, the paving contractors on the Pacific highway are paying as high as $4.50 per day for common labor and are experiencing difficulty in getting men at that price.

SHERWOOD PAPER IS WELL KNOWN LAWYER

(Tualatin Valley News)

George C. Brownell, a prominent attorney of Oregon City, delivered the oration of the day. Having for years a reputation as an able orator, he surpassed all previous efforts and held the close attention of his hearers from start to finish. He touched on various subjects during the address, starting with biblical history and gradually leading up to the present day and the ending of the world's greatest war, but throughout the address there was an underlying thought or tone of patriotism delivered in a manner as only George Brownell can deliver. The committee having the matter in charge should deem themselves doubly fortunate in securing Mr. Brownell to deliver the address.

BYRON GINTHER IS VICTIM OF PAINFUL
ACCIDENT AT HOME

Byron, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gintner, of this city, met with a painful accident at the Gintner home near Division street Friday, when he cut his foot with a sharp axe while cutting wood. The lad almost severed the great toe of his left foot, the member hanging by a mere fragment of skin. Mrs. A. O. Aldredge, a nearby neighbor, rushed to the aid, and, until the family physician, Dr. O. A. Welsh, arrived, Dr. Welsh took a number of stitches and it is probable the lad's toe will be saved, although the bone was entirely severed.

Farm Bureau Notes of Interest

Edited by R. G. Scott, County Agent.

GOATS FOR PROFIT.

In Clackamas county there is an area of about 200,000 acres of land that is in brush and timber, much of it not merchantable timber, which at present is yielding no return on the investment. A very small amount of this land furnishes some pastures for cattle, but most of it does not begin to pay the taxes levied against it. It is a dead drag on the rest of the farm, in the aggregate it means a tremendous economic loss to the county.

There is one way to turn this loss into gain. That is through goats. They will eat the brush and weeds which cattle refuse. They will make mohair from material that no other livestock can utilize. They do not ask for any special care, a little shelter in the winter is all they need. What brush they can't reach they peel and when the leaves are gone they peel it away. You may be sure that when you turn goats into a pasture they are going to clear it for you. Just how fast they will clear it depends on the number of goats to the acre, and the amount of brush. This spring the writer fenced off six acres and put in sixteen goats. Fourteen of these were nannies, and in April 14 kids arrived and lived through. The mohair sold for $24 and we have nearly doubled our flock. What is more, the brush is looking sick. Where before there was a thick tangle of weeds and brush of all kinds, now there is hardly a leaf within reach of their busy mouths, and they are already peeling the willows. It looks as if it might need more pasture for winter.

As a business proposition it certainly pays to put up a good fence around your brush and timber. It will cost around $235 to build a good goat fence around forty acres. It will cost about $100 to buy 25 good nannies. The first year, from the mohair and the kids you will get a return of 30 per cent on your investment. What other department of the farm can be made to pay better? What is better still, your land that growing up into a tangle that would be harder and harder to clear, is being cleared for you. After the goats have killed the brush and small trees as they surely will, you can sow it down to pasture grass and put in sheep, if you are not ready to go ahead and take out the stumps.

The main fear in the minds of most farmers is that either the goats will get out, or the coyotes will get in. The whole secret of success with goats is the fence. A four-foot fence will keep the goats in and the coyotes out if it is properly built. It pays to put up a first class fence if it is to hold goats. But when once built it becomes an asset to your farm; if well built it will fence your future crops when the land is cleared. This fall is the time to build that fence and now is the time to do the planning.

Blame for the epidemic of scarlet fever which has resulted in 650 cases in Portland since it began in December is fastened by Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, upon inefficiency and red tape in the Portland office of the United States shipping board.

"Portland was scored roundly by Dr. W. A. Evans at the Auditorium last night for its lethargy in combating the epidemic," said Dr. Parrish. "Dr. Evans and myself prepared the data and figures in his speech in my office. It was the first step in awakening the people to true conditions and to the fact that Oregon is one of the tiny majority of states having no compulsory vaccination law."

"The shipyard managements refused Langelier and myself permission to vaccinate the men without authority from the shipping board. We immediately went to the offices of the board, and I personally held three lengthy conferences with Lloyd J. Wrentham, chief of wooden ship yard operations of the Emergency Fleet corporation. Langelier spent days with officials, but neither of us could get satisfaction. Meanwhile the epidemic spread."

STRAWBERRIES CROP IS GOOD

INVESTMENT

H. L. Morrell, one of the strawberry growers of Clackamas county meeting with success in growing this fruit, has harvested his last crop for this year. The last picking was today, when several crates were picked and marketed, for which a good price was paid.

Mr. Morrell has seven and one-half acres in strawberry plants at his home at Willamette, two and one-half acres of which are two-year-old plants. Two acres are in one-year-old plants and three and one-half acres were set out last year. These are largely of the Marshall variety, and although Mr. Morrell has tried several other varieties, including the Gold Dollar, he prefers the former, and is now devoting his entire attention to these berries.

From these berries Mr. Morrell has made a profit of $300, and expects to make $5000 next year. The highest number of pickers was 25, and these berries commenced to ripen early in May, the first picking being May 15. The Morrell berries have an established reputation in the local markets and the grower has very little trouble in disposing of all he grows. This year's crops were disposed of to local merchants only, although there was a large demand for the berries by outside firms.

Owing to the absence of his two sons, Clyde and Clarence, who have been in the service for two years, Mr. Morrell has been assisted by his wife in caring for and harvesting his berries, but the sons have returned reaping the harvest of this season's crop. Mr. Morrell started into the berry industry at Willamette seven years ago.

EUROPE WANTS HORSES.

It is significant that buyers from Belgium and France are in Chicago and St. Louis markets buying horses for export. Naturally they want the best, but if they cannot get the best, they are willing to take those that are not quite so good. Every farmer is interested in horses, in spite of the tractors. The time will probably never come when it is cheaper to do all the farming with tractors. While tractors are of great value to a man owning a large farm, there is always work for a team, and from figures which have been taken in other states, it seems that the horse work is fully as cheap as the tractor, for what the team can cover. When it comes to a horse compared to the truck in short hauls, the horse is probably more economical. At least this is the opinion of one of the large Chicago firms which uses both. For the long haul, undoubtedly the truck has every advantage. But the point is, it is time for farmers to breed better horses. There is many a man using a team too small to do good farming. And at present it is hard to find a good stallion to breed to in parts of Clackamas county. It does not pay to go out and buy a team when your old team gets past its usefulness. It is cheaper to raise them. With every indication that feed will be plentiful this year, it is time to think about raising a better team than the one you have.

As a business proposition it certainly pays to put up a good fence around your brush and timber. It will cost around $235 to build a good goat fence around forty acres. It will cost about $100 to buy 25 good nannies. The first year, from the mohair and the kids you will get a return of 30 per cent on your investment.
