SECRETARY URGES WOMEN TO CAN AND DRY FRUIT

Every housewife this year should restore to her home the often overlooked home industries of canning, preserving, pickling and drying of perishable fruits or vegetables. The large number of new back-yard gardens which have been planted this year shortly will begin to yield their extra harvest of beans, peas, carrots, beets, sweet corn and tomatoes. The regular supplies also will reach the markets and, as happens each summer, the local supply at times will exceed immediate consumptive capacity. Not to conserve much of this surplusage of valuable food would be sinful waste.

The present food and labor situations are such that no household is justified in looking to others to release it wholly from individual responsibility and constructive action in saving and conserving food. All any home should expect of others is to supply those foods which cannot be produced effectively by its own members. The railroads will be burdened with the transportation of staple foods and civil and military necessaries from localities of production and manufacture to districts incapable of supplying their own needs. It follows that all locally produced foods, conserved by home methods, lessen the winter pressure on transportation agencies and also release similar products of factories for other purposes.

I urge every household, therefore, to can all surplus perishable products for which they have containers and to dry and keep in paper any additional surplus suitable for such preservation.

Canning calls for no special skill and for little equipment beyond a wash boiler and jars. Fresh products, cleanliness, and heat are the chief requirements, as even sugar is not essential for canning fruits under modern procedure. Fruits and vegetables, moreover, can be dried efficiently in the sun, over a range or gas stove, or before an electric fan. Homemade shallow trays of wood or heavy wire screen are the chief equipment required. Drying is a time-tried home industry; conservation of food by drying is largely a matter of restoring to the home great-grandmother's method of seeing that her family had good food in winter as a relief from a monotonous diet of root vegetables. Canning and drying can be practiced as effectively in a city house or apartment as on a farm or in a suburban dwelling.

Canning, of course, already is a profitable industry for women and children in thousands of homes and I trust will become almost universal this season. To aid the home conservation movement, the Department of Agriculture has issued a new Farmers' Bulletin on home canning and another on home drying of fruits and vegetables. These free pamphlets should be read and followed in every household which wishes to translate patriotic impulse into concrete service.—D. F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture.

TRUCK CROPS IN OREGON

Report of Production for Spring of 1917, Made by Expert

The Assistant Truck Crop Specialist of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, reports on the production of miscellaneous truck crops in Oregon, spring of 1917, as follows:

Very little definite data on the area of truck crops in Oregon is available. The acreage of cabbage in 1916 is estimated by different authorities at 1500 and 3000 acres respectively, both figures being considerably above the census figures, which were 924 in 1900 and 591 in 1910. Further investigation will be necessary to arrive at a close estimate.

It is evident from all reports, however, that there is a big increase in the planting of vegetables. Home gardens have made the most spectacular increase, but vegetables for market are at least as heavy as last year, while vegetables for canning and evaporation have made enormous increases. The manager of one cannery estimated that the vegetables grown for canning in Wasco and Hood River counties will be doubled. Others make similar assertions, while an official connected with several canneries in the state says that their acreage has been increased 1000 per cent. The vegetable evaporators have succeeded in contracting a good acreage, while they have heretofore purchased their products outright. New plants are under construction and old plants are being enlarged. A seedsman states that Marion county particularly has made a big increase in area of vegetables. Others declare there is a 50 per cent increase in area of vegetables. Others declare there is a 50 per cent increase in the cabbage planting of the state. Word comes that makers of home canning outfits have raised their prices and have been unable to fill their orders. People are also preparing to dry large quantities of vegetables in the home as a result of agitation and instruction carried on for food conservation. Much land not under cultivation before is being utilized and intercropping of young orchards is being practised extensively. In one locality cattlemen are said to have gone into the vegetable business. The principal increase in acreage, however, has been in beans and potatoes, though few early potatoes are grown.

NEED MORE TYPEWRITERS

Women Who Can Qualify as Stenographers are Wanted

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that, as a sufficient number of male and female stenographers will not be secured from the examination held July 7, 1917, to meet the needs of the public service, an examination has been announced to be held at forty of the principal cities in the Northwest on July 21st.

Men typewriters without a knowledge of stenography are desired chiefly in conection with the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army, at an entrance salary of $1,000 per year. A majority of the clerks in the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army, are being selected from the typewriter register, sand all male typewriter who can qualify are urged to apply for the examination July 21st. It is expected that practically all men who qualify as typewriters will be tendered appointment.

There are excellent chances for the appointment of women who pass the combined stenographer and typewriter examination and who are willing to accept positions at an entrance salary of from $900 to $1,000 per annum.

Arrangements will be made by the District Secretary to examine all persons who write to him, subject to the subsequent filing and approval of applications, provided the request is received at Seattle in sufficient time to arrange for examination at the place nearest to the applicant's residence where the examination will be held.

Inquiries concerning the July 21st examination should be addressed to Herbert F. Ward, Secretary, Eleventh Civil Service District, Room 303 Post Office Bldg., Seattle, Wash.
