About the State

Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

The Supreme court, in the case of Wesley Raney vs. the Industrial Accident Commission, appellant, appealed from Tillamook county, holds that a farm hand engaged in a hazardous occupation, such as the operation of a feed mill, is subject to the provisions of the workmen's compensation act.

In referring to farmers in their relation to the compensation act, the court says, in part:

"Farming is not treated in the statute as a hazardous occupation, and since the performance of agricultural work does not involve much danger of accident to life or limb, the Legislative Assembly omitted that class of industry from the catalogue. Where, however, a person engaged in farming operates for himself or others any machine or agency that the statute has declared brings such employer automatically within the hazardous occupations, unless he has given in the manner prescribed notice that he will not be governed by the provisions of the act, he is not immune from making to the State Industrial Accident Commission the small contribution which the law exacts from the product of business of that kind in order to create a fund as partial compensation to the laborers who have been injured by such means."

The forest fire that gained headway Sunday and Monday in the timber holdings of the Sheridan Lumber company near Sheridan is beyond control, according to reports, and now covers two sections of territory, having swept portions of sections 16, 17, 8 and 9.

With more than 40 fires reported in different parts of the Umpqua National Forest, Superintendent S. C. Bartrum, of the Roseburg forestry offices, said that all of the fires, with the exception of two, were under control. Two new fires reported are located on Clancy and Steamboat Creeks and in the near vicinity of some of the best timber in southern Oregon. Men are being rushed there.

Hary Pargeter, secretary of the Douglas County Fire Patrol Association, says the forests of Douglas county are dryer now than for more than 10 years and the danger of fire is alarming.

"Made in Germany," stamped on pocket scissors being placed in 75 duffle-bags which women of the Salem Patriotic league are preparing for members of Company M, Third Oregon Regiment, "somewhere in Oregon," was discovered by a husband of one of the women and caused a furore among the men.

The women were ignorant of the fact that the little scissors bore such a stamp, it is stated, but they are being informed.

That they may fight under the Stars and Stripes rather than under the flag of England, Otto and Richard Ohm came to Baker from Canada. They left there four days ago and, upon advice of United States Attorney Reames, came to Baker county and were registered.

Bottled loganberry juice containing a dangerous "kick" seriously injured the right eye of Ben Wolf, a clerk at the Powell-Street Pharmacy, in Portland, he stated in starting a $5000 personal injury suit against C. C. Caples, manufacturer of the Summer beverage.

One of the bottles of loganberry juice manufactured by Caples, and offered for sale at the Powell-Street Pharmacy, suddenly exploded as it reposed on a shelf April 23 last, alleges Wolf in his bill of complaint. Fragments of glass struck him in his right eye and impaired the vision permanently.

At a meeting in the Albany Armory recently a Home Defense League was organized in that city. Almost 100 men signed the roster.

The purpose of the league is to protect the lives and property of the citizens in any emergency, and its members announced their willingness to serve in that behalf anywhere in the state. The necessity of the organization has been brought out by recent trouble in various sections with the Industrial Workers of the World.

FATHER AND SON DROWNED

Bodies of Homesteaders Recovered From Clackamas River

The bodies of John Livingstone and his son, Evert, of Estacada, were recovered from the Clackamas river Sunday by Walter Sterling, a Portland diver, about two miles below Estacada and near the mouth of Eagle creek. The men are thought to have been drowned when they went to repair a boat. They had a homestead 10 miles east of Estacada and told a friend of their intention to go to the boat Thursday. The latter discovered the empty boat, overturned, some time later.

Straightened Him Up

Solomon Bequette, Flat River, Mo., writes: "Two years ago I was down on my back till I could hardly go. Foley Kidney Pills straightened me right up. I recommend them to all who have kidney trouble." Rheumatic pains, aching joints, sore and swollen muscles indicate that the kidneys are not properly filtering impurities from the blood. Foley Kidney Pills get right at the trouble and give prompt relief. Painful, irregular and sleep-disturbing bladder troubles also yield quickly to their tonic healing action.—Jones Drug Co.

All is quiet in the I. W. W. situation, it was reported from Klamath Falls. Carl Igeldim, thought to be one of the leaders, was arrested at Dorris, Cal., and is being brought back by federal authorities. Twelve alleged members of the organization arrived on the train and were arrested and locked up over night. They were all released later and escorted to the state line and were glad to leave town immediately.

No further attempts at destruction of property have been reported. Heavy armed guards still are being maintained in every road leading into the town and at all manufacturing plants. At an enthusiastic meeting of 200 men at the opera-house a citizen's committee was organized for the protection of homes and property interests.

After an automobile trip to Klickitat county, communities around Trout Lake and Glenwood, A. D. Moe, publisher of the Glacier, returns with the highest praise for the roads of the neighboring Washington county. Mr. Moe characterizes as especially appealing the return journey made over a wooded highway leading down from Glenwood to White Salmon.

W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, of Salem, telegraphed to Klamath Falls for specimens to investigate the nature of poisoning that has killed many head of stock in Klamath county the past few days, and which has been suspected as work of the I. W. W.

Dr. Lytle stated that he may leave for Klamath Falls personally in a short time to make a first-hand investigation of the stock troubles.

Yeggmen entered Coolidge & McClaine's bank in Silverton Monday night by sawing a hole through the roof and going down a rope. In an effort to open the vault a drill was broken off in the door. The combination was damaged so the door could not be opened today.
