One of the events that proved of great interest was the calendar contest, when each month was represented by some unique stunt, starting in January with "resolutions" and closing with December with presenting packages, each containing a "fool's" cap worn during the evening. As June was the month for marriages, a mock marriage ceremony took place, each "bride" being one of the boys of the high school, attired in "gowns" made from newspapers, even to the "graceful" veil and the shower bouquet, while one of the teachers of the high school gracefully performed the "marriage" ceremony.

Vocal and instrumental music were enjoyed during the affair. Ice-cream and cake were served. The decorative scheme of the assembly room was artistically arranged, and the color scheme, red and white—the class color of the junior class, was carried out, and as the junior class has chosen the red carnation for its class color for the coming class day exercises, these formed from red paper were used in decorating and added much to the effective scheme.

Having charge of the event were Mildred Henriksen, Eva Kraus, Dorothy Vaughan, Eleanor Lent, Easter Noble, Cora Ausse, Violet Ledford, Pauline Raddatz, Charles Bates, Louis Lorenz, Miles "Inches" Nobles, Noel Oathes.

The silver tea given by the Helping Hand club of the Gladstone Christian church Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas E. Gault was a successful affair.

The place cards were appropriate for the Easter season and in the form of an eggshell enclosing the birthdate of each guest with favors in the form of their horseshoe, cleverly arranged in jungle form.

The center piece represented a hat, the crown formed with yellow primroses. The Easter scheme of decoration was carried out in yellow, green and white.

The afternoon was devoted to the study of "Tales of Hoffman" by Offenbach. Mrs. Eugene Noon Good sang "Barcarolle" and Mrs. J. W. Leonard sang a group of songs including the "Doll Song" taken from the opera.

Mrs. William Hammond led the discussion of the Political situation in Ireland.

PIONEER FOUND DEAD; HEART FAILURE CAUSE

Edward Magone Discovered in Home by Cousin; Coroner Finds Inquest Unnecessary.

Edward (Ed) Magone, well known pioneer resident of Clackamas county, and familiarly known by his many friends as "Captain" Magone, was found dead in his home near Magone's park Thursday morning at 11 o'clock by his brother, Ex-Representative A. M. (Ammie) Magone, who lived close by. Death, apparently was caused by heart trouble, as Mr. Magone had suffered several previous attacks. His brother, James, died in the same manner about seven years ago.

Last Seen Alive by Bert Hoover

The last person to see Magone alive was his neighbor, Bert Hoover. This was on Tuesday evening and Magone was engaged in making garden near his house. As it was always customary for Magone to carefully put away his tools after using them, these were found this morning by James Magone, a cousin, who is making his home with A. M. Magone. The former attempted to open the door, but found this locked, and immediately notified the brother of the man, and the two returned to the little home and peering through the window saw Magone lying on the floor. Entrance was made through the window and upon entering they found the man dead. Magone had attempted to retire, when taken by death.

There was no indication of foul play and his body was taken in charge of by Coroner O. A. Pace and removed to the Holman and Pace undertaking chapel in this city.

Mr. Magone was a native of Clackamas county, born on Christmas Day, 1852, on the place where he died and where he had resided continuously. For many years he was captain on a ferry that plied the Willamette river between Sellwood and Portland.

Parents Crossed Plains as Pioneers

Mr. Magone was the son of Major Joseph Magone and Mary Anne Tompkins, early Oregon pioneers who crossed the plains. The former was captain of a party crossing the plains in 1847, and also served as major in the Indian war. The parents were united in marriage on the Tompkins donation land claim, which has since been Magone's home, their marriage taking place in 1850.

Deceased is survived by his brother, A. M. Magone, of Oregon City, Route 5; his aunt Mrs. Helen Tompkins and an uncle, Roger Tompkins, who are making their home near the Magone place and occupying a portion of the Tompkins' donation land claim, and a cousin, James Magone is for the present making his home with A. M. Magone.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral services, but it is probable that interment will take place in Greenwood cemetery, Portland.

SALMON FISHING OPENS; RIVERS CLEAR RAPIDLY

With the waters of the Willamette and Clackamas rivers clearing rapidly, deputy game wardens in charge of patrol work in Clackamas county reported that Sunday saw the beginning of the salmon fishing season near Oregon City.

Large numbers of the royal spring Chinook salmon have been in the Willamette for two weeks, but muddy water has prevented active fishing. For three days H. E. Meads, district deputy warden for Clackamas county, reported two and three salmon have been caught by early trollers. The rapids of the lower Clackamas have been the best fishing grounds to date.

Captain A. E. Burghdoff, state game warden, intends to try his lines in the Willamette Sunday. Burghdoff said that numerous complaints of early trout fishing have been brought to his office and issued a warning calling attention of fishermen to the fact that the trout season does not open until April 15.
