Homesteaders on Prairie Are Robbed

ELK PRAIRIE, April 15.—Ted Gray and Basil Leitzel gave invitations to their neighbors to attend a surprise party at the home of Richard Joplin. The party was in honor of Mrs. Joplin, who has often entertained the young people in her home. The evening, which was April 1, was spent in dancing and merry-making. Mrs. Joplin and Ted Gray furnished the music a portion of the time, the Victrola gave them an opportunity to rest occasionally. Luncheon was served at midnight.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Gault and little sons, Robert and Lawrence, Mrs. Chas. Tidd, Miss Robertson, Mrs. Neesley, Miss Henderson, Vernon Tidd, Mr. and Mrs. F. Joplin, Basil Leitzel, Ted Gray, Lawrence Sloate, Miss Zena Badger and Mrs. Badger besides the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Joplin and their two sons Milton and Lawrence.

It has been reported that the homes of two absent homesteaders have been molested. The first to be discovered was that of A. H. Hollingsworth, Richard Joplin was out hunting stock, when he found fresh tracks in the snow leading to Mr. Hollingsworth's cabin. Mr. Joplin, thinking that Mr. Hollingsworth had returned, went to the house, only to discover that it had been broken in to. Other locks in the cabin had been broken and property and keep-sakes had been strewn everywhere. It is not known just what is missing until a complete itemized list is taken.

Mr. Joplin immediately took steps to have the matter reported to the owner. Mr. Hollingsworth wrote that he expected to return a little later but in the meantime for Mr. Joplin to take charge of what ever remained. Mr. Hollingsworth also offered a reward for information in the matter, that would lead to conviction of the party or parties.

A few days ago Mr. and Mrs. Freer returned to their homestead. The snow was on at the time, so they had Mr. Sloate bring them in, with his team and wagon. When near the claim, they had some difficulty on account of the road, so Mrs. Freer walked to the house. Soon she returned to the men, saying that their home had been robbed. Both food and keep-sakes had been taken. Some were things that this couple had owned for many years, even plates which were especially valued because of the fond memories they brought up about their wedding, had been taken.

School day will again this year be one of the features of the Gladstone chautauqua. Preliminary plans for the program are being formulated among the schools over the county and circulated, drawing the attention of different teachers to the affair have been sent out through the local superintendent's office.

The school day was inaugurated last year and met with such success that its repetition is planned. Numbers are furnished by the different schools and all of the pupils on that day are admitted free of charge.
