AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHERS MISSING NEAR MT. HOOD

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Oct. 16. — W. R. Graham, aviator, and Charles S. Woodruff, photographer, are safe. They landed here in their plane tonight.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 16.—Alarm was felt today over the possible outcome of an air trip for the photographing of the Mount Hood road undertaken by C. B. Woodruff, Portland photographer, in an Oriole plane driven by "Billy" Graham, a flyer who has been operating at near-by summer resorts. The expedition started from the municipal aviation field Friday at 11 a. m., and Woodruff expected to finish the circuit of Mount Hood and be back the same day. The return has not been made and all trace of the plane and its passengers has been lost.

From practically all points reachable by telephone along the loop it was reported this morning that the plane had not been seen. The party is supposed to have passed Mount Hood River Friday afternoon and it was reported from The Dalles that the noise of a motor had been heard, although no one noticed the plane. It was not explained why the plane had gone as far as The Dalles, when the object of the journey was the mountain itself and the road that is to girdle it.

Discovery of Code Leads To Finding Of $650,000 Mail Loot

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 13.—Stevenson Poe and others have spun stories of buried treasure like that told by Postal Inspector Roy Nelson, who discovered a cache of $650,000, part of the loot obtained in the $1,110,000 mail robbery at Trinidad, Colo., last May, but their stuff was fiction.

Following a tip from a source he would not reveal, he obtained the key to the code directions on a chart taken from the hands of the men in jail here. The chart gave the location of the buried money on a tract of prairie 20 miles west of Trinidad. Following the cryptic directions given on the chart, Nelson located a lone cottonwood tree. Obeying further directions he found a huge boulder near the tree, sighted a niche in the stone in line with the junction with a certain lower limb of the tree trunk. This brought a certain map of cactus into his line of vision.

Nelson dug under the roots of the cactus clump and unearthed the $650,000 in bills contained in a length of pipe. While Nelson was digging he saw a lone horseman on the opposite side of an arroyo, who was likewise digging. Nelson declared later that this man probably had received the same tip, but had reckoned wrong because he sighted over a wrong limb of the tree, thus throwing him off several hundred feet in locating the upper cactus clump, hundreds of which dot the ground in that vicinity.

MRS. ANDREWS ELECTED BY TEMPERANCE LEGION

McMENVILLE, Oct. 13.—(Special) —Mrs. E. B. Andrews of Oregon City was elected head of the Loyal Temperance Legion at the state session of the W. C. T. U. here today. The L. T. L. is the young people's branch of the union. Mrs. Andrews was formerly president of the Oregon City union and is now county president of the Clackamas County branch and state organizer of the union.

President Harding Buys Old Homestead

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—President Harding today owns "The Old Homestead." It is a boyhood ambition that even being chief executive of the United States could not eclipse. As farms go, it is not much. Just 268 acres of "tollie" soil at Blooming Grove, Morrow county, Ohio. The house is even less promising — one story with an attic and an old fashioned porch out in front.

It was here that the president was born. He played in the shade of the great trees, which almost completely overshadow the little dwelling. About 100 yards in the back is the stable. Mr. Harding used to tumble out when the frost was on the pumpkins behind a couple of hungry and lazy mules. Then he tried to teach them some of the fundamentals of agriculture.

Like all normal, healthy country boys, the city urge got him. One day he put a saddle on Mr. Mule and rode him into Marion. En route he created about the same furore as did M. D'Artagnan on the steed bequeathed to him by his dad.

From that point on Mr. Harding progressed to the White House.

FINANCES Over United States And Thruout Continent HINGE UPON Near East Settlement; Conditions Affecting EUROPE

By Robert E. Smith

President Lumbermen's Trust Company Bank, Portland, Oregon

Domestic financial and business conditions are just as important as ever; the Near East problem is still unsettled at this writing and is of course of paramount importance; the reparations ghost still stalks, but all domestic and international problems alike, have for a time been crowded into the background of the public consciousness—in this country, at least,—by the world series of baseball now playing in New York. Naturally interest in the series is keenest here at home, but judging from the elaborate arrangements made to send the news to Europe, Asia, South America and even Africa, as well as to ships at sea, we conclude that the whole world is interested. We cannot help admiring the foresightedness which led the American Bankers Association to choose this particular week for its New York convention, though of course we admit that this may have been only a coincidence. However, this may be, we fancy that, since they are there at this particular time, few of the delegates will be so immersed in things financial that they will neglect to inquire anxiously: "How's it running?" "Who's ahead?" and "What's the score?"

Turning from the contemplation of this subject which even at this distance is most fascinating to financial conditions at home, we find that pendulum swing of the Near East question we need not expect a steady market. True, recovery from the depression so marked when England and Turkey seemed on the verge of a bloody clash is material. It began as soon as it became evident that the problems were to be referred to the council table instead of settled by force of arms. Authorities say that although the Near East tangle undoubtedly precipitated the bread in the market, it has at a psychological moment, when the market had reached a level and a technical position such as to invite reaction, and that if the Near East trouble had not come up just at this time to cause the break, something else would have done so. The uncertainty regarding the government's contemplated new financing has been a strong factor in the reaction, too, and alone might have been enough to cause an appreciable weakness in the market.

Industrial conditions are rapidly approaching the state which optimists have been predicting throughout the year. Activity in nearly every line is increasing, and an actual shortage of labor is reported. This and lack of transportation facilities seem to be the only drawbacks just at present. Restriction of immigration is having its effect on the supply of labor and some alarm is felt for the present regulations may prove to be a real industrial menace. Our country needs a generous supply of unskilled labor each year and with the expansion of its industries will need still more.

Prices are still showing a rising tendency, since supplies have been low and there is insistent demand for finished products of all kinds. It is to be hoped that the rise will not be so rapid as to shut off consumption. Retailers who were skeptical over the rise in goods prices are again placing substantial orders, and manufacturers are more cheerful as losses are forgotten and inventories which have been written down again show a profit.

In Europe, of course all eyes are turned to the Southern shore of the Sea of Marmora, where the Allies and the Turks are at this writing in conference assembled. The outcome cannot be certain until its conclusion, but everybody is hopeful that war will be averted. The reparations question is perhaps just now not quite so pressing as it has been allowed a moratorium and the agreement made between Stinnes and the French has partially and temporarily placated France. By this agreement, Stinnes acts as go-between (for a consideration—leave it to Stinnes) between the German government and France, filling orders from France for raw materials and receiving compensation (and commission) therefor from his government. So far as it goes, this seems an excellent arrangement all around, and it may be that more extensive cooperative schemes of this sort will be developed. That the sentiment in this country in favor of a closer participation by the United States in European affairs is steadily growing is evidenced by the overwhelmingly favorable reception accorded suggestions to this effect made by Thomas W. Lamont before the American Bankers Association in New York this week. The Association even voiced its approval of the suggestion that a partial cancellation of the allied war debt might be involved in this participation.

The Republic of Haiti
The new loan of $16,000,000 to the Republic of Haiti has been purchased by a syndicate of New York bankers and is expected soon to be offered to the public. The proceeds of this loan are to be used in refunding an old French debt. Haiti is one of the two negro republics of the world. It covers the western end of that island known as the island of St. Domingo, and is a small, mountainous country, with a population of about 1,000,000. Haiti was originally a French colony, and the small white population cultivated the island by slave labor. In 1804 the slaves revolted and proclaimed their independence as a nation, and Haiti's independence was granted by France in 1825 in return for an indemnity of 150,000,000 francs. The sudden transition of the great mass of the population from slavery to political independence found them unprepared for self-government and there was deterioration rather than improvement during the last century — until American intervention, in fact, which occurred in 1915. Under American occupation internal peace has been maintained, some good roads built and much improvement made in sanitary conditions. The United States Navy, in cooperation with the Haitian state department, has had charge of the customs houses since 1915 and this means practical control over the government's income, as the import and export taxes constitute the chief revenues of the country. The present $16,000,000 loan is being negotiated under the provisions of the treaty between Haiti and the United States of 1915 and a protocol thereto signed in 1919.

Automotive Industry and Employment
That the present prosperity of the automobile business means employment for 2,500,000 people was the statement of Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, speaking recently before the convention of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association at Buffalo. "In addition to the 200,000 men working in the automobile plants and to the hundreds of thousands of professional chauffeurs and drivers and of retail garage employees, there are about 250,000 accessory factory workmen, 150,000 tire dealers and salesmen and thousands more in allied retail trades," says Mr. Reeves.

"This year's production should exceed 2,000,000 cars and trucks. I believe it is safe to say that next year, with export demands increasing, more than 2,250,000 motor vehicles will be sold. In this year's production, about 10 per cent are trucks, but the truck production will keep on increasing, as the general business gets better. Of the cars produced this year, probably 70 per cent will sell at $1000 or less. Our reports show an increasing use of motor vehicles over the highways, not alone in the use of passenger cars, but trucks and motor busses. Over half a million persons motor-camped in our national parks during the last year. Motor bus lines are now running regularly to 108 of the largest cities. There are 12,000 consolidated schools in the United States, according to the United States Bureau of Education. Most of these are using motor busses to transport children. There are still 194,000 rural schools not consolidated."

Chinese Bond Issue Authorized
The Peking cabinet late in September authorized a $10,000,000 bond issue by the government. The issue goes to the Chinese bankers of Peking for absorption in the face of the strenuous objections of Cantonese parliamentarians, who declare the authorization unconstitutional. With funds to meet immediate pressing demands, every effort will be made to bring about a comprehensive adjustment of the country's financial affairs. Premier Wang declared. He added that he was hopeful of enlisting the cooperation of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen in promoting the administration's loan.

Rail Officials Cited For Defective Cars

SALEM, Oct. 14.—Officials of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railroad are being notified today to appear before the public service commission at the commission's Portland office Monday afternoon to explain the reasons for the defective equipment now said to be in use on their lines. The commission's call is issued following the receipt of a complaint from the federal shop crafts and others and firemen of Portland, to the effect that "the lives of the public are being endangered and the transportation of merchandise retarded through the use of defective equipment upon the lines of the S. P. & S. railway."

not possible in the public system. Additional cost of caring for the children banded in Oregon City along by the private schools would amount to $18,000 annually he stated. He characterized as confiscation any move to put out of business the private schools of the state.

The religious schools, stated Hedges, teach courses similar to that given in the public schools, with religious doctrines in addition. This privilege he maintained, is an inalienable right under the constitution.

The single tax bill was presented by W. W. Woodbeck, who cited the examples of Sydney, Australia and Edmonton Canada as indicative of its success wherever fairly tried. He pointed out that it would take the speculative value from the land and substitute real for fictitious values as the basis of taxation. Grant B. Dimick, arguing the negative stated that single tax was confiscatory, and that the charge that the soil was passing into the hands of the few was belied by statistics. Single tax, he said, is unnecessary. The solution he stated, lies in the reduction of expenditures in proportion to what can properly be paid.

Livy Stipp presented the arguments for the income tax bill, which provides for a straight income tax to supply one half of the necessary state revenue. With general property already too heavy a burden this measure would provide the way for the rising of revenue by taxing individual and corporate incomes and relieving the property burden to that extent. O. D. Eby, taking the negative in the absence of Clyde Mount, branded the bill as one sponsored by opponents of the Grange income tax bill. The existing bill provided a flat levy while the Grange bill provided a graduated tax. The existing measure, he held, was intended only as a blind with vicious provisions intended to counteract the Grange's proposal. The Grange bill was taken from the ballot by a court injunction, but the flat rate measure was allowed to remain.

Stories of the Old Pioneers and Yarns from Old Newspapers.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Taken from the Oregon City Enterprise October 14, 1892.

Horses Drowned—One day last week Will Jennings drove down into the river in front of the Jennings place below Judge Meldrum's for the purpose of washing the wagon. It was deeper than he had calculated on and the current swept the horses from their feet and took them down stream. Both horses were drowned, and Jennings had considerable difficulty in getting ashore.

School Room Opened—The small residence owned by H. E. Cross at the corner of Twelfth and Madison streets has been rented for a school room, an addition to the Oregon City schools. There are about 25 pupils from the eighth grade and 15 from the primary grade to be taught there. The rooms in the Barclay building are crowded and by establishing the new room, this relieving the crowded condition.

Columbus Day Program—Columbus Day is to be observed in Oregon City on Friday, October 21. The procession will form at Twelfth and Jefferson streets at the public school grounds and move at 1:30 o'clock. It will be composed of school children from Parkside, West Side, Mount Pleasant, Falls View, Canemah and Oregon City. The line of march will be from the school house to Main street, up the west side of Main to the "basin," and down the east side of Main to Seventh, then to Shively's will be observed. Music, Willamette Cornet band; chorus, "America" school children; address, Superintendent H. S. Gibson; address, George C. Brownell; music; address, H. S. Strangle; music; band.

Died—In Oregon City, at the residence of his son, Wallace Cole, October 10, of typhoid malaria, M. H. Cole, aged 55 years, 11 months and 14 days. Deceased had been a resident of Oregon City for a number of years. He was a Mason, and the funeral Wednesday afternoon was under the auspices of that order, Rev. G. William, of the Presbyterian church.

Drawing Room Entertainment—The ladies of the Women Meade Relief Corps will give a drawing room entertainment at Pope's hall the last week of October. A program consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works will be rendered after which games will be introduced.

Mr. Latourette Returns—C. D. Latourette returned last Friday from his Eastern trip. He went with his mother to Chicago, from which point she went to her old home in Fenton, Michigan, where she will spend the winter with another son, H. B. Latourette, vice-president of the Commercial Bank of that city. Mr. Latourette went from Chicago to Washington, from there to Baltimore, thence to Detroit and to Fenton, where he was born and reared. Of course he found the political trend in favor of Cleveland—he's a democrat, himself. Mr. Latourette was absent from the city a little more than three weeks.

Mrs. Pope's Party—Mrs. L. E. Pope gave a dinner party to a number of her young friends last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and in the evening they formed a party to attend the Portland exposition.

FIFTY-FOUR YEARS AGO

Taken from the Oregon City Enterprise, October 17, 1868.

Tableaux and Charades—On the evenings of Tuesday and Wednesday, the 20th and 21st of October, 1868, there will be an exhibition of tableaux and charades at the Washington hall in Oregon City for the Pioneer Lodge No. 1, of the Order of Eastern Star. Doors will open at 7 o'clock. The performance will begin at 7:30 o'clock. Admission 50 cents.

Addresses Assembly—Hon. George H. Williams addressed the people on Thursday at Washington hall.

Men at Work—Ben Holladay & Company are actually at work in Oregon City. Mr. Gaston. Those old places will all soon be made smooth as 87 men are at work on the road in Bluff street, alone have you as many on your entire line?

Will Preach—Rev. J. W. Miller, late of Wisconsin, will preach at the Congregational church in this city on Sunday morning and evening at the usual hour of holding service.

Leaves Potatoes—William Welch has left some of the finest potatoes at the office of the Enterprise that we have seen this season. Fifteen of them filled a common market basket.

New Ferry Boat—The new ferry boat at this city has been successfully launched, and proves to be among the best of that class of craft.

Festivals—Within the space of ten days three festivals have been held at the court house in this city. The first, given as a benefit by the ladies to the Clackamas Base Ball club, is spoken of as being a very pleasant affair. On Monday evening the pupils of the select school of Miss Harvey gave a supper and netted a handsome sum to be devoted to the purchase of a piano. Last evening the ladies gave a benefit for the Congregational church.

JOE DE MACON IS FOUND GUILTY ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Canemah Man Is Convicted By
Circuit Court Jury After 20 Minutes Deliberation;
Alibi Held Not Sufficient.

MOONSHINERS' RING IS DECLARED BROKEN

Charlie Straight, Serving One
Year For Bootlegging Says
He Was Party to Violation.

"Canemah" Joe DeMacon, said to be the "supply" of one of Clackamas county's best organized liquor rings was convicted in the circuit court Monday afternoon. The jury was out for twenty minutes.

DeMacon was indicted about two months ago by the circuit court grand jury. Evidence presented by city police officials and state officers was the basis for the true bill. DeMacon's place had been repeatedly raided by city and county officials. The last raid was made by city police accompanied by the state men. In DeMacon's house at Canemah were found a number of liquor containers and supplies used in liquor manufacture.

Charles Straight, serving a year term for moonshining testified that on August 12, he had bought liquor from DeMacon.

DeMacon claimed that he had been fishing at the time of the alleged sale. Witnesses for the state were: H. H. Hughes, Wm. J. Wilson, J. F. Roy, A. S. Wells, Charles Straight, Jerry Hemmingsway and W. J. Jefferies and Wesley Froumal. Those called by the defense were DeMacon, George L. Melum, Hazel DeMacon, Joe Imel, August Rakel, Arthur McAnulty and Nels Melum.

The jury was composed of Aurie Draper, William Boyd, S. P. Londergan, Robert D. Wilson, Charles L. Horstman, Sam J. Jones, Lizzie Bonney, R. H. Taber, Edgar C. Brown, Adam Beil, W. H. Bonney, and Louise Kamrath.

Bonus Fight Only Begun States Head Of American Legion

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 16.—While his "buddies" shouted and stamped their approval, retiring National Commander Hanford MacNide opened the fourth annual convention of the American Legion here today with a militant declaration that the soldier bonus fight has only just begun.

From out of the long, hard battle he and his aides directed unsuccessfully to put the "adjusted compensation" over the top at Washington, MacNide asserted that "no one man unaided by the war, without kin or in those who served, no one group, financial or otherwise, can stand between the wishes of the American people and the fulfillment of what they believe to be a government obligation."

He made no direct reference to the vote by President Harding on the McCumber-Fordney bonus measure, nor to the little group of senators who sustained the veto, but he left no doubt as to whom he referred as he carefully aimed each of his barded verbal shots at the opponents of "adjusted compensation," for the nation's ex-soldiers.

Boy Shoots Self In Foot While Hunting For China Pheasant

The only accident occurring among the China pheasant hunters from this city on Sunday was to Leo Limbacher, twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Limbacher, of Ninth and Van Buren streets. The lad in company with a schoolmate started for a hunting trip near the Limbacher home. The gun accidentally exploded causing a shot to enter the left foot and penetrate the bone in the heel, coming out on the opposite side of the bone. An operation was performed in the Oregon City hospital, and the bullet extracted.

The lad's condition is favorable.
