STAFFORD

Most of the graves in both cemeteries at this place were nicely cleaned and decorated with a profusion of flowers. This was the more surprising because everyone had felt rather dubious about flowers as early spring flowers had gone out of blossom and hardly a rose had yet opened.

Pure white snowballs, especially, came bravely to the rescue and a number of colored flowers followed and every grave looked beautiful.

Mrs. C. M. Gage was out from Portland, bringing a basket of flowers on Memorial day.

Mrs. Otto Peters, who has been

A big prospect for a great crop of berries of all kinds, especially strawberries and the wild running blackberries and huckleberries in the mountains.

The shingle mill is running to full capacity and has orders enough to run it all summer. There are millions of feet of cedar in cedar logs and stumps in every direction, which could be converted into useful articles and furnish work for an army of men.

Decoration day was observed at the cemetery here and a good-sized crowd was in attendance. The program consisted of singing the Star Spangled Banner, reading a scripture lesson and an invocation by Rev. Wm. Runyan, Lincoln's Gettysburg address by Miss Grace Sherrill, song by Miss Genevieve and Mildred Rugh, recitation by Miss Lillian B. Meribrok, address by the writer, recitation by Geo. P. Cooper and a flag salute, conducted by Prof. Cooper. The exercises concluded with the singing of America.

SLEEPS WITH BUTTER

Alex DeFord, Drinker of Alcohol, in Jail for Vagrancy

When a man drinks so much that he will steal a roll of butter and cuddle it fondly to his manly bosom while he sleeps through the night, authorities say that he must be very much drunk. And that is just how drunk Alex DeFord was on last Saturday night. Alex didn't know how drunk he was, but from the stories he heard of his actions, while in jail, he has got a very good idea. Yes, indeed, Alex was very drunk.

DeFord imbued ethyl alcohol, which he escorted to a dance at Clackamas Heights on Saturday evening. As the fluid content of the bottle registered pretty low he started in the general direction of home. Likewise he started to lose what little thinking power was left after consuming the bottle. DeFord picked out one of the hospitable homes on Clackamas Heights, commandeered an ax as a weapon of warfare and pried up a window. Once inside the home Alex selected the kitchen for attack, as all good soldiers know that the base of supply is the vital spot of any army or any camp. Within the pantry a roll of butter took a strong liking for Alex and with that as the spoils of conquest he proceeded to the parlor. Of course, Alex didn't know that she went to the parlor, but the district attorney knew and so did Constable Frost.

When the master of the hospitable house got up next morning to let the cat in and to put the coffee on to boil he found DeFord soundly sleeping, with the roll of butter as a bedfellow. Efforts to arouse the sleeping wonder were of no avail, and Constable Frost was summoned. The heavy hand of the law upon the DeFord shoulder had prompt results and the alcoholic gentleman was marched away to jail.

DeFord will willingly give to the manufacturers of ethyl alcohol a testimonial as to its effectiveness as a stimulant. He is certain that a few drinks of the pure-white fluid will make most any man pry open a window in a strange house and sleep with a roll of butter.

SOMERS SUES HARVEY

Aftermath of Hill Murders Brought Into Court Here

Another chapter will be written in the annals of the famous Hill murder case when the action started by a complaint filed by attorneys for C. E. Somers against Nathan B. Harvey on Wednesday is heard in the circuit court.

Harvey was suspected of the perpetration of the Hill murders or of complicity in the crime, but circumstantial evidence obtained against him could never be proved and at a justice court hearing the justice of the peace refused to bind Harvey over to the grand jury.

In the meantime, beginning with November 1911 and terminating with the same month in 1914, Harvey employed C. E. Somers as a special investigator in connection with the Hill murder, trusting to the findings of such an investigation to vindicate himself if he were held for the grand jury, or if his case came to trial.

According to the complaint filed against Harvey on Wednesday Somers alleges that he worked three years for Harvey as an investigator and was to be paid at the rate of $125 a month. Although he continued his work Somers alleges that he did not receive any part of the stipulated wage and in the complaint asks for a judgment of $4500 and interest at the rate of six per cent per annum since November, 1914.

An interesting phase of the present action is the fact that Brownell and Sievers represent Somers. In the proceedings prior to and at the time of the justice court hearing Mr. Brownell represented Harvey.

SCHOOL RAID MADE

Marauders Enter High School at Night and Pile Books

Unknown marauders entered the high school building in Oregon City on Monday night and turned the implements of student torture therein topsy-turvy. Books were taken from cases and desks piled on chairs and tables about the room. The library was ransacked and the books taken from the shelves and put into huge piles on the reading tables.

Miss Busch's desk was taken from her classroom and on Wednesday morning was found doing duty in the boys' shower room in the basement.

Tuesday was a holiday and the raid on the high school was not discovered until Wednesday morning. Classes were delayed and a great deal of inconvenience caused by the escapade. The teachers have no clue as to the perpetrators of the raid, and hardly think that pupils are guilty because the end of the school term was so close that they would have no object for such actions.

OLD CLOTHES WORN

High School Pupils Don Peculiar Garb on Wednesday

In carrying out an annual custom the boys and girls of the senior class in the Oregon City high school garbed themselves in the oldest clothes from the family chests, in overalls and in aprons and attended their classes on Wednesday.

The class presented a weird appearance when its members reported for study, with the boys in overalls and their extraordinary covering and the girls in aprons. The last time the pupils engaged in such a frolic the authorities declared the day a holiday for the participants and report cards suffered accordingly. On Wednesday, however, the pupils remained in their odd clothing throughout the day and attended classes as usual.

Mrs. Roxanna Clester was a Portland visitor last week. Walter Douglass and wife made a trip to Estacada Monday.

PARTY ENDS SEASON

Derthick Club Has Splendid Meeting at Loder Home

The Derthick club closed its meetings for this season with a party, given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Loder Friday evening.

The past year has been devoted to the study of American music. A great deal of interest has been shown by the club and many interesting and instructive programs have been enjoyed.

About sixty friends and members of the club were present at the party and the following program started the evening's pleasure:

June Rhapsody—Daniels, Amaryl-lis—Parlow, Derthick Chorus; An Evening Love Song—Chipman, From the Land of the Sky-blue Water—Cadman, Garland Hollowell; A Perfect day—Homer, My Little Girl, Fallsarian Quartette; Mattinate—Leoncavallo, For He Loved Her—Rusk, Miss Kathleen Sealy; At Twilight—Friml, The Dusk Witch—Ambrose, Derthick Chorus; Until—Sanderson, Requiem—Homer, Garland Hollowell; Annie Laurie—Buck, Fallsarian Quartette.

The comical suitcase contest caused a great deal of merriment and the prize was awarded to Mrs. Neita B. Lawrence and Mr. John Loder. Many questions were asked and a great deal of thinking was caused by the penny contest, which decided the partners for supper. The Loder home was beautifully decorated with scotch-broom and pansies and every room appeared delightfully inviting.

The next season of the club will begin the first Friday of October.

WOULD STOP SWEARING

Fishermen's Union Volunteers to Aid Officers in Ending Rowdism

Salvation from the venomous vocabularies of some few ardent fishermen who inhabit the river about Oregon City has come at last through action taken by the Clackamas County Fishermen's union at its meeting here on last Thursday evening. The members of the union brought up complaints themselves regarding the unnecessary loud talking and cursing that is indulged in by a certain element on the river. The union claims that these infractions do not come from its members, but from rowdies who have no connection with the union.

Union members volunteered to take officers in their boats at any time and to assist otherwise, in bringing those who do not regard their action seriously, to justice.

M'KAY CASE OUSTED

Judge Campbell Sustains Demurrer of District Attorney

Judge Campbell on Monday sustained a demurrer filed by the district attorney in the case of the county versus Stanley McKay, who sought to recover $50 of forfeited bail money.

McKay was convicted last fall for his failure to make room on the highway for another vehicle. In truth, the McKay automobile collided with a buggy in which B. L. Harvey and Miss Marie Harvey were riding. Both the occupants of the buggy were injured. McKay forfeited bail money when he did not appear to answer the charge against him.

In reviewing the case Judge Campbell advised attorneys for the defense that the proper way to recover bail money would be through a writ of review and for that reason he threw the McKay case out.

Redmen Win Game

The Oregon City Redmen baseball team defeated the Moose lodge team at Canemah Park on Sunday by a score of 15 to 2. A lead secured early in the game was more than the Moose team could overcome and two home runs by Causey of the Redmen added further to the handicap that brought defeat to the Moose.

Auto Is Damaged

When the new automobile of Dan Lyons, of Oregon City, backed and collided with a telephone pole late last week, Mr. and Mrs. Lyons and their son narrowly escaped injury. A fender and the rear spring were badly broken as a result of the compact with the pole and the occupants were severely shaken up.
