

WHY NOT?

KC is pure. KC is healthful. It really does make lighter, nicer biscuits, cakes and pastry than the old fashioned single acting baking powders.

And you pay only a fair price for it. No baking powder should sell for more.

LAMPMAN IS NOMINEE

Newspaperman Greets the Nomination in His "Once Over"

Rex Lampman, who creates heart throbs for the readers of the Oregon Journal and who is the perfect gentleman who put Oak Grove, Clackamas county, on the map through his literary efforts in behalf of that thriving little community, has been declared candidate on the democratic ticket for the honorable position of joint legislator for Clackamas and Multnomah counties.

If the words of Rex Lampman come from his heart he would make an excellent representative in spite of "Pup," the Lampman family dog, and other shortcomings that are attributed to the young man, such as his mustache and flowing necktie. His own welcome to the nomination which was thrust upon him is expressed in the following "Once Over," the daily feature of Lampman's daily newspaper grind:

IT MIGHT APPEAR—from a large official document—that I have just received from Salem—that I have become a politician.

But such is not the case. I'm merely the nominee—of the Democratic party—for joint representation in the legislature.

—for Clackamas and Multnomah counties.

—which is what makes it joint.

And I find—from reading the document—which is signed by Governor Withycombe and Secretary of State Olcott—that I am the nominee.

—because I received the largest number of votes.

—and so far as I know—there is no other reason.

—because I didn't run for the nomination.

—or do anything—to be nominated.

And I don't know how to save any money—for the taxpayers.

And I haven't any laws—that I want to get through—to help anybody—or stop anything.

—or create any offices—or abolish any.

—or anything like that.

My position was very much like that of Mr. Hughes—who it may be recalled—was recently nominated—by the Republican party—for president.

He never said a word about his candidacy.

And I never said a word—about mine.

He just kept on the job—as justice of the supreme court.

And I just kept on the job—as reporter on The Journal.

And the people rose right up—and nominated us both.

And neither one of us knew what was going on.

But as soon as Mr. Hughes found out what had happened to him—he began to say things—and do things.

For instance—he resigned his job.

And this is one place—where my case does not parallel his.

I need my job—and I know it.

And Mr. Hughes doesn't seem to care.

—seems to think he'll have no trouble—picking up something—after next November.

And the first thing—that Mr. Hughes did—after he found he was nominated—was to criticize the administration.

—which—he said—had blundered.

And thus far—I can keep neck and neck with him.

I criticize the legislature.

—which blunders—every time it meets.

And I sometimes think that the only way—absolutely—for the legislature to atone for its misdeeds—is to abolish itself.

But that is hoping for too much.

You might as well expect the czar to resign—and go to work.

—which is something czars never do.

—any more than politicians get enough office holding.

But for all the points of resemblance—between the Hughes campaign and mine—

—(the slight attention that either of us is attracting—for instance)—

—there is one place—where I have an immense advantage—over Mr. Hughes—and—

LISTEN—That is—that I'm in no danger—none whatever—of having ex-President Roosevelt—and ex-President Taft—get out and take the stump for me.

THE FASHIONS

Summer finds us very much inclined toward stripes, in linens, pongs, tussahs, voiles, crepes and the various imported and domestic novelty cottons. The ground of these materials is usually white, or the natural crash or linen color, and the stripe either a vivid or a soft tone, according to the purpose of the frock, or the fancy of the wearer. These striped materials are usually combined with a plain fabric, corresponding with the color of the stripe, or the ground. On the Russian blouse models, and the other designs, Norfolk, and the various peplum models, now so well liked, the striped silk or linen is used for the coat, and the plain for the skirt, or vice versa.

Another Find in the Upholstery Department

Last summer we took cretonne from the upholstery department and transferred it in great quantities to the dressgoods counter; still on the lookout for novelties, we discovered this season, that the plain and striped cotton and linen homespun, intended for summer cottage furnishings, were charmingly suited to sport suits and skirts, being especially practical for those which require a bit harder wear than the ordinary linen or silk garment will stand. These also have the natural crash and linen grounds, and are striped in the same tones, barring the softer shades. The black and white combination is especially smart, and there are bright green, purple, orange, and a wide choice of the other bright shades which are so much in favor for sports wear. This material is wide and inexpensive. One especially effective suit developed in this homespun has a plain crash-color skirt, combined with a black and white striped coat. The pocket flaps on the skirt were of the striped material, and collar, cuffs,

As we combine stripes with plain materials in our sports costumes, so do we combine figured with plain fabrics in our lingerie and tub frocks both for grown-ups and for small girls.

There are sprigged and dotted dimities, embroidered and printed voiles, flowered organdies, embroidered muslins and batistes, each with its corresponding plain material, to be combined in the slip-on blouses, Russian and numerous other smart peplum designs. The flowered dimities are especially pretty for the very small girl, and many a tiny frock of rosebud and white dimity, trimmed with frills of Valenciennes lace and insertion, is being displayed in the smart shops, for the little miss of two or three summers.

The flowered, printed or embroidered crepes and voiles are very pretty used this way, and there are printed silks being combined with plain taffetas and satins, in the same way, for afternoon frocks.

Handkerchief Linen for Blouses

For blouses, both of the sports type and the more dressy models, the striped and figured handkerchief linens are modish. These have usually white grounds with colored stripe, flower, or conventionalized pattern. The stripes are much more in evidence than the figured linens. For the costume blouse, Georgette crepe is the general favorite. In white or the soft tones of pink, blue, café au lait, Nile green, and the various other pastel shades, this material washes perfectly; the dark tones are excellent and are practical for the tailored suit, being selected to harmonize, or match the shade of the suit.

Linen and Georgette are often combined most effectively in the smart afternoon models for country club and like wear. One unusually attractive costume shows a Russian blouse of mauve linen; another imported model, made on Russian blouse lines, shows the novel combination of foulard and muslin; the blouse is of muslin and the skirt of foulard.

Trimings for Lingerie Dresses

Much narrow Valenciennes and flit lace edging and insertion is used to trim the dainty muslin and voile dresses this summer. It edges the frills of bodice and skirt, finishes the collar and cuffs, joins the seams, or is applied in any way that strikes the individual fancy. Embroidery is another strong trimming feature. Scarcely a blouse or tub-frock but shows a touch of white or colored handwork on collar, cuff, belt, or at the closing. Novelty buttons, embossed or stenciled, lend a touch of effective color to the dark linen or serge frock, and the light crystal buttons add a pretty finish to the voile and crepes.

ment that has been patiently awaited by war observers for several months.

Private advices from the front indicate that the long-awaited British offensive on the west front finally has begun. The earlier activity of the British had a more or less "feeling out" character and left it uncertain whether General Sir Douglas Haig was in earnest or merely endeavoring to hold the German forces on his front. But Saturday it was fairly apparent that the new movement is the beginning of a serious offensive.

Three troops of the Eighth United States cavalry under command of Captain Leroy Eltinge, dashed across the border Sunday in pursuit of Mexican bandits who looted Craft's mining camp near Nulo, Texas. It is believed they either have clashed with the bandits or are pursuing them further into Mexico.

The raid occurred before dawn Saturday. Forty mounted Mexicans, all armed, dashed into the camps. They drove the residents to cover with a fusillade of shots. Rounding up eight horses and rifling the mercantile store at the camp of a great quantity of provisions, they galloped back across the border.

Although popular attention has for the moment been distracted from Verdun by the great allies' offensive in Picardy, the tremendous efforts being put forth by Germans and allies farther west has brought no intermission in the battle for the fortress. The fighting, if anything, has become more violent.

French and German war offices are in dispute regarding the possession of the bitterly contested Thiaumont works on the eastern bank of the Meuse.

The British have captured Fricourt, and thus far a total of 2500 prisoners have been brought in, according to an official report received this week from British headquarters in France. The report says:

"Substantial progress has been made in the vicinity of Fricourt, which was captured by our troops by 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Up to noon today 500 more prisoners had been taken in operations between the Ancre and the Somme, bringing the total up to 3500, including those captured on other parts of the front last night."

In Mexico the situation is not advanced over last week. Many of the state troops rushed to the border upon command of President Wilson have arrived and are encamped from the gulf of Mexico to the Pacific. Carranza's reply to the demands made recently by the President has been expected for several days and earlier in the week the date for its arrival was set on Wednesday. Prefacing its actual receipt Mexican correspondents to the several news services announce that the reply is in a defiant tone and contains many counter-demands upon the United States government.

News of the Week from War Zones of Europe and Mexico

Street fights in Berlin after the sentencing of Karl Liebknecht, the Socialist leader, to penal servitude and dismissal from the army for attempted high treason and resistance to the authorities are described in Dutch newspapers.

Svenska Dagbladet of Stockholm declares that Germany is preparing for a great offensive in the Baltic. Many German torpedo boats and destroyers have arrived at Libau. The command of the fleet, it is stated, will be transferred from Kiel to Libau.

The Berlin populace fought with sticks against the police and military. The soldiers fired into a crowd with the result that ten persons and one soldier were severely wounded. Fifty Socialists were arrested after a wild scuffle.

Troop A, Oregon cavalry, now a part of the United States regular army, together with two battalions of Oregon infantry, is encamped near the exposition grounds at San Diego. All troopers have been issued their new army equipment, with the exception of the mounds, which are on their way and will be furnished soon.

Three Mexicans were arrested at Parsons, Kan., on Saturday shortly before the first section of the train bearing the First Illinois regiment was scheduled to pass through. The men were arrested on the railroad tracks and officers declared they were trying to throw a switch and thereby wreck the train. All bridges and rights-of-way in the vicinity have been protected.

Fricourt, three miles east of Albert, the scene of desperate fighting between the British and Germans since the entente allied offensive was begun Saturday morning, has been captured by the British, according to an official statement issued Sunday. The statement says: "Substantial progress has been made in the vicinity of Fricourt, which was captured by us at 2 P. M. today."

The French have retaken the Thiaumont works, according to the official statement issued by the war office Saturday night.

After several furious assaults, the Germans finally succeeded in penetrating the works around Thiaumont at noon. They had been captured by the French Friday. Saturday was the third time the works have changed hands in two days.

Because of the fierce British drive on the German front in France the ally forces have occupied the line light in the European war game this week. The drive is said to be one of the heaviest movements in the last several months and from the following reports it seems evident that the British are gaining ground rapidly. This is the British offensive move-

Had Suffered For Over Eight Years

Doctors Advised an Operation but Simple Remedy Made It Unnecessary

For over eight years Mr. U. S. G. Henry, 806 East 9th St., Oklahoma City, had suffered with stomach and liver trouble until finally he could no longer stand the pain. He says: "The doctors told me nothing but an operation would give me relief. I decided to first try Fruitola and Traxo, which relieved me of a quantity of gall stones and I have no further pain or trouble from my old complaint. I would not take $500.00 for what your remedies have done for me."

Fruitola, as the name implies, is a pure fruit oil, combined with certain harmless salts, and acts as a lubricant on the intestinal parts, softening the congested masses, disintegrating the hardened particles that cause so much suffering and expelling the accumulation to the patient's great relief. Traxo acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation. It is a splendid tonic and serves to build up and restore the weakened run-down system.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Oregon City, Portland, Canby and Hubbard they can be obtained at Huntley Bros. Co. Drug Stores.

These bankers declare that such legislation would be inimical to the business of the smaller banks; that the tendency of central banks is to withdraw funds to the legal limit of their reserves in the smaller cities, and concentrate in the big banks in the cities, promoting the interests of the larger city enterprises with which they have business connections.
