SECRET OF A MOTHER BIRD.

How Does the Chimney Swift Get Her Brood Up the Flue?

In the autumn chimney swift nests often made the chimney smoke, and they had to be fished out or knocked down by lowering a pine branch on a rope from the roof.

Once upon a time, of course, these swallows built in hollow trees. But a pair of them, flying over Plymouth in 1621, spied something which looked like a new kind of tree, and the breed was on its way to a new procedure.

Possibly the fact that chimneys are safer from squirrels, coons, owls and other possible enemies was a factor in determining the change. Then, too, it is undoubtedly easier to find chimneys today than hollow trees. I well remember, as a boy, hearing a noise in one of our chimneys and pulling out the stovepipe hole cap in my chamber.
There, directly opposite the opening, perched on a protruding brick, a swift was building a nest of sticks!

I watched the whole process, fascinated by the sticky mudflage which the bird secreted in her salivary glands to fasten the sticks together, and after the mother was sitting gradually got her so tame—or, rather, sufficiently subdued her wildness—that she would remain occasionally on the nest when the cap was removed. My great desire was to see how she got the young birds up the chimney after they were large enough to leave the nest, but, alas, that feat was accomplished one day when I wasn't looking! I felt certain then that she must have carried them up in her bill, though I was laughed at for my belief.

Has any one observed a chimney swift getting her young up the flue?
Curiously enough, I myself have never had another chance to watch.—Walter Prichard Eaton in Harper's Magazine.

HOME IN ITS TRUE SENSE.

Each Must Help to Make It, but One Alone Can Mar It.

To say of the home which marriage ought to create that it is "a man's kingdom, a child's paradise and a woman's world" is to blur its meaning.

The home is no one's kingdom, no one's paradise, no one's world. The only kingdom it resembles is the kingdom of heaven, because it is within you. Home is dependent for its reality—and its reality is as deep as anything we know—upon a condition of spirit.

This indeed is embodied or at least shadowed forth in this or that physical symbol—the sheltering roof, the fireplace, the common table—but it is dependent on no one of these.

For Omar the symbol was the loaf, the jug and the book; for Deldre and Naisi it was the tent "as tidy as a beehive or a linnet's nest," or the open sky "among the snipe and plover."

Home means love and companionship and mutual dependence, the spirit of common service and of common loyalty. It may be achieved by a husband and wife or by a family or by two friends or even by a single person who has the home feeling toward the world without.

To say that it is the woman's hardest task to make the home is to miss its most exquisite meaning. No one of the group can make the home, though any one can mar it. It must be made by all for the uses of all.—Atlantic Monthly.

Real Academic Dignity.

Max Muller tells a story of one of Dr. Strachan Davidson's predecessors as master of Balliol. "Once when returning from a solitary walk Dr. Jenkins, whose regard for his own dignity was very great, slipped and fell. Two undergraduates, seeing the accident, ran to assist him and were just laying hands on him to lift him up when he declared a master of arts coming.
'Stop!' he cried. 'I see a master of arts coming down the street,' and he dismissed the undergraduates, with many thanks, and was helped on his legs by the M. A."—London Chronicle.

For Safety's Sake.

A captain of a small trading vessel having some contraband goods on board wanted to unload them at a small port.

"Joe," he said to the customs man, whom he knew well, "I'll be to stick a pound note over each of your eyes could ye see?"

"No," replied the man, "and if I had another over my mouth I couldn't speak either!"—London Tit-Bits.

Aroused Her Suspicion.

"I see," he said, "that coal has gone up again."

"Has it?" she replied.

"And they're raising rents," he continued.

"Well," she exclaimed, frowning up, "if you wish to have our engagement broken off say so. I always hate to have people beat about the bush in a case of this kind."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

At the Museum.

"Is that the artist's name in big letters on that picture, pop?"

"No, my son. That is the name of the rich man who presented the picture to the museum. You will find the artist's name in very small letters down in the lower right hand corner."—St.
Louis Post-Dispatch.

Somewhat Safer.

"I'm going to get a lot of money soon."

"Who told you that?"

"A fortune teller."

"I'd rather have that sort of information from a paying teller."—Pittsburgh Post.

That is the bitterest of all, to wear the yoke of your own wrongdoing.— Elliot.

CREAMERY PROSPERS

Clear Creek Creamery Produces Annually 770,000 Pounds of Butter

Among the important industries of Clackamas county outside the county seat is the Clear Creek creamery, owned and operated by a group of progressive citizens in that community.
The Clear Creek creamery is one of the most successful butter manufacturies in this section of the state and annually produces about 770,000 pounds of first class dairy butter. The record for the present year was made in June when 82,000 pounds were manufactured in the one month.

The Clear Creek creamery has increased its production and equipment practically each year since it was established fifteen years ago. It is now equipped with the latest and most efficient creamery machinery, including two 300 gallon churns, a refrigerator plant, five 300 gallon cream vats and steam and gasoline power and heating machinery. Three men are employed in the manufacturing department under the direct supervision of W. P. Kirchem, manager of the company. T. E. Anderson is secretary of the company.

For a radius of twenty miles about Clear Creek the creamery gets practically the entire cream production.
The company's big trucks go as far east as Dolph; as far west as the Washington county line and as far north as the Sunnyside district.
South, the creamery gets cream as far as Molalla.

The creamery plant is immaculately clean and even on the warmest days is cool and refreshing. It is situated in the heart of a very rich farming district on the banks of the Clackamas, where every element is conducive to cleanliness and purity.
All products of the Clear Creek creamery are marketed under the name and brands of the company and are enjoying a sale which could not be greater in view of the capacity of the manufactory.

HELP A GOOD CAUSE

Last Effort Being Made to Secure Justice in Land Grant

The pioneers of Oregon were forced to undergo many hardships in carrying out homes in the wilderness. To help those pioneers, the federal government granted to the Oregon-California Railroad company a large grant of land to assist in building that road and to give to Oregon more settlers and more taxable property. The government received its pay, all it ever expected, in the building of the road and the concessions received. Had the land grant been disposed of according to the terms of the grant, Oregon would be profiting today by many more acres of taxable lands and many more settlers. Oregon alone is the sufferer, yet when these lands are disposed of according to the bill recently passed she gets but 50 per cent of the proceeds.

Thousands of acres of arid lands thirsting for water, yet 40 per cent of the land grant fund goes to the general reclamation fund instead of to these lands.

Representative Sinnott is making a last fight for the 40 per cent and has introduced a bill amending the original bill, asking that the
