MARIE DESCLOUX

Marie Descloux, aged 7, died here at 4 o'clock last Thursday afternoon, less than two hours after she was struck by an automobile driven by Stanley Stevenson, a former Brownsville druggist. The little girl's right side was crushed and almost every rib was smashed. One of the broken ribs pierced her right lung and strangulation as a result of this was the immediate cause of death. The right side of her face was also badly bruised.

Marie was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Descloux of Eighteenth and Harrison streets, and was in the second grade at McLaughlin institute. The family came to Oregon City a few years ago from France and the little girl had just mastered English under the direction of her school teachers. Her father is employed in the paper mills.

The child was on her way home from school when she started to cross Main street at Thirteenth. She hesitated, it is said, and confused the driver. The fender of the car struck the girl and carried her for several feet. Stevenson stopped, picked her up and took her to Dr. M. C. Strickland, who attended her injuries while the mortally wounded girl talked about her disobedience in going home by a different route than the one her mother had told her to follow. Marie did not lose consciousness until she had been removed to her home, where she died within a few moments.

Stevenson reported the accident to the officers and put his car away, remaining over night in Oregon City to await the outcome of the inquest which was held on Friday. He had been on his way to Portland where he intended to sell his car and use the money to take a medical course. The coroner's jury exonerated Mr. Stevenson, its verdict saying that the cause of death had been an "unavoidable accident." On the following day, when Stevenson was about to leave the city again, a street railway train bumped into a wood wagon driven by Chris Mural of Homedale, throwing the wagon against the automobile and damaging it considerably. Mr. Stevenson left the city with the impression that he and his car were hoodooed here.

SIGNS ARE FALSE
PARADE IS JOKEREPUBLICAN RALLY CALLS OUT
STRONG SUPPORT FOR PRESIDENT WILSON

MRS. HANLEY TALKS IN CIRCLE

Facts Misrepresented by Banners and
All Good Laws are Made by the G. O. P.

Carrying out in detail the idea of the entire republican campaign, national and local, an idea combining misconception and common untruth with big vocal breezes, the republican rally, long heralded, was held on the streets of Oregon City on Thursday evening, while hundreds of spectators cheered themselves into hoarseness for Woodrow Wilson.

The republican rally, consisting solely of a street parade and a tame little speech by Mrs. E. B. Hanley of Medford, was one long line of the evidence of misconception that has been put into the minds of republican voters by tearing the truth out of facts and flaunting the remains and by garbling the statements made by and on behalf of the democratic candidate.

The parade was a strong presentation of the evidence that a polluted republican press has played consistently and with great profit upon the ignorance of the mass of voters, leading them by the halter of printed untruths, with the result that several hundred of these voters paraded the streets of our fair city Thursday night, gay pack horses for the untruthful banners that were prepared to seduce others of their kith and kin.

As far as democracy in Clackamas county is concerned there is to be no discussion involving the voters who paraded on Thursday evening, for they were but a loyal group of partisans playing the old game of follow-the-leader on a more extensive scale than it has ever been played in this county. But from an unbiased point of view the parade was ludicrous. It was as good as a vaudeville show and had all the earmarks of the real thing, even to the posing and statuesque Goddess of Liberty.

A gaily pointed banner, the entire width of the street and several feet deep, was carried up and down the line of march by a bevy of republican patriots. The banner bore these words: "Hughes and duty without fear. Duty will keep out foreign paper."

What stronger evidence that the republican party is playing upon the ignorance of its members could be asked than that a banner? What more certain sign could there be that the party leaders have seduced their followers than that brightly colored lie?

Does not the republican party and its guiding geniuses in Clackamas county know that Hughes has no more to do with "duty" than you or I? Have they not been informed that through the active influence of a great and worthy statesman the tariff has been taken out of politics? How, then, can Hughes or any other president have the slightest thing to do with putting a duty on paper or any other article of commerce.

Of course the republican party and its leaders in Clackamas county know this, but if they told it on their bright banners it would harm the cause they are boosting with their millions of dollars, provided by the fond plutocrats of Wall street. They must paint their banners in order to continue the seduction of the voters who have allied themselves with the grand old party and are now standing helplessly by while it decays in the frightful aroma of its own questionable methods.

Do these selfsame leaders think that this banner made an impression upon several thousands of onlookers Thursday evening? It is the opinion of most of those onlookers that, once again, the G. O. P. has guessed wrong—has opened its big bazoo and stuck its own foot into the cavity. Do these leaders think that a duty on paper in one way or another would effect the supply into this territory; in fact, do they think a duty on paper would effect the supply into any territory in the United States? Before the war the chief foreign supply came from Canada. The Crown-Willamette Paper company controls this supply, insofar as it effects this particular territory, through its mills at Ocean Falls, B. C. Labor is no cheaper in Canada than it is in Oregon City. How then, would the Crown-Willamette interests cut their own throats by turning the paper they make in Canada into this field at the expense of their great investments in this country? Of course, they would not do such a thing. The Crown-Willamette people control the field and they have a heavy interest in this field. That seems to make the ban-

MR. WINTERS EVADES
VOTERS' QUESTIONSWILSONVILLE DOES NOT LIKE
IMPORTED REPUBLICAN
FOOLISHNESSWilsonville, Oct. 30, 1916.
Editor of the Courier:

Friday night, October 27, Wilsonville was honored with the presence of a few republican politicians.

While some of the speakers said they would give anyone an opportunity to ask questions, they failed to keep their word. After these long winded gentlemen had offered a few brief remarks on just one or two questions and a third of the enthusiastic crowd had been so completely winded they had to give up the verbal race and leave for home, the rest, who were not frozen, were surprised to suddenly learn that the speeches were ended, no time for questions had been given and it was only eleven o'clock.

Mr. Stone, the first speaker, who is a candidate for district attorney, made the statement that that office at the present time was costing us $6000 a year but he failed to make clear where this money was spent. He said the salary was $2100, and a deputy cost us $900, but he made no clear statement where the other $3000 was used. If he meant the $3000 that is set aside to enforce the dry law and the county's books show the $3000 to be on hand with an additional sum of something over $200 added to it from fines for violations of this law, then it is evident his statements, in this direction at least, are not as accurate as they might be.

The final and what was supposed to be the main speech of the evening was delivered by the Hon. Mr. Winter of Portland on the presidential campaign. I wish to suggest to the Oregon City republicans who imported this speaker that the next time they had better send us a speaker who will not give himself away in the first few remarks he makes.

Evidently Mr. Winter some times makes some pretty shaky statements or he uses extremely poor judgment. He said that if any one could explain the Panama tolls proposition they could pin a Wilson button on him. Then he proceeded to tell us of so-called mistakes, blunders and bad laws for almost two hours. In fact he didn't give Wilson credit for doing anything at any time, in any place, that was right, and said he didn't have half enough time to show all the president's blunders and mistakes. Now if one would explain the tolls proposition Mr. Winter would swallow a list of mistakes, blunders and rotten laws, according to his views, that he could not cover briefly in a four hour talk, throw his hat in the air, dance a jig and yell for Wilson. Does that sound reasonable even to you Oregon City republican speech promoters. I do not believe very many voters could take that pill without at least shaking their ears while it was going down.

You Oregon City republicans will have to send us a different type of speaker if you desire to bring the bacon home for Hughes. Such a dunce, numskull and jellyfish as you would have us believe our president is would hardly be found outside of a state hospital for the feeble-minded. You must admit that it is indeed very seldom we find a person outside of these institutions who is wrong in everything he does. Kindly give us something different if you ever give again.

D. S. YOUNG.

MONDAY WILSON NIGHT

Judge A. S. Bennett of The Dalles will be the speaker of the evening at the big Wilson rally to be held at Oregon City Monday evening. The county candidates will also speak and music will be furnished by the Oregon City band. All Wilson supporters are asked to join in the last big rally of the campaign. Weather permitting, the speaking program will be held at Seventh and Main streets.

WILSON WINS TWICE

Huntley Bros. Store Conducts Straw
Vote That Favors President

In spite of reports that republicans attempted to "stuff" the ballot box by repeated voting, President Wilson twice secured a majority over Candidate Hughes in the "straw" election being held at the Huntley Bros. store in Oregon City.

The ballot box was set up in the store for the first time on Tuesday. When the ballots were counted that night Wilson had 181 while Hughes, supposedly very strong in Oregon City, had only 166. Wednesday was the second day of the contest and, although the vote was lighter than on the first day, Wilson received 65 votes, as compared with 44 for Hughes.

While the political pot boils you should not forget the Courier's remarkable magazine offer. Four standard magazines for 25c.

INTEREST GROWS IN
PUBLIC LIBRARY USEJ. E. HEDGES RE-ELECTED PRES-IDENT OF ASSOCIATION
39,078 USE VOLUMES

That general interest in and use of the public library in this city is increasing each month is made more evident than ever with the report read by the librarian, Mrs. Bertha Adams, at the meeting of the board of directors of the library association on Monday evening. Mrs. Adams' report shows an increase in circulation of 1,516 books within the past 12 months, and an increase in attendance of 9,762 in the same period, as compared with the figures presented at the last annual meeting.

In the past year 15,325 books have been circulated through the institution. During the year previous only 13,812 volumes were circulated. In the last fiscal year 39,078 persons made use of the library, as compared with 29,316 the previous year. The circulation figures do not even approximately include the number of books used in the library. Those included in the report are only books taken out of the building for use. Thousands of books were called for in reference, reading or for entertainment, by readers who did not take the volumes out of the library. Many books are used daily within the library, so that the circulation figures cannot begin to cover the books that are actually read.

J. E. Hedges was re-elected president and the following officers and directors will serve with him: Mrs. D. C. Latourette, vice-president; Percy Canfield, secretary, and the Bank of Oregon City, treasurer; directors, Mrs. H. B. Cartledge, Charles H. Canfield, Mrs. E. P. Rands, H. A. Rands, C. H. Dye, Linn E. SCHOOL COLLECTIONS

FIRST TEST BLANKS FOR CLASS WORK

School Superintendent J. E. Calavan and his aides in office here have been burdened with work this week and every available space in the office has been occupied with books since the arrival of nearly 3000 volumes to fill the orders from the school libraries of the county.

Books have been everywhere and as fast as the force can classify them, they are being sent out to the schools that ordered them. The 3000 books range through every subject from fiction to philosophy and will be additions to the school libraries, similar to additions made each year. The cost of the books, approximately $1200, is borne chiefly by the county, although a number of the school districts raised extra money to provide extra books. The volumes will be sent out within the next week or ten days.

Monday Superintendent Calavan mailed out the first of the monthly arithmetic tests for the year to all grades above the fourth in all the county schools. Each month of the school year other arithmetic tests will be sent out until the final tests are made.

The superintendent has found that these monthly tests result in greatly increased efforts and results on the part of the pupils, and last year's reports show arithmetic as the strongest subject taught in the schools, whereas it formerly ranked lowest. Pupils whose grades were 50 and 60 per cent increased last year under the new system to an average of better than 95 per cent. Eight per cent in

COLLEGE HEAD FAILS TO JIBE WITH MAYOR"BUCK-SAW" IS BETTER THAN
RELAY SAY DEBATORS. COL-LEGE IS FOR PRESIDENT

Mayor E. C. Hackett of Oregon City handed Reed college students a letter to President Foster one day last week, as the boys darted off at the crack of a pistol upon their 12-mile relay race between this city and the college campus at East Moreland, Portland. The letter contained Mayor Hackett's political and athletic opinions. He opined that boys of the college would make a serious mistake if they failed to vote for Hughes, and he likewise opined that a dose of the old-fashioned "buck-saw" is one of the finest forms of athletics known. A session with the buck-saw in father's woodshed would be better for the runners than the exercise they might get in racing madly down the county highway for a mile each.

President W. T. Foster of the college received the mayor's letter a short time later, and in his reply upholds the mayor in his argument against the common form of college athletics, but he also politely intimates that the mayor is on the wrong track politically. President Foster's letter says:

My dear Mr. Hackett:

One hour and seven minutes after you handed your letter to one of our students at Oregon City, it was delivered on the Reed college campus. I am delighted to have your expression of your agreement with the aims of Reed college. We, too, believe that athletics is overdone and for that reason we have absolutely none of inter-collegiate athletics, with which you are evidently familiar. We, too, believe that the old-fashioned "buck-saw" is more conducive to health and respect for the man who works than the usual type of inter-collegiate athletics. You do not, of course, insist on the "buck-saw" for all our students; especially since we burn oil. You will be interested, however, to know that ninety per cent of our men are earning part or all of their expenses by their own labor. The boy to whom you handed your letter is a painter by trade and is now doing all of that work for the college. The boy who delivered your letter to me works regularly on the college grounds with hoe and shovel and such other substitutes for the "buck-saw" as the work demands.

You would not, I am sure, want our boys to spend all their time on the "buck-saw" for purposes of physical development in preparation for a life of hard work. Exercise of the "buck-saw" type is no substitute for the out-of-door games and the correlated gymnasium work which is required of all our students.

You will see that our students are fulfilling the desires of your own heart in preparing to work for a living after they graduate by working for a living now.

My only disappointment in your letter is that along with such sound views on labor you should want our boys to vote for Hughes. In their straw ballot tomorrow, they are likely to cast a large majority for Wilson.

Speaking of elections, permit me to add that for two successive years the student body of Reed college have elected a man from Oregon City Chairman of their Council, which is the highest honor they have to bestow.

Milwaukie Invites Oregon City to Hear Address by B. F. Irvin

The wide-awake Woodrow Wilson league at Milwaukie is to hold a big meeting at that place on Saturday evening, when B. F. Irvin of Portland will be the principal speaker. The organization has extended an invitation to voters in Oregon City to attend the meeting.

The Milwaukie Woodrow Wilson league is one of the most live organizations in the county and includes in its membership considerably more than the registration of democratic voters in the precinct.

Party at Homedale

A surprise party was given Arthur Lindsley of Homedale Wednesday, October 25, in honor of his sixteenth birthday, about twenty-four being present. Arthur received many gifts from his young friends. The evening was spent in playing games and at eleven o'clock all enjoyed a fine luncheon. Then all departed for their homes, wishing Arthur many such happy birthdays. Those present were: Gertrude Bohlander, Anna Roberts, Anna Bonsall, Myrtle Mural, Ora and Bertha Martin, Myrtis and Doris Pryce, Irene Henrici, Genevieve Londergan, Lubell Lindsley, William and Griffith Roberts, Wilbur Bohlander, Elmer Londergan, Arthur Lindsley, Lloyd, Walter and Claud Henrici, William and Arvon Parry, Theron Lindsley and David Brown.

Ladies Serve Delicious Luncheon at Annual Election. Club to Wait on Council

A delicious harvest dinner with all the trimmings to make an autumn setting complete, divided interest with the semi-annual election at the Live Wire meeting on Tuesday. As the wholesome viands prepared by the ladies of the Episcopal church were consumed with rare gusto the steam roller of the old guard about the tables outlined its plan of attack for the election. The result was that the steam roller accomplished its tasks in a prompt and highly satisfactory manner to the powers behind the roller.

Chris. Schuebel, a member of the organization since its formation, and an ardent worker, was unanimously elected to relieve A. C. Howland as main trunk; W. P. Hawley, Jr., was elected sub-trunk; R. Canfield, transmission wire; O. D. Eby, guy wire, and C. W. Robey, feed wire. Dr. L. A. Morris was appointed chairman of the program committee by the new main trunk.

The matter of eliminating the danger to horses from the slippery condition of Main street was brought up by A. A. Price and Main Trunk Schuebel appointed W. A. Huntley, H. E. Cross and A. A. Price on a committee to wait upon the city council and discuss with the aldermen measures to relieve the perilous condition.

H. E. Williams, chairman of the Company G fund committee read the committee's report upon the condition of the fund of $957.50, which was collected for the benefit of the Oregon City company on the Mexican border last summer. The report shows the entire fund accounted for and a cash balance of $105.93 on hand with $26.26 due from sale of provisions, in addition to $94.90 in provisions unsold and on hand. The committee certified that it had examined all receipts presented by Captain L. E. Blanchard, covering expenditures from the fund and found them true and correct.

Fred Locky, speaking in the interest of the bill to establish a state normal school at Pendleton, was the only formal speaker of the day. Mr. Locky presented Pendleton's side of the bill from a new angle, telling of the way in which the matter was brought up by Pendleton business men and of the needs of the territory east of the Cascades in the way of normal facilities. Mr. Locky presented a straightforward case and with members of the Live Wires decried the insertion into the bill of the clauses ratifying the location of other state institutions. This, the speaker said, was a harm to the bill. He also regretted that it had been presented as a constitutional amendment, the part that has caused it to be frowned upon by so many Live Wire members.

Willamette Local Line Taken Over by Nation-Wide Corporation

The Willamette Telephone company, a local system on the west side of the river, has been absorbed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, according to announcement made late last week by the former Willamette company officials. The lines of the two companies have been connected for some time and operated through the Pacific exchange in this city. The new owners of the Willamette lines plan some improvements.

New Mail Boxes Here.

Postmaster J. J. Cooke has announced receipt of 18 new mail boxes to be added to the street collection system in the city. The present equipment is insufficient and the boxes are scattered widely. The new boxes are of a different type from those in use and will be located, after a survey is made, at the most suitable points throughout the city.

Andrew Singer Committed

Andrew Singer, of Milwaukie, was committed to the state hospital for the insane last week by County Judge Anderson. Singer is a native of Russia, 52 years old, and the father of 9 children, four of them dead. He has been a resident of Oregon for 27 years and most of that time has been a laborer. His examiners say that Singer's delusions are fixed, although his condition is harmless.

Estacada Marshal Named

At the meeting of the Estacada city council last week, John Osborn was appointed city marshal and supervisor of the road district, succeeding A. G. Ames.
