

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS ALIKE SUPPORT C. W. RISLEY

Democratic Candidate for County Commissioner Possesses Qualifications and Ability That Would Be Valuable to Taxpayers

CONSIDERS RISLEY ONE OF BEST QUALIFIED MEN IN COUNTY

Fred B. Madison, the Oregon City real estate dealer, who lives at Mel-drum station, and who has a wide acquaintance throughout Clackamas county, has been a neighbor of C. W. Risley, democratic candidate for county commissioner, and he is doing everything that he can to aid in the election of Mr. Risley, because he considers the latter one of the best qualified men in the county to have in the court house. Mr. Madison says that the better acquainted one becomes with Charles Risley, the more they appreciate the worth and sterling qualities of the man. He counts the people of Clackamas county as indeed fortunate in having the opportunity to vote for such a man, one who can be depended upon to give the county his best efforts as commissioner just as he has done in the matter of road supervisor, where his roads are the envy of all other supervisors of the county.

Mr. Madison says: "Having been a neighbor of Charles W. Risley for the past several years and also having had more or less business relationship with him, I count him as one of the squarest and most upright citizens that I ever dealt with. He has made a success of his own affairs, handling them in a manner that proves him a business man of keen insight into all matters, and I feel that as county commissioner he would be able to bring to the taxpayers such management of county affairs as would spell not only economy, but also the greatest and most lasting results at a minimum of expense. I have no hesitancy in saying that I feel the taxpayers will be making a grave mistake if they do not elect Mr. Risley, when a man of his ability and standing is willing to heed the call of his neighbors and friends to run for an office which does not begin to remunerate him for time and labor spent. Clackamas county has no better citizen nor one who is more vitally interested in its welfare and he should be elected by a rousing majority."

NEIGHBORS ARE FOR RISLEY TO A MAN

When one's neighbor vouches for his honesty, integrity and business sagacity and ability, the public generally makes no mistake in placing confidence in that person, for no one knows you better than your neighbor.

The neighbors of C. W. Risley, democratic candidate for county commissioner, regardless of party affiliation, creed or what not, unite as in one voice in declaring that they know of no man in the whole of Clackamas county better fitted to serve the taxpayers in the position of county commissioner. Among this number, and one who believes it a duty he owes to his co-taxpayers to let them know what he thinks of Mr. Risley's candidacy, is Earl C. Bronaugh, living at Boardman station, but who is one of the prominent attorneys of Portland, having offices in the Northwestern Bank building. Mr. Bronaugh says himself and Charles Risley were boys together in school in Portland, but he lost track of the latter in later years, and only a few years ago renewed this acquaintance when he removed to his present home on the River road, when he found that Mr. Risley was one of his neighbors.

Mr. Bronaugh declares that, being a large property owner and taxpayer himself, Mr. Risley naturally would have the interest of the taxpayers at heart; that he is a good level-headed man, who, having proved that he is capable of successfully looking after his own affairs, can be depended upon to give the county the benefit of his experience, which would be of incalculable aid in the weighty problems that confront the commissioners and county court from time to time.

Speaking of Mr. Risley's work as road supervisor of Road District No. 47, Attorney Bronaugh says he has watched the work and notes with much satisfaction that the roads in this district are not only the best laid, but seem to be giving the best satisfaction of any in the county, especially as pertains to macadam. Mr. Bronaugh further declares that Mr. Risley has built more macadam road this year for the money than during any former years. He urges the election of Mr. Risley because he believes the man is eminently fitted for the position of county commissioner because of his knowledge of the needs of the people, his large business experience, his being a thorough advocate of good roads, as well as his ability to construct good roads at the lowest possible cost.

Mr. Risley is not an office seeker in any sense of the word. His candidacy was thrust upon him by the people, who know him and believed the county had no better qualified man for the position, and has consented to make the race at the earnest solicitation of hundreds of friends who feel that the county needs a man who really knows good roads and how to build them, as well as possessing the highest business qualifications.

MILWAUKIE BANKER IS OUT FOR RISLEY

From all reports there is one county office in which the voters are far from drawing party lines and are looking to the man and what they feel he will be able to accomplish for them in the way of giving them good roads and an economical and businesslike administration if elected. It is quite evident that many republicans throughout the county are of the opinion that Charles W. Risley of Risley station, at present road supervisor of District No. 47, democratic nominee for county commissioner, possesses every requisite and ability to make him one of the best commissioners Clackamas county ever had.

Among those who are urging the election of Mr. Risley and doing everything they can to make possible his election is Philip Streib, president of the First State Bank of Milwaukie, a prominent German-American, the owner of much property in and around Milwaukie, as well as some in Oregon City. Mr. Streib is a republican and president of the Milwaukie Hughes Alliance branch, but he feels that party lines can be severed when it comes to county office.

Mr. Streib has known Mr. Risley for a number of years; has had considerable business dealings with him and thus is able to judge of the man's business qualifications as well as his integrity and probity. He says frankly that the taxpayers of Clackamas county should consider it a great concession for Mr. Risley to offer himself to them as a county commissioner, for seldom is it their privilege to secure a man of his standing and ability. Mr. Streib says he reads that Mr. Risley consented to make the race only at the solicitation of his friends, republican and democratic alike, who believe they see in him a man capable of giving valuable suggestion and advice in the conduct of county affairs, which includes road building, one of the really big problems of Clackamas county; that Mr. Risley is a man who, having made a success of his own affairs, will bring to the county valuable experience and knowledge that is seldom secured in a county commissioner, for the occasions are rare where a person of means and affairs that demand much of his time cares to give his time to public affairs and will only do so at the request and solicitation of friends.

Mr. Streib has given considerable attention to the road work in Mr. Risley's district, done under the supervision of the latter, and he says that the roads and the plans under which they were constructed stand as an example for other parts of the county, where the same results are possible, and where the county receives value for every dollar expended. This fact alone should have much to do with the election of Mr. Risley, thinks Mr. Streib, for there is no other question quite so important in Clackamas county as good roads and the surety that the taxpayers are receiving value for the great sum that is spent annually upon the highways. But Mr. Risley possesses good sound business judgment as well and is level-headed under the most trying circumstances.

BOYS CAUGHT AGAIN

Pair Confesses to Series of Minor Thefts in This City

Elsworth McGinnis and William Rosenthal, aged 12 and 11 respectively, youthful thieves who broke into the Oregon Commission company's store some months ago and stole several hundred burlap sacks, for which they were arrested and paroled by County Judge Anderson, were taken into custody again last Thursday afternoon by Juvenile Officer Frost. The boys have confessed to several recent crimes. Among them were the entering of Mrs. Straight's home on Sixteenth street, where they stole a pair of skates; the theft of music and a pocketbook from Jack Owenby; robbing the barn of Joe Renner and entering the Greenpoint fire house. At the latter place the boys broke a window and stole several valuable articles. These thefts were committed some days ago, but the activities of the boys led to their arrest before most of their crimes had been discovered. Practically all the stolen articles have been recovered. The boys were committed to the State Training school by Judge Anderson.

DEBATE TONIGHT.

C. Schuebel Upholds Negative Against Labor Council Representatives.

C. Schuebel, Oregon City attorney and former state legislator, will uphold the negative in a debate on the people's land and loan bill, against E. J. Stack and Arthur Brock, of the Portland Central Labor council, at Woodman hall here tonight. Mr. Schuebel has been campaigning against the measure and is said to be the best advised person in that connection in the county.

PRESIDENT PLEDGES GREATER PROGRESS

Laws Must Fit New Life, He Tells the American People.

HIS RECORD OF DEEDS DONE.

American Rights Upheld With Honor, Farmers Greatly Benefited, Business Unhindered, Labor Protected, Children Set Free—Votes of Women Needed—World Peace Desired.

Shadow Lawn, N. J., Oct. 28.—To the American people Woodrow Wilson today gave an accounting of his administration as their President. He "balanced his books" so that the record stands clear. Promises fulfilled, great deeds done! That, in short, tells the story. And yet the story is not finished. Other chapters in the great Book of Human Progress remain to be written. It rests with you, American Voters, to say whether the man who began the book shall finish it.

Here, in the President's own words, is a plain statement of what he, as leader not only of the Democratic party but of the nation, has accomplished in your behalf and of what he plans for your future—a statement made not alone to the thousands who journeyed here but to you and the hundreds of thousands throughout the country who also celebrated "Wilson Day."

The President's Speech.

"My Fellow-citizens: "This is called 'Wilson Day' only because for six years, first as Governor of New Jersey and then as President of the United States, I have been permitted to lead first a great state and then a great national party along the ways of progress and of enlarged and regenerated life which our people had so long sought and so long been held back from by the organized power of selfish interest, and because the great honor has fallen to me of being chosen once more spokesman and representative of the men who mean to hold the country to these ways of peace, but mainly and progress. It is of these forces that I shall speak and not of myself, who am merely their servant. "What are these forces? Whence do they spring? What have they accomplished, and what is their programme and purpose for the future? It is plain what they are. They are the forces of humane, righteous, and patriotic purpose which have sprung up in our day in the minds of those who perceive the shortcomings of the law as it has hardened in America and who look forward with purpose and conviction to a new age in which government shall be indeed the servant of liberty and not of privilege. "These are men who perceive that American law has not kept pace with the American sentiment; that our law has been holding us rigid and immovable, until class has begun, in free America, to be arrayed against class; until what was legal has begun to play a more important part in our thoughts and determinations than what is human and right; and until America has begun to lag instead of lead in reconciling what is with what ought to be. "A new age had dawned upon us while those who were attempting to lead us were stumbling along with their heads over their shoulders, intent upon preserving the conditions of a day that is gone. America has changed and the whole world has changed. Our commerce and industry had grown to such a bulk that the domestic markets of which our former leaders were always so solicitous were glutted and we were bound, unless we were to burst our jacket, to find a free outlet into the markets of the world. The time had come when our commerce needed freedom and would be throttled by further restraints. "We had acquired foreign possessions, had been drawn into the politics of the world, had begun to play a part which could not be played by provincials but must be played by citizens of the great world of nations. And yet we had not altered our policy or our point of view. The great European war was served at least to show us this one thing, that the world itself had changed; that it had become at once too big a world and too little a world to submit its destinies to the hostile rivalries and ambitions now of this and again of that member of the great family of men; too compact, too intimate in its contacts, too universal in its ways of intercourse, to make it any longer possible to limit the effects of any nation's action to a single separate sphere where the rest would be untouched. "An inevitable partnership of interests has been thrust upon the nations. They are neighbors and must accommodate their interests to one another, or else disturb the lives and embarrass the fortunes of men everywhere. No wonder that in such an age men in America should be cried awake and feel once more, as they felt them in the days when their great republic was set up, the compulsions of humanity and of justice! "Squaring Laws With Life. "These are the freshening winds blowing out of the life of mankind everywhere, that have brought on a new day in American politics. "We have looked once more very critically at our own laws and our own practices and have set about to square them with the actual conditions of our life and the life of the world. "Four years ago there were two parties in the field whose programme was conceived under the influence of these great forces of progress and adjustment, the Democratic party and the Progressive party. This year there is but one, the Democratic party. In the presidential election of four years ago some fifteen million votes were cast. "Of these, nearly ten and a half millions were cast for the candidates of the two progressive parties, only three and a half millions for the candidate of the Republican party, the party which lingered in the old ways and felt none of the new impulse of a new day. More than two-thirds of the voters of the United States favored then, and favor now, a programme whose object is to serve the changing needs of humanity and progress. "The Democratic party was entrusted with the task. These powerful forces of the new age were put under its direction. And under that direction what have they accomplished? "They have put both the business and the life of the country upon a new footing. "Financial Credit Released. "They have released the financial credit, upon which commerce and production alike depend, from the control of small groups of financiers and bankers at the speculative centers. "They have released the commerce and industry of the country from the domination of those who were building up their power by selfish and unfair methods of competition. "They have supplied those who wished to conduct their business in conformity with the spirit of the laws with friendly guidance and delivered them from a nervous fear of the courts. "They have released our foreign trade from the shackles of a tariff contrived in the interest of special groups of favored producers, and have created a Tariff Commission intended to substitute public for private influences, facts for theories and pretensions, in all future legislation with regard to duties and restrictions on imports. "They have made provision for the immediate and systematic development of our carrying trade on the seas. "They have at last supplied the means by which the nation may be bound together, materially and spiritually, by a network of good roads upon which both commodities and sympathies may move freely from community to community. "They have put the farmer upon a footing of perfect equality with business men and men of all other callings in respect to his access to commercial credit; have placed a great bureau of the Government at his service in seeking and finding his best markets; have protected him by the establishment of definite standards in the sale of his products, and have put the scientific knowledge of the world at his disposal by practical demonstration at the expense of the Government upon the farms themselves. "Have Emancipated Labor. "They have emancipated the laborers of the country from the unjustified restraints which the courts had put upon them by mistaken applications of old law to new circumstances and conditions. "They have released the children of the country in large part from harmful labor; have sought to safeguard the lives and the health of our laborers in dangerous occupations; and have put agencies of the Government itself at the service of those who seek employment. And most of these things have been done within the brief limits of a single administration. "And still the great work is not finished. It can never be rounded off and concluded so long as circumstances change and the fortunes and relations of men shift and alter. The question you have to decide one week from next Tuesday is whether it shall be prematurely interrupted, perhaps for a generation to come, and all the generous forces of the age and of the world thrown back upon themselves in discouragement and confusion. "The programme remaining is as great as the programme accomplished. The procedure of our courts is antiquated and a hindrance, not an aid, in the just administration of the law. We must simplify and reform it as other enlightened nations have done, and make courts of justice out of our courts of law. We must seek and find the means of bringing capital and labor to a clear understanding of their common interests, which are no other than the interests of the nation itself as a community. We must release our great undeveloped natural resources upon some sensible plan of use and conservation. "Need Votes of Women. "We must recruit the votes of forward-looking men by the votes of women so that we may have a fresh insight in all matters of social reform and move more certainly and more promptly in the solution of the many new problems of society with which the law must henceforth deal. We must unite the Americas, North and South, in a new sympathy and co-operation. "We must seek justice and the right through every channel that offers; and we must put America in all its force. In all its wealth, alike of physical power and spiritual enthusiasm, at the service of the other nations of the world when peace comes on the other side of the seas, to make that peace permanent by establishing it on the everlasting foundations of right, co-operation, equality and justice. These things we must do, and all else that may serve mankind. "And our motto must be CO-OPERATION, the union, not the hostile rivalry, of the forces of society within the nation and within the family of nations. The interests of mankind can never again be served by aggression; the interest of no nation or group of nations can ever again be served by aggression. The contests of jealousy are as bitter and as dangerous as the contests of arms. "The world must henceforth seek the means of accommodation, not the means of arresting quarrels merely. "The operator, Jack Straight, started to descend the shaft about 7:30 Thursday evening, and within 30 feet of the bottom the cage stuck. The city engineer had not corrected the trouble and released the 10 passengers until nearly 9 o'clock. City Engineer Miller considers the accident an excellent test of the safety of the lift. He says the cage was moving too rapidly and the friction clutch did the work for which it was applied in stopping the motion.

TEN HELD IN CAGE

City Elevator Sticks in Shaft for More Than an Hour

While City Engineer Miller worked on the mechanical apparatus of the municipal elevator last Thursday night, 10 persons were trapped in the lift between floors for more than an hour. Thirteen others who had been caught by the failure of the machinery when the elevator had descended to within 30 feet of the bottom climbed down by means of a ladder.

The nation we love and serve must be among the first and foremost of those that rise to the new ideals with spirit and well-directed force. Our own reforms, our own actions in the interest of justice and humanity must be the earnest of our spirit and purpose in the affairs of the world outside our own borders.

"Such is the prospect, such is the programme, my fellow-citizens, to which we look forward, to which it is our purpose to move forward with enthusiasm and irresistible ardor. We will not pause in the midst of our task. We know that we stand at one of the most critical junctures in the history of the world, when all hopes hang in the balance.

"We will suffer no man, no body of men, through timidity or fear or jealousy, to delay or hinder or embarrass us. Reaction can have no place of tolerance amongst us when all the world waits upon those who plan justice and progress. "I summon you, not only to sustain, but to swell the hosts that have their faces now set towards the light, their eyes lifted to the horizons where the dawn of a new age begins to brighten; and I summon you with confidence, with a certain expectation of the part America and her great people are to play when the dawn broadens into day."

The Republicans don't like the prevailing prosperity. It's Democratic and therefore taboo. Give them a chance and they'll put it out of business. "The 'issues' have petered out—excepting the main one, the issue of 'anything to beat Wilson.'"

VOTERS, THINK IT OVER.

Theodore Roosevelt is the guiding spirit of the Republican campaign. He is the substance—Hughes is the shadow. You know what Roosevelt stands for—agitation, jingoism. He has declared openly his regret that this country did not get into the European War. Do you want Roosevelt, and Hughes, and War? Or do you want more Peace and Prosperity under Wilson?

STRANGER IS SUICIDE

Dead Man Clashes Revolver With Which He Shot Self

The body of an unidentified man, aged about 25, was found on the Pacific highway south of New Era last Thursday, while the gun with which he apparently had committed suicide was still clamped in his hand. The dead man was probably a tramp, although he was fairly well dressed, according to Sheriff Wilson, who responded with Coroner Hempstead to a call from travellers along the highway. Two suits of clothing and a red mackinaw coat were worn by the man.

The man had been seen earlier in the day and talked to persons in New Era about being pursued by a person in a "big white car." These persons are certain he was insane. He had shot himself through the head by placing the barrel of the 38-calibre revolver in his mouth to fire the shot and had been dead several hours when found. No mark of identification was found about the person except a Masonic lodge pin in his coat lapel. A hypodermic needle was found in a pocket.

MILK GOES UP.

Consumer Must Pay Increase on Commission Men's Raise.

Because of the increase in the cost of dairy feeds the cost of living in Oregon City made another ascent last week when the dairymen, operating in and about the city, met and raised the price of milk to consumers. Most of the dairymen in this city are in on the change in prices, which became effective yesterday and a permanent association has been formed for the protection of the industry. Milk hereafter will be sold at the rate of $1.50 a month for the first pint and $1.10 for each additional pint, or $2.60 for the quart, that is provided to the majority of families. The old prices were $1.25 for the first pint and $1 for each additional. At the present time the prices of dairy products will not be regulated by the new association and the price increase affects only the milk supply.

The famous million dollar special, bringing wealthy and voteless eastern women to tell the voting women of Oregon how to do it, felt like a smooth ten cent piece before it left this state.

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine—Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and uterus, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYME ASHRAH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCASLAND, 609 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSOON, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.
