

STOCK MARKET FAIR

Many Hogs in Run Starting Monday. Sheep Prices Make Advances

There was a very fair supply of cattle at Portland Monday, over 1600 prime head being offered, most of them being of the good to prime variety, which found exceptionally good sale. Trading started at the opening of the market and most all arrivals were sold long before noon. Prices ruled steady to strong. Feeder trade was limited, although several loads of ordinary stockers were bought up. A number of loads of prime steers got in at $7.25 with others at $6.85 to $7.10. Everything sold readily, the quality being very good on the bulk of the stuff.

The demand for good quality cows continues very good and all offerings are finding anxious buyers. Best cows sold at $6.00 and $6.15 Monday. God cows sold at $5.75 with fair ones around $5.50. Ordinary valley cows brought from $5 to $5.25 with common grades down to $3.

The largest run of hogs in this year's packing season was on the market Monday, over 700 head being received. After a slow start buyers and sellers agreed and trading was active. A few lots sold at $9.75 but the bulk of the prime hogs brought $9.55 to $9.70, which was five to 10 cents lower. There was quite a display of half finished and light hogs, although a good many loads of choice stuff were offered. Pigs sold for the bulk at $8.25; the range was from $8 to $8.50.

Sheep prices made further advances, when a mixed load of yearlings, lambs and ewes brought $8.50, an advance of fully 25 cents. Lambs were quoted up to $9.25 for select. Choice east-of-the-mountains lambs are quoted at $9 to $9.10; choice valley lambs $8.75 to $9.00; yearlings $7.75 to $8; ewes $6 to $7.

Bank Official Recommends Them

T. J. Norrell, V. P. Bank of Clackamas County, writes: "Beyond doubt I have received great relief and take great pleasure in recommending Foley Kidney Pills. Kidney trouble makes one worried and hopeless, with aches, pains, soreness, stiffness, backache, rheumatism. These symptoms, as well as sleep disturbing bladder disorders, yield quickly to Foley Kidney Pills. They cast out poisons and purify the blood."

Anglers' Club Will Debate

The new Clackamas County Anglers' association is planning a meeting to be held at the Commercial club in the near future at which a general debate will be held on the subject of closing the Willamette river to net fishing. The association was formed by local sportsmen to protect the fish in the river for the sportsmen and the organization will co-operate with others in an attempt to bring about the desired legislation.

ST. AGNES BABES FEAST

Thanksgiving Donations Received at Baby Home Are Acknowledged

The little orphans at St. Agnes' baby home will long remember the fine turkey they disposed of on Thanksgiving day. Each little old enough to enjoy a piece of the great bird was served, together with sauce, celery and potatoes. Many of them were also able to digest some pumpkin pie.

All the good things for dinner did not spoil their appetite for supper. A large box of mixed cookies sent by their kind benefactors of the American bakery was greatly enjoyed and disposed of in short order.

The Sisters wish to thank most sincerely all their charitable friends for things sent; it certainly helped in a great measure toward making the little tots happy and contented, and the prayers of the little ones will surely bring many blessings on their kind friends, say the sisters.

Particular mention should be made of the gifts of James Petty of Gladstone and the manager of the Seventh street market, Oregon City. The former sent no less than six fine turkeys, the latter a goose weighing twenty pounds.

The pleasant weather was enjoyed and many of the tots were able to take a run around the grounds. Taken all together the Thanksgiving of 1916 was spent in good cheer and happiness by the innocent and joyous children.

JERRY WANTS A LUNG

Purchase of Red Cross Seal Will Help to Supply Need

WANTED: A good lung. This was the theme of a letter in rhyme received the other day by the St. Louis society for the relief and prevention of tuberculosis from ten-year-old Jerry O'Connor, a pupil at the open air school formerly conducted by that society. His poem, inspired by the Red Cross Christmas seal sale, follows:

"Now, if there's a present goin' round,
There's just one thing for me,
Ask Santee for one new lung,

"T. B. is what skinny folks has,
It kills us poor, weak boys.
So, in your prayers remember me,
I wish you a thousand joys."

"A Merry Christmas to you all—
A song I've often sung—
But don't forget dis skinny kid,
And pay for his new lung."

There are thousands of Jerrys all over the United States who want "new lungs" and a chance to save their old ones. The sale of Red Cross seals helps to provide open air school, sanatorium and home care for such boys as Jerry. You can help by buying some.

Asks About Milk

Editor Courier:

The pure water that your city can offer now makes your place much more attractive for residing there. What I would like to know is, if your city is also supplied by a sanitary milk, produced by healthy, tested cows and under sanitary conditions.

A Subscriber.
Oregon City's milk supply is inspected by the State Dairy and Food commission, and the cows here practically all passed the tuberculosis tests. The pastures are fresh and clean and their barns as sanitary as they can be. Local dairies are rated high by the commission, and it is safe to say, generally, that there isn't a better, purer milk supply on the Pacific coast.—Editor.

FIRST ADVERTISING

It Was Done In Egypt, on Papyrus, Thirty Centuries Ago.

ANCIENT PUBLICITY DEVICES.

The Greeks Used Town Criers and Music, and Then Came Symbols and Signboards—The Revolution That Accompanied the Art of Printing.

The Egyptian gentleman who sought a runaway slave 3,000 years ago and advertised on a bit of papyrus for his recovery turned out the first piece of advertising copy.

Whoever he was, he was a genius in more than a small way. His copy still lives, preserved in the British museum as an exhibit of considerable archaeological importance and as an example of what our advertising experts of today would do if they, like the Egyptian, did not have the benefit of up to date information.

The Egyptians knew nothing about the topography of advertising nor the effect of different colors. He didn't know, for instance, that red is the most effective eye catching color and that green is second and black third.

Of these and a thousand other things that influence the character of present day advertisements he was totally in ignorance. But he gets full credit for making the first attempt at a written advertisement.

The Greeks, with a fine regard for art, usually made music a part of the advertising program. They gave us the idea of employing bands to attract attention, undoubtedly one of the most successful methods of drawing a crowd at any place and time.

At first a town crier, accompanied by a musician playing a lyre or a harp, mingled among the Greek people and used only the best and choicest Greek in his extravagant praises of the product he was exploiting. Later, however, private advertisements in writing began to be introduced, particularly on the whitened walls of the homes, giving some information regarding the social standing and the age of the residents, their financial rating and the family lineage.

The Romans advertised in many ways. They named their streets, advertised shows, exhibitions and sales on the terra cotta walls of public baths, acquainted the public with sales of estates and absconded debtors and began the practice of notifying the Romans of articles lost and found and houses for sale or rent.

The Romans are commonly credited with the origin of the sign board. To-day we have the bulletin board, which corresponds to the Roman tabella found in the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum, where public announcements were made.

Advertising met the same fate as the Romans did when the Huns came sweeping down from the north. Until the middle ages very little of it is seen. But with the appearance again of the town crier, supplied with the customary long winded declarations and a choice supply of adjectives, advertising began to make itself felt in the conduct of business affairs. The public criers began to organize themselves both in France and in England, and they were persons with considerable prestige.

From crying out the superior qualities of merchandise and all kinds of goods and wares the crier soon began to make announcement of things lost and found, of sales, weddings, christenings and other interesting events. Gradually as time went on inns began to use distinctive signs and symbols to mark their hostleries, just as individuals had employed coats of arms. All kinds of devices were used and are still used by inns to the present day. All such signs as the blue anchor, the black dragon, the three tuns, the bear's head, the red lion, and so on, made definite representations and implications.

Of course with the development of the printing press advertising took a great spurt. The use of posters came into vogue, and all kinds of pamphlets were printed and distributed. Printing gradually began to supersede the handwritten manuscript. William Caxton set up his press in Westminster abbey in 1471, and two centuries later, in 1622, a newspaper, believed to be the first real newspaper, was printed. It was called the Weekly News and purported to contain news of doings in Germany, France, Hungary and Bohemia.

From then on newspapers, mostly weekly publications, began to appear from time to time in increasing numbers. Advertisements of medicines began to be inserted in the newspapers at an early date. The insertion of the first real newspaper advertisements, however, is credited to Nathaniel Butler, who advertised books.

The first two magazines to carry advertisements were Godey's Lady Book and Peterson's, but it was not until 1804 that magazine advertising really began, and it was not until 1880 that a general use was made of magazines for advertising purposes.—Philadelphia Press.

A PLEA FOR HELP

Democratic National Committee Faces Deficit of $300,000

A repetition of the plea to Clackamas county democrats comes from the national committee of the party, which is facing a deficit incurred in the campaign for the re-election of President Wilson. The Courier can do little else than put the matter squarely before its readers and let them act on it. There are few of us who cannot realize what this debt to the party and as loyal democrats it appears to be a duty to help ocrats they need our help. A letter received yesterday from Wilbur W. Marsh, treasurer of the national committee, tells the story:

"It is due you, as one of the newspaper men who proved his loyalty during the campaign just closed, that you should have more complete information with respect to the financial condition of the Democratic National committee than was contained in my recent night telegram to you."

"My telegram told you of the deficit of approximately $300,000 and explained briefly the urgent necessity for quick action so that the shortage could be wiped out quickly."

"When the campaign began, the managers in behalf of the National committee were confident that the expense could be kept within $1,500,000. We expected a hard fight; our opponents were determined and insistent and well fortified with money."

"Near the end of the struggle it was found we must enlarge our budget to meet the attacks of the republicans. There seemed no length to which they would not go to accomplish the defeat of our ticket. Had we not spent this money during the last days, we would not now be celebrating our victory."

"We have expended more than $300,000 in excess of the amount that has been contributed. We made a clean fight. Not a dollar was wasted. It was a splendid victory for the people. We have no regrets. We are proud of the record. We must depend upon the people to make up this deficit."

"We need and expect your best support personally and through your newspaper. I am confident you will grant it freely and you will take a personal interest in it to see that our deficit is wiped out. I am writing this letter to a picked number of papers. Please write me how you are getting on."

"Also please send checks to me as fast as you get them in."

Very sincerely yours,
W. W. MARSH,
Treasurer.

FINE FILM BOOKED

The Cost of a Life Shown by George Gray's Acting on Screen

By special arrangement and through the courtesy of local Modern Woodmen, two reels of motion pictures have been booked, featuring George Gray, in a true and realistic film story of his part in the present war—not of bloodshed—but in the fight against and conquest of that menacing monster of the human flesh—tuberculosis. Gray is one of the million members of the Modern Woodmen of America. Discovering that he is afflicted with this disease, he takes advantage of the comforts, care and cure of the Sanatorium owned, maintained and operated by that society, free of charge to its members. For several years that fraternal institution has thus actively and effectively co-operated in the world-wide movement advocated by the Red Cross and medical authorities, to stamp out the dread "white plague" and Gray is the beneficiary of this Woodmen life-saving station.

FIRST SNOW FALLS

Hills and Valleys Painted With the First White of the Winter

Big, early-season snow flakes fell in Clackamas county for the first time this year on Tuesday, bringing practically to an end the storm that has raged throughout the northwest for a week or more. Trains passing through Oregon City covered with snow indicated the extent of the fall south of us, but right at home we had a fair sample of the weather of the frigid zones of the east and north. In Oregon City considerable snow was in the air on Tuesday morning, but it did not collect on the ground.

At Molalla the heaviest fall of the day was recorded. Five inches of the white mantle covered the ground about Molalla and for a time during the day the trains of the Willamette Valley Southern were tied up. At Estacada the next heaviest snow fall was recorded. There about four inches fell and in places started to form in high drifts. At Redland, Beaver Creek and other points about the county from one to three inches of snow fell. Later Sandy reports almost a six-inch fall.

Found Way to Health Without Using Knife

MRS. MARY A. FERREE

Doctor Recommended Operation for Gall Stone Trouble but Mother Objected

In her work as an evangelist in the mountain districts of West Virginia, Mrs. Mary A. Ferree, who lives at 1964 Madison Ave., Huntington, W. V., was frequently called on to relieve suffering among her charges and became familiar with the practical value of remedies easily available. When her daughter became ill and the doctor finally said the trouble was gall stones and that an operation was necessary, Mrs. Ferree would not consent. In a letter to the Pinus Laboratories she says, "After four doctors had treated my daughter, and we had tried various remedies without avail, I heard of Fruitola and Traxo and tried it as a last resort. The first dose brought immediate relief and after using three bottles of relief and after using three bottles of Fruitola and two bottles of Traxo she was entirely cured. I pray that my testimony may be the means of helping others to health."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus Laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in Oregon City, Portland, Canby and Hubbard at the Huntley Bros. Co.'s drug stores; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant and disintegrates the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, discharging the accumulated waste to the sufferer's intense relief. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alternative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened rundown system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer from stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Ill.
