About the State

Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

Salem, Ore.—J. E. Nelson, who has been engineer for the state highway department on the Clatsop county paving work, was in Salem last week on the way to Douglas county to begin work on the Wolf Creek-Graves Creek stretch of the Pacific highway. A contract for this work was awarded. Mr. Nelson will establish headquarters at Wolf Creek. The main part of this job is rock work and the contractor will be able to operate practically all winter.

Independence, Ore.—The Valley & Siletz railroad is laying track inside the limits of Independence and but a few rods remain to be built. The road extends south and west of Independence for a distance of over 40 miles, and reaches the timber belt in the Siletz basin. Though thought to have been built for logging purposes, it is a substantially built railroad in every particular, and this has led to the prediction that it will be extended to Newport soon. Regular train service is to be established in December.

Albany, Ore.—As a result of the arrest Wednesday of Alfred C. Schmitt, vice president and manager of the First National bank of Albany, when United States Senator Chamberlain was a guest with him in his car, Albany's most interesting case for alleged violation of city speed ordinancces has developed. Traffic Officer Armentrout filed two charges against Mr. Schmitt, one for exceeding the speed limit and one for resisting an officer. Appearing before City Recorder Lewelling the next afternoon Mr. Schmitt entered pleas of not guilty to both charges and the cases were set for trial next Thursday.

Salem, Ore.—The largest number of fatal accidents reported for any single week since the organization of the Oregon industrial accident commission is contained in the statement for the week ended November 8. The report shows 12 fatal accidents. Seven of the fatalities resulted from an accident near Reedville when a train crashed into an automobile. The remainder were distributed through different industries.

Eugene, Ore.—Allen H. Eaton, who recently resigned as a member of the faculty of the University of Oregon following a demand for his removal because of his participation in a meeting of the people's council of democracy and terms of peace, was refused access to the Lane county courthouse Friday, after he had made arrangements for holding a mass-meeting there for the announced purpose of explaining his connection with the people's council.

The Dalles, Ore.—The Elliott Construction company which was recently awarded the contract for grading the Columbia highway from Mosier to Chonowith creek has sublet nine and eight-tenths miles of the work, retaining only two miles itself. The Elliott company is hard at work at the Mosier end of the road, and the contractors who have the subcontracts are now establishing their camps. It is expected the work will be finished before May 1, the time limit mentioned in the contract, which was awarded by the Wasco county court.

Salem, Ore.—Information reached the state penitentiary Saturday afternoon that Frank Johnson and Joe Wilson, two of the six convicts who escaped from an honor gang last Tuesday, were captured at Pendleton, Umatilla county, Saturday by Sheriff Till Taylor. Johnson is an Indian and Pendleton is his home town. The three negroes who escaped at the same time, and who were believed to be cornered in Clackamas county, have so far eluded the posses. There is no clew to the whereabouts of Earl Higley, the sixth man who escaped.

Baker, Ore.—With his leg broken in three places, Henry Slinkman, a rancher living near Durkee, hopped and crawled for two miles to a ranch for aid. Mr. Slinkman was hauling a load of potatoes from his farm to Durkee and was driving down a hill when the double-tree on the wagon broke, starting the horses on a run. The driver was thrown to the ground and both wheels of the heavy vehicle passed over him. The limb was fractured in three places. The injured man is reported to be resting easily.

Klamath Falls, Ore.—H. E. Crane, of the firm of Crane & Waters, farmers in the Klamath basin south of this city, has just returned from Portland, where he took the Pasteur treatment following an exposure to rabies. His dog licked a hand that was scratched, and it was later discovered that the animal had the rabies and had to be shot. Mr. Crane immediately went to Portland to be treated and was informed when he arrived there that had he waited one more day the treatment would have been too late. As it is, however, he will suffer no ill effects.

Eugene, Ore.—That the evergreen blackberry, growing wild in every part of the Willamette valley, is the best paying fruit crop that can be raised by the farmers of this part of the state is the assertion of J. S. Rauch, of Deerhorn, east of Eugene, and he voices the sentiment of many others who made money on this crop this year. Mr. Rauch says he bought 57 acres of land near Deerhorn and this year sold enough of the evergreen blackberries that were growing on it to pay interest at 6 per cent on the purchase price, besides the taxes on the land, and has a surplus left. The cannery of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association this year paid for 185 tons of this fruit, as compared to 102 tons last year.

Redmond, Ore.—Indications are that the demand for prime Oregon jackrabbit hides will far exceed the supply. County Agent R. A. Ward of Deschutes county spent a day in conference with Congressman N. J. Sinnott this week, as a result of which the central point for all shipments of jackrabbit hides will be made the county agent's office here. Mr. Sinnott has placed the jackrabbit hide business in Mr. Ward's hands and all correspondence concerning the marketing will be handled through the county agent's office. The best offer received is 8 cents for prime skins and 5 cents for seconds. It is expected that 500,000 skins can be shipped from Oregon to eastern manufacturers this winter.

Portland, Ore.—Her majesty the cow, through her ambassadors, the Portland dealers in milk, cream, butter cheese and ice cream, distributes nearly $6,000,000 a year in the Portland territory, 95 per cent of which finds its way into the channels of trade that make the Rose City prosperous, according to data just compiled in conjunction with the big land products exposition.

Nearly $500,000 of this money is paid out in salaries to about 480 employes, while more than $4,000,000 is paid to the farmer producers of dairy foods. Two hundred thousand dollars is expended for supplies used in the manufacture of dairy products, $103,524 constitutes stable and automobile expense, $805,502 represents the amount invested in buildings and equipment, and more than $5000 is given to public, charitable and church institutions.

Portland, Ore.—Passing through Portland Friday on his way to Washington, D. C., Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of Oregon Agricultural college, said that Oregon's wheat acreage will be greater next year than this and with a good season the yield will be materially increased.

"Farmers are responding to the government's appeal in spite of handicaps," said Dr. Kerr. "The dry weather has been cause of delay both in the eastern part of the state and the Willamette valley. Reports indicate that over in Sherman and Gilliam counties, for instance, the growers have been planting increased acreage 'in the dust.' The situation in the Willamette valley was improved by the rain and the fine weather that immediately followed it."

Dr. Kerr says that the guaranteed price of $2 for wheat next year will greatly stimulate production as well as the patriotic desire of farmers to serve the government in its war emergency. With a price of $2 for wheat and a good year the growers will be well rewarded for their efforts, he predicts. In Washington he will confer on Oregon's food production campaign with officials of the department of agriculture and he will attend a national convention of agricultural college heads.

TO VOTE ON TAX LIST

Jackson Takes His Fight Against Country Press to Voters

Preliminary to its being put into circulation, the draft of a bill providing for the abolition of the publication of delinquent tax lists has been presented to Attorney General Brown with the request that he prepare a ballot title for it.

C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Oregon Journal, and R. M. Hagood, of Portland, are the authors of the measure. Instead of the publication of the delinquent tax list, provision is made that notification shall be made by the tax collectors to owners of property on which the taxes are delinquent.

C. S. Jackson and his publication attempted to procure the passage of a similar law by the last legislature but failed.

The Oregon Farmer is devoted strictly to Oregon farm news. The Courier is devoted strictly to Clackamas county home news. A good combination for $1.00 a year.

USEFUL WEIGHTS

The following weights may not be exact, but they are near enough for ordinary calculations:

One cubic foot of water, 66.4 pounds.

A volume of air equal to 12.4 cubic feet weighs 1 pound.

One barrel contains 31½ gallons.

One cubic foot of water contains 7.48 gallons.

One gallon of water weighs about 8 1-3 pounds.

One pint of water weighs about 1 pound.

Pine weighs about 35 pounds per cubic foot.

Oak weighs about 45 pounds per cubic foot.

Concrete weighs about 150 pounds per cubic foot.

Stone weighs from 135 to 200 pounds per cubic foot.

Seventeen cubic feet of clay weighs about a ton.

Eighteen cubic feet of gravel in bank weighs about a ton.

Twenty-seven cubic feet of gravel, dry, weighs about a ton.

Lime weighs 75 pounds per bushel.

USEFUL AS FODDER BUNDLER

Device Invented by Ohio Man for Receiving Stalks of Corn and Holding in Compact Form.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a device adapted for receiving stalks of corn, invented by J. L. Wolffe of Willshire, Ohio, says:

This device is adapted for receiving stalks of corn and for holding them in a compact form in such manner that a tie may be placed on the bundle while so held, and wherein the bundler is well supported for easy transportation, and wherein means is provided on the bundler for supporting cord and for permitting the cord to be drawn off to be used as ties for the bundles, and for compressing the bundle prior to the tying.

FEED SWINE CULL POTATOES

Spuds Are Poor in Protein, But Rich in Carbohydrates, Thus They Are Fat Producing.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is estimated that four and one-half bushels of potatoes equal one bushel of corn in producing weight gains on hogs. Potatoes resemble corn in composition, and this is especially true of sweet potatoes. Both corn and potatoes are poor in protein and rich in carbohydrates, thus they make fat rather than bone and muscle. The potatoes should be boiled or steamed until they form a mealy mash, which should be mixed with some other feed such as corn-meal, shorts or bran. Only enough water should be added in the cooking to prevent burning and to make a thick mash. While some potatoes may be fed raw to add succulence to the ration, they should be given only at intervals and in small quantities. Too many are likely to cause scours. A potato ration should be supplemented with feeds rich in nitrogen, such as old-process linseed-oil meal or fish meal. Where sweet potatoes are plentiful and cheap a combination with gluten meal and skim milk makes a good ration.

CORN LACKING IN MINERALS

When Fed as Sole Concentrate in Rations for Swine Bodily Weakness Will Result.

Because of its low content of mineral matter, particularly lime, corn should not be fed as the sole concentrate in rations for swine. Bodily weaknesses result from a deficiency of mineral elements when other feeds are not supplied with corn.

In experimental feeding tests conducted by Dr. E. B. Forbes of the Ohio experiment station, hogs fed mainly corn had weak bones often resulting in lameness and fractures. Such injuries do not occur with hogs on pasture or with those given feeds rich in lime, such as clover, alfalfa, rape, skim milk and tankage. Bone flour, wood ashes, corncob charcoal and lime are useful supplements to rations deficient in minerals.

RIGHT CARE OF SPRAY PUMP

Different Parts Should Be Gone Over, Cleaned and Oiled—Keep Machinery Under Cover.

Are you taking care of your spray pump? Go over all the different parts of the pump, cleaning them off and oiling them. Unless this precaution is taken your pump will be out of order when you will need it. The spray materials rust the metal parts and they soon become useless unless they are cleaned and oiled when the season is over. Don't fail to keep the pump and all other machinery under shelter when not in use.

I. W. W. Member Jailed

Late Thursday night Sheriff W. J. Wilson picked up a wanderer of suspicious appearance in the Southern Pacific yards, and held him in the county jail because the fellow could not produce a draft registration card. Confessing in Swedish accents that he was from Minnesota, the unnamed prisoner is said to be a confirmed I. W. W., and credentials proving his membership were found in his pockets.

KENT WILSON TELLS OF WEARING ARMY GAS MASK

Among other interesting things of which the public has not been widely informed mentioned by Kent R. Wilson, son of Sheriff and Mrs. W. J. Wilson, in a letter received here on Tuesday, is the fact that soldiers of the United States in France will only be paid half their wages overseas, and when they return to America will get the full amount due. This plan is supposed to be arranged so that the soldiers can save in spite of the temptations for spending in a strange land, and will have small fortunes when they return home. In his letter, written from Camp Mills, Long Island, New York, Kent says:

"We haven't been paid yet for this month and when we do it will only be half of what we have due, as the government keeps half of our pay when we go to France, and pays in full when we return.

"It snowed here yesterday. This is an awful place. We haven't any floors in our tents and it is almost impossible to get wood for the little stoves we have. We have to keep a fire going all night to keep from freezing. Most of the boys have bad colds and the hospital here is full to the limit.

"We have been getting supplies and equipment the last few days and will probably not be here much longer. Yesterday we were issued our gas masks and we have to wear them an hour each day in order to get used to them. One certainly looks like a ghost when one wears a gas mask. We have to be able to put them on in six seconds. They fit tightly over the head and there is a clamp to be placed over the nose, and a mouth piece which is inserted between the teeth and which leads to a box of chemical through which the wearer brathes. A soldier can withstand a gas attack for two or three hours with a gas mask."

Kent tells of the appreciation the boys have for those who send them boxes of goodies such as their army fare does not include. He suggests wrapping in heavy pasteboard boxes for shipment, rather than sending things in heavy wooden boxes. The knitted things that women send are in great demand, he says, and fruit cake is one of the best things to send, inasmuch as it is not so perishable as other edibles.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HATLESS AND HEALTHY

U'Ren Charges Good Health to Going Hatless

W. S. U'Ren, formerly a local legal light, has a new fad. The new one is not single tax, nor any of that frequently refreshed mass of fads and hobbies the attorney carries around under his hat. As a matter of fact, he no longer has a hat to carry them under. That is just the point—it is a hatless fad that is giving a bright tinge to the long encaged hair of the attorney and chasing the germs of bronchial trouble from the front trenches of Mr. U'Ren's anatomy.

Upon advice of a physician Mr. U'Ren is wearing no hat when he journeys out into the chilly air of fall, thus saving himself not only from that pitiful, yet absorbing melody, "Where did you get that hat?" but from the ravages of the bronchial broncos that have been playing havoc with our friend's throat. Mr. U'Ren was hatless in our midst late last week and vouched for great improvement in his health as a result of the practice.

THURSDAY COURT RECORD

Fish Family Wins a Point in Damage Suit Against County

Alice Etta Fish, Frank E. Fish and Amy Fish, injured when their automobile went over the bank on the road between here and New Era several months ago, Thursday won a motion in Judge Campbell's court against a demurrer filed by the county, which is being sued by the family. The demurrer to their amended complaints was overruled and the county was given until Monday to file an answer in the case.

Judge Campbell Thursday allowed a voluntary non-suit in the case of Martin Herdt against V. Daffleb.

A suit filed by Carl Barth against F. C. Mortenson asked for a judgment in the sum of $606.89, covering four causes of action in connection with bills for labor. Three of the causes are assigned to Barth.

Jacobs Gets $1 for Slander

At a trial from which the usual disinterested audience was barred, a jury in Judge Campbell's court Tuesday awarded a verdict of $1 to Lee S. Jacobs in his slander suit brought against M. C. Baker. Mr. Jacobs asked for $5000 damages because of slanderous remarks said to have been made about him by Mr. Baker.
