UNRECEPTIVE MARKETS

The Courier is indebted to A. H. Harvey, who not only has a capable mind but an active pen, for again calling Oregon City's attention to the need of better local marketing conditions for farm products. It seems hardly proper that we should bolster up our fair community from the fruits of rural toil without, in turn, doing some concrete, profitable thing for those hard working country folk who make prosperity possible.

When Mr. Harvey came to Oregon City recently and exchanged 35 pounds of grapes for a few bars of soap he was cheated, no matter how honest and upright the merchant may have been who got the long end of the deal. We are personally acquainted with a number of California vineyard owners who are wealthy from the sale of their grapes, and we maintain, with all appreciation for the southern product, that we can raise just as good grapes.

When Mr. Harvey, and any one of several hundred other farmers, brings a hog to Oregon City he loses money, considering the Portland price, if he is able to sell the animal. But you may bet your sweet life the same farmers pay the top price for the bacon they take home with them.

We are getting into a sorry state of affairs when our farmers cannot sell their extra grapes at home for the price of a real good shave. It is high time, as Mr. Harvey reminds us, to improve local market conditions. The Live Wires have been beseeched repeatedly to do something definite in this regard, and in the meantime we are waiting patiently for that stock yard to be built within our favored environs. The Courier would like to hear from Clackamas county farmers on this subject; we have room for constructive communications on any subject.

A SPOTTED REPORT

Clackamas county has no reason to be proud of the notoriety it has received at the hands of the state food conservation campaign managers who have given wide publicity to the fact that returns from this county were "spotted." It has been noticed in more quarters than that of the campaign management, however, that the county did not return the report that it should.

True, the signature a homekeeper attaches to a food conservation card is of no great consequence in the sense of its being an obligation, for, as a matter of fact, there are very few homes in the county or in the nation, that are not conserving food as religiously as possible. The signature, whatever obligation it may entail, does morally bind the housewife to a patriotic support of her country—a nation for whose preservation sons and brothers are giving their life-blood.

The Courier is ashamed to record the fact that many persons in this county have absolutely refused to sign food pledges. We admit they are conserving every bite of food that is not actually needed for their own bodily needs, and we might be induced to admit that signing a pledge card is a mere formality. Still, when a housewife tells us that she is "against all things American" and another adds to that statement by saying that "I hope the Kaiser wins the war," it is time to investigate officially.

Clackamas county has too valuable a history in connection with patriotic moves to have it blackened by a few seditious men and women. We would like to have a passport to hand such people and the power to aid them in finding a port of exit within as brief a time as possible. The memory of oversubscriptions on both issues of the Liberty Loan, the splendid response the county has made in giving its sons to war and the county's aid of Red Cross and other patriotic activities must be upheld by continued proof of patriotism.

A TAMMANY VICTORY

Discussing "The New York Election," The Spectator, Portland, says: Under some circumstances, there would be cause and opportunity to bemoan the fate of New York in the overthrow of Mayor Mitchell and the election of the Tammanyite, John H. Hyland. But when we remember what New York escaped in the defeat of the impudently disloyal candidate, Socialist Hillquit, we have reason to be thankful that the looting of the metropolis will be accomplished by our own citizens. The election of Hillquit would have been an invitation to Germany to come over and pillage the country.

The election of John Hyland was practically assured a couple of weeks ago. He was the Tammany candidate, but Tammany did not elect him. He had the support of a very large class of patriotic Americans who hate socialism and sedition more. These Americans very deliberately considered the chances of the candidates, reached the conclusion that Hillquit was a most dangerous aspirant, figured that Hyland was more likely than Mitchell to beat the Socialist, and embraced Tammany with all its vice and infamy rather than incur the risk of the election of the pro-German.

Under Judge Hyland, we may be quite certain that Tammany will pursue its old practice of pillage. New York has suffered this before, and is probably injured to it. And the country will patiently endure it in the satisfying knowledge that if the unspeakable Hillquit had won the election the Germans would have accepted it as an invitation to come over and share his triumph when ever they were so minded.

Help your boy at the front. Use less wheat and meat. Send more to him.

Regarding migratory birds. Have you noticed the exodus of hooebs this fall?

"New York is Prohibition Target" say the newspapers. And the prohibition aim has hit the bull's eye a great many times.

Do not mistake Hooverism for hunger strike. Hoover wants you to eat your fill—of the things that are just as good but not transportable.

You who have given to the Y. M. C. A. war fund have helped our uniformed sons and brothers to keep away from wine, woman and cards.

Spring war gardens are withered and gone. The real war garden today is plowed with 16-inch shells, fertilized with the bodies of men—and the harvest is sorrow.

A. I. HUGHES DESCRIBES

GUERNSEYS COMING HERE

Oregon City, Nov. 13, 1917.

To the Courier: On September 3, the Clackamas County Guernsey Cattle club held a meeting at the Commercial club rooms and October 16, another meeting at the Bank of Commerce. At the first meeting the advisability of purchasing a number of pure bred females was discussed and it was decided that this was a good move in a business way, as well as an advancement for the breed to get more pure bred Guernseys into the county and more breeders raising Guernseys as there was no place on the Pacific coast where Guernseys could be purchased in any number.

Prof. E. L. Westover then told us something of how other centers had been built up and the advantages they had derived in organizing on a community plan, and emphasized the fact that we must not sacrifice the quality in order to get started cheap, but had better pay more and get good producers and good type; that these good foundation animals would be an advertisement to us and would bring us buyers that were looking for good stuff.

Mr. Humphrys of the Bank of Commerce then stated the terms which the bank would finance this buy on, which were very liberal and satisfactory to the members. The members then stated how many cattle they wanted each, which was enough to warrant a car load.

Prof. E. L. Westover was the unanimous choice of the meeting to make this selection and do the buying, later the club was requested by the O. A. C. to send one of our members with Prof. Westover to assist him in this buy.

Accordingly a meeting was called for October 16, to send one of the members east also, and John T. Whalley, one of the directors of the club and president of the Oregon Guernsey Cattle club, was chosen to accompany Prof. Westover.

At its last meeting the club decided it was a safe policy to have all its herds tuberculin tested before taking in valuable stock, and a petition was sent to Dr. W. H. Lytle signed by members that would purchase new stock, asking him to detail men for this.

Dr. Foster, government veterinarian, has been testing the herds that were 50 per cent pure bred or more, and Dr. Gardiner, assistant state veterinarian, has been testing herds that are less than 50 per cent pure bred. The latter has almost completed his tests in the county and has found the herds free from disease.

The government and state do this work free of charge to the breeders, but their force is so small compared to the work to be done, that they can hardly get around to all the herds that apply for tests. Cattle that are shown or cattle to be shipped across the state line must be tuberculin tested.

The cattle now bought and on their way to Oregon represent some of the best breeding in the United States, and are out of the Langwater blood. The Langwater cattle owned by F. Lothrop Ames have been bred for years for both type and production, until he succeeded in having an outstanding herd. Public opinion backed up his judgment when he sold 75 head at public sale October 10, 1916, for an average price of $1075 per head. The highest priced bull sold that day for $3000 and the highest price cow, Langwater Dairy Maid, sold for $8150—the highest price to date ever brought by a Guernsey female.

Sires from the Langwater farm are heading many of the leading herds in the United States. There are other families of Guernseys that are very prominent and have many admirers and strong backing, but as the 23 heifers bought are all of Langwater breeding, we will not go into other leading strains.

The eight heifers purchased at Whitewater, Wisconsin, were purchased by Ralph Pratt and are sired by Bob Rima's Monogram, a grandson of May Rima, that held the world's record for the breed for butterfat.

The 15 heifers purchased in Massachusetts are from the Mixer farms, where they have several hundred head of Guernseys. They are sired by Langwater Demonstration, a bull with a number of Advanced Registry daughters, and are all bred to Yeomen's King of the May, who now has 10 R. daughters. He is sired by Imp. Yeomen, a bull that has won many prizes in the show ring, his dam is Florham Daisy, who has two advanced registry records, her last record was commenced at 5 years, 10 months. She produced 14,876.60 pounds milk and 747.80 pounds fat, average test 5.02 per cent.

This stock with the stock already in Clackamas county and the fact that the advanced registry cows in this club now lead the state in five classes out of seven as mentioned in last week's issue, will be a strong recommendation to buyers seeking a start in pure breeds.

As a breeder who has been in the pure bred business ever since he was a boy, said "You had better start with a few really good ones, than a number that are just ordinary." A table entitled "Prices Brought by Pure Bred Livestock at 1916 Auction Sales, will give the portion of the table that refers to the dairy breeds.

No. of	Breed	Animals	Av. Highest Prices
Sold	Prices	Male	Female
Guernsey	948	$356.30	$3,000	$6,150
Holstein	1754	$41.80	$21,500	5,000
Jersey	3584	$214.42	1,725	5,000

At the present time the number of Guernseys is limited, and all indications show that the supply will not catch up with the ever-increasing demand for years, if at all.

A. I. HUGHES,
Secretary.

TWILIGHT

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Meindl and children of Sellwood, are temporarily making their home in the new Lazelle cottage.

Miss Ruth Kelland lunched with Mrs. A. H. Harvey Sunday.

The escaped negroes from Salem, who have been reported in hiding just adjacent to this community, have had the effect of confining we simple country folk to our domiciles after darkness sets in each night.

The government has regulated the price of wheat, meat, beans and potatoes, the principal output of the farmer, but as yet no embargo has been placed on dry goods, boots and shoes, farm tools and machinery which he is compelled to buy. We make mention of this fact, not as a complaint, but with an agonizing desire to fill up our space.

Potatoes have been largely garnered in, in this vicinity. Both yield and quality excell general expectations.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Bullard of Oak Grove, called at the Kelland home Sunday afternoon.

Cad Swick has rented the L. E. Bentley farm for the coming season. Mrs. William McCord entertained a number of Portland friends one day last week.

A number striking mill men assisted in the potato harvest last week.

Recently we marketed 35 pounds of grapes at the merchant's price, 2 1/2 cents, receiving in payment eight bars of soap, and we have been thinking over the transaction ever since. The merchant made two profits on the deal, while we incurred an excuse for visiting Oregon City and get enough soap to cleanse our fingers while excavating tubers.

The Weisenbeck family motored to Portland for their Sunday dinner. Mrs. Tom Kelland entertained Mrs. Clint Black and children of Oregon City, Tuesday.

Why don't the Live Wires create a market in Oregon City for farm products? Just now you can't dispose of a cow or a hog to any of their meat barons and make delivery under 10 days or two weeks and then only after frequent impatience.

TRIO FINDS WEATHER AND ROADS EXCELLENT

Sacramento, Cal. Nov. 6, 1917.

To the Courier: On October 30, three of us left Oregon City for Sacramento in an Overland automobile and at three o'clock, November 5, we reached Sacramento with our register showing 608 miles for the trip. The weather has been fine except for one hard shower on November 4. We had most all gravel roads in Oregon and the dirt road we struck was in fine shape.

Crossing the Siskiyou mountains was a joke. The roads are in fine shape and they are being improved right along. The first night out we stayed with a farmer a few miles south of Albany. His hospitality was the most sincere and hospitable I ever saw. I wonder if our mutual friend, C. E. Spence knows him? The second night we pitched a tent south of Roseburg and spent a pleasant night. Our little Overland car has stood the trip without one accident and at times it has run 24 hours steady with three stops of a few minutes each—and some of the road was awful.

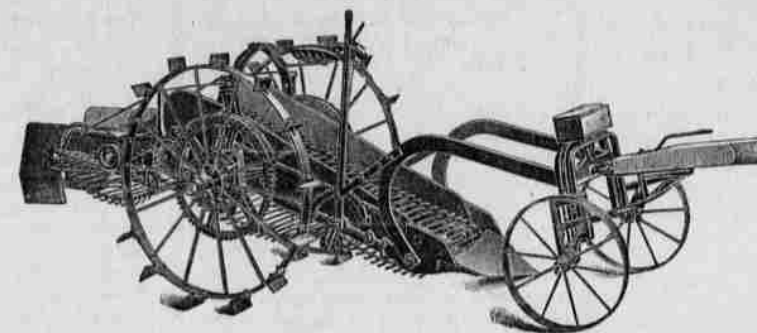

My mother and father took the train at Sissons, Cal., and I drove the automobile from there to Redding by three o'clock the next morning over the worst road I ever saw a car go over. Mud axle-deep, steep mountain roads and lots of fog. I made 11 miles that night in second gear without a change.

At Redding we struck paved road and they say it is paved clear through to Los Angeles. We leave for Bakersfield in the morning and will pray for good weather.

IN SOLICITING WAR FUND

The drive for the Y. M. C. A. war work fund is on in Clackamas county, where a committee is charged with raising a $4000 quota of a total fund of $35,000,000, under the direction of A. C. Howland and a committee of assistants. In the eastern section of the county, with headquarters at Estacada, the fund raising is done under a separate committee, headed by Senator Stephens. On Monday Mr. Howland appointed the following persons to assist in direct soliciting for the fund:

THIRTY TEACHERS GET INCREASED SALARIES

Thirty of the 38 teachers in Oregon City schools benefit by the increased salary scale adopted by the city school board at a meeting Thursday night to take effect on the next pay day, November 16, and continue throughout the present year at least. The advance in general amounts to $5 a month for the school year, adding about $1200 for the year to the school board's bill of expenses.

This action was contemplated by the school board before the teachers took it upon themselves to submit a petition through Superintendent F. J. Toole asking a new salary scale. The petition caused a bit of strife in the board and it was denied flatly in view of the arrangement under consideration. Under the scale adopted Thursday the teachers continue to receive pay for the school year only, rather than for 12 months, as they had asked, and the increase is not as much as they had asked.

Seven new teachers on the city staffs do not benefit by the increased wage scale and Superintendent Toole's salary remains the same. The fact that seven teachers are left out of the plan is accounted for by the board when it says that they were paid higher salaries at the beginning than the other teachers because of the difficulty that was experienced in getting good teachers. Miss Beatrice Kirkup, instructor in music on two days each week, will receive 50 cents more a day and Gustav Flechtner will get $10 a month as leader of the high school orchestra.

The board granted a 75 days' leave of absence to Miss Bertha Dalling, grade school teacher.

WOUNDED "TOMMY" HERE

Y. M. C. A. Committee Meets.
Erwin and Rarick Speak

Private O. E. Erwin, wounded Canadian trooper, who told a graphic story of the war, was one of the speakers at the Y. M. C. A. war work fund meeting at the Commercial club Saturday afternoon. Erwin was wounded in France shortly after he went into action in 1914. Recuperated, he returned to the trenches in 1916, and is said to have been permanently disabled for service by recent wounds. C. C. Rarick, of Portland, was the chief speaker on the program for the meeting. Friday Mr. Howland and the members of his committee started active solicitation of funds for Clackamas county's $4000 quota of the $35,000,000 war work fund asked by the Y. M. C. A., and have promises of several large donations in the city. The subject was presented to church congregations Sunday by pastors and laymen and the motion picture screens are being used for advertising this week during the campaign.

The Little Ones and Old Ones

James Edwards, 298 Harriet St., Montgomery, Ala., writes: "I sleep all night and cough but little. I feel like a new man now from using Foley's Honey and Tar. My whole family is using it now—the little ones and the old ones. It has cured our coughs and broken our colds." Foley's Honey and Tar clears stopped air passages, removes phlegm, heals raw inflamed membranes, soothes sore chest, makes difficult breathing easy, and relieves those deep-seated, racking coughs. —Jones Drug Co.
