FREEDOM IN MARKETING

Writing of markets, one farmer writing in Farm and Fireside says: The writer had some peaches last August which he wanted to find a market for. He reasoned that peaches being a good article of food, and there being a couple of millions of hungry people in Chicago, it would be a fine thing if he could ship to that point and sell to the pushcart men who vend peaches on the streets. So he had an investigation made to see what the prospects would be. The man who made the investigation knows all the ins and outs of the marketing business in Chicago.

"I find," said his report, "that even if a good run on the railway could be secured for your peaches into Chicago the trouble would arise in getting your cars properly 'spotted' on the tracks in Chicago—that is, in getting them properly placed for unloading. There is such a ramification of tracks here that a dollar or two slipped by interested parties to the brakeman or switchman would be sufficient to have the cars marooned on some remote switch, among hundreds of other cars, and by the time the head officials could be seen and the matter straightened out the peaches would be a pulp."

Here is a matter which might well be looked to. Peaches marooned on a remote side track for the purpose of destroying them by decay will not do much to cut down the high cost of living in the cities, nor add to the cost of high living on the part of the farmer.

"I find," said the report, "that this has happened time and again in cases where independents have shipped to Chicago or other large cities. Then I find that pushcart men and hucksters, while otherwise ready and willing to buy peaches from the car, would be afraid to do so, for fear that they could not make their regular purchases of commission men. So, you see, it is the old, old question."

It is a reign of terror, you see, as well as a hold-up. It is indeed the old old question. The grain men had to solve it when elevators refused to handle their grain unless it was bought through the combination of country elevators.

The middleman is a necessity. But the middleman who organizes to compel shipments to him and his fellows is a menace to the producer and the consumer.

A MIGHTY GOOD START

On exhibition in Oregon City are 29 head of the finest Guernsey cattle in America. The animals, representing a cost of $11,000, are being groomed and tested before their distribution to the purchasing members of the Clackamas County Guernsey Cattle club.

In the meantime the club has coming to it a vote of thanks from every public spirited citizen in the county, and in that class we put the enterprising farmers. Certainly few things have been done on a larger scale than this importation undertaken by a few ranchers whose money, earned in this county, returns to the county in the form of such genuine improvement as the betterment of livestock herds.

We all may have different ideas as to the best stock with which to cover our pastures, but if the Jersey, the Holstein and the Shorthorn boosters all would do what the Guernsey breeders have done there would be no end of benefit resulting. The club has set a notable example.

To be a great agricultural center Clackamas county needs just such progressive acts as that of these few farmers who comprise the Guernsey club. The man who sticks rigidly to his belief that the old Jersey boss is the best cow in the world will be just as appreciative of the progressivism of the Guernsey club as anyone else, for he sees in it the beginning of a period of mutual helpfulness between the farm and the city, represented by the bank.

Our record will be better for just such undertakings and it is a pleasure to know that not only the farmers of the county but the bankers themselves have come to appreciate more fully than ever the spirit of co-operation that will turn farming into a gigantic industry and make the farmer one of the biggest business factors in the state. All Oregon has reason to congratulate the Guernsey club on its enterprise.

LO THE POOR INDIAN

On a tract of land in Oklahoma, allotted to Jackson Barnett, a Creek Indian, and on which it is not recorded that he ever did a stroke of work, oil was some time ago discovered. Jackson's income is now said to be $50,000 a month from oil royalties. He has a cabin, erected for him by the superintendent of the Five Tribes, but he prefers to live in the open. At night he wraps himself in a blanket and sleeps on the porch. His property is now said to be worth $800,000. He does nothing through the living day but sit around. Yet, he is not entirely worthless. He bought a block of Liberty bonds, two weeks ago, and single taxers are using him as a terrible example.—C. S. Monitor.

If you want to know what real livestock looks like visit the Guernsey exhibit in Oregon City next week.

Many a head rests more easy in Clackamas county since three rapid traveling negroes were returned to Salem.

The unlucky chap next week will be he who must provide Thanksgiving turkey at 35 cents a pound to 35 relatives.

One wife who asks Judge Campbell for a divorce this week says she doesn't love her husband any more than a poodle dog. Maybe hubby doesn't bark.

America's casualty list in the war has already been relegated to an inside page in the newspapers. Some of the stay-at-homes are beginning to realize that we are at war.

"Out of the trenches by Christmas," was an encouraging slogan a few years ago. Perhaps its author was more wise than we thought in not mentioning which Christmas.

On November 20, G. R. H. Miller of Oregon City rounded out the 52nd year of his residence among us. And from a little diary he has kept since the day he was discharged from the army after the Civil war he can tell of most every action.

Now that Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, famous bandmaster, has clipped his whisker and beard we can expect to hear that our own beloved Uncle Samuel, the last of a one-time majority, has gone the smooth-shaved way of the masses.

CHERRYVILLE

Fine weather for November. Some wells are going dry in the rainy (?) season.

Talk about two bites at a big cherry! George Ten Eyck has some potatoes it would take a good many bites to get away with. He thinks they are too big to sell well.

The road work is being pushed along here and it is expected to be nearly done this week.

A road meeting will be held this Saturday at the schoolhouse. Apparently there is no opposition to C. W. (Dad) Miller for road boss next year.

GLEN ECHO FOLK CELEBRATE

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Tabor Surrounded by Scores of Friends on 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Tabor, of Glen Echo, were guests of honor at a large reception given at the home of their youngest daughter, Mrs. Mortimer E. Walker, on Wednesday, November 14, the occasion being the 50th anniversary of their wedding. Mrs. Walker was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Laurel M. Hoyt of Hillsboro. Over 200 guests called during the afternoon to offer congratulations.

The Walker home was artistically decorated, the living room being gay with the national colors. A picture of the home in which Mr. and Mrs. Tabor lived during the first 25 years of their married life occupied a conspicuous place and was surrounded by tiny silk flags. The dining room was bright with yellow chrysanthemums, and here a buffet luncheon was served, the coffee urn being presided over by Mrs. J. W. Gray of Glen Echo, while Mrs. John Hickman of West Linn, poured tea. Both Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Hickman were charming frocks of white, which helped to carry out the color scheme.

The candies and wafers were in gold colors and the wedding cake was wrapped in small pieces and sealed with a tiny gold heart. The refreshment room was in pink, small tables being arranged about the room and pink chrysanthemums formed the decorations.

During the afternoon the wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. E. Gilbert of the First M. E. church, Oregon City, Mr. and Mrs. Tabor having been members of that church for the past 24 years.

Mrs. Elmer Dixon acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Dixon as best man. Mr. Dixon was an old schoolmate of Mrs. Tabor's, and was present at a chivalric party when Mr. and Mrs. Tabor were married 50 years ago. Just preceding the ceremony Mrs. Frank Oswald of Gladstone, sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Maude Warner of Oregon City. Mrs. D. A. Walters of Portland read a poem entitled "The Golden Wedding," which was written by her husband, the Rev. D. A. Walters, and dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Tabor. Miss Maude Warner during the reading played strains from the old love songs, which was very effective.

Mrs. Walker was assisted in receiving by Mrs. L. M. Hoyt, of Hillsboro; Mrs. E. E. Gilbert, Mrs. Temperance Swafford, Mrs. L. P. Horton, of Oregon City, and Mrs. Fred Smith and Mrs. B. A. Hoag of Mel-drum. Mrs. George Howell and Miss Alta Howell assisted in serving.

Mrs. Tabor wore a handsome gown of black satin with real jet trimmings and wore a corsage bouquet of tiny Sunset roses and heliotrope.

Mr. and Mrs. Tabor were married November 14, 1867 at Yates City, Ill., where Mr. Tabor was born and where Mrs. Tabor, then Isabelle Hensley, had the year before come with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Hensley, from Mount Sterling, Ky. Mrs. Tabor was active during the Civil war in administering help and comfort to wounded soldiers on the battle fields and although of southern blood she, with the rest of her family, was a strong northern sympathizer. Mr. and Mrs. Tabor removed soon after their marriage to Russell, Iowa, where they lived on one place for 25 years. The past 25 years have been spent in Oregon.

Many handsome presents were received. The W. R. C., of which Mrs. Tabor is an active member, presented her with a beautiful solid gold emblem pin. The G. A. R. also sent a lovely gift, as the members of the M. E. church and other close friends. Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hoyt and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Walker presented each with a solid gold handled umbrella, with name and dates engraved. Many beautiful flowers were received and gold pieces came from distant relatives. During the afternoon telegrams of congratulation were received from Margaret Hoyt of Eugene and Tabor Hoyt of Tacoma.

The children and grandchildren present were: Mr. and Mrs. Laurel M. Hoyt of Hillsboro; Richard K. Hoyt of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer E. Walker and son, Marion D. Miller, of Glen Echo; and Asel F. Tabor, a grandson, also of Glen Echo.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Morgan and daughter, Margaret, and Miss Audrey Tour of Forest Grove; Mrs. Howard Skinner, Mrs. William Mansell Wilder, Mrs. D. A. Walters, and Mrs. E. H. Reddaway of Portland.

The following friends attended the reception: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roman, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Warnock, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Singletary, Mr. and Mrs. John Ackley, Mr. and Mrs. W.
