CROWN MILLS ARE HOSTS TO PARTY

STRIKERS PROTEST APPOINTMENT OF STATE POLICE TO PRESERVE ORDER

OTHER MACHINES OPERATING

Picket Line Shifts. Unions Hope for Action by Federal Board on Labor Mediation

E. P. Marsh, member of the U. S. Mediation commission, spoke to a large audience of citizens, strikers and sympathizers at Busch's hall last night. Mr. Marsh did not talk on the local labor trouble.

The Crown-Willamette Paper company was host at dinner to a group of Oregon City business men on Saturday in the large dining room which is maintained as a feature of the "hotel de Swan," the home provided by the mill company for workmen at the plant during the strike of the paper mill unions.

A fine dinner was served to the business men and they later inspected the plant and equipment. They were shown the several parts of the "hotel" of which, among other things, they had heard widely varying rumors. The trip to the plant was in the nature of an investigation of these rumors. Manager B. T. McBain of the mill company, made a brief talk to his guests, telling them that the strikebreakers would be cared for by the mill company just as long as they needed protection from striking mill workers.

Among those who made up the party were: Rev. E. E. Gilbert, Rev. C. H. Chandler, Dr. L. A. Morris, Judge Grant B. Dimick, George Hankins, W. A. Huntley, Fred Hogg, M. D. Latourette, Ralph Parker, O. L. Eby, J. E. Morgan, V. Harris, George Bannan and A. L. Beattie.

A meeting attended by striking paper mill workers at Busch's hall Friday night resulted in the adoption of a resolution condemning the action of Governor Withcomb in appointing special police, to be paid by the mill companies, to keep order in connection with the paper makers' strike here. Charles P. Howard, secretary of the state board of conciliation, and Otto Hartwig, president of the State Federation of Labor, spoke at the meeting. The resolution, adopted after the preamble, says:

"Resolved, by the citizens in mass meeting assembled, That we hereby vigorously protest the action of the governor as not being in the interest of good government, that special officers to be just to all must be paid by the state, and the citizens feel that the city has been disgraced and we know that the local officers are able to control the situation without these special officers."

The labor unions feel confident that they will get some satisfaction from the presence in Portland of Secretary of Labor Wilson. A well-attended mass meeting at Busch's hall Monday afternoon was addressed by E. J. Stack, secretary of the State Federation of Labor; C. M. Ryerson, editor of the Labor Press; George Schneider, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, and James Morrison, international representative of the Mechanics' union. While Mr. Morrison was talking the crowd carrying Secretary Wilson into Portland is said to have passed through Oregon City. When this fact was mentioned the audience made a prolonged demonstration.

Superintendent James Lovett put two more paper making machines into operation at the Crown-Willamette mills on Monday, according to the company's announcement. This put all the company's news print machines into service. Inasmuch as

FOUR MORE MEN ANSWER CALL TO ARMY SERVICE

In accordance with advice received from Adjutant General Williams Tuesday morning, County Clerk Iva Harrington has notified the following men to appear before the local exemption board and qualify for service in the national army: Robert Roseau, Clackamas; David Humphrey Thomas, Canemah; Gilbert Henry Hanson, Clackamas; Max Adolph Hollmann, Beaver Creek. Four of these men are to replace the four who failed to pass in all requirements at Camp Lewis, after being certified by the local board and ordered into service. Those who failed are: Harry Crawford Reid, Estacada; Maynard Cole, Milwaukie; Roy Funk, Oregon City; Frank Thurman Hunter, Summerville.

CADIZ PRATT GIVEN SENTENCE IN PRISON

ASSAULT UPON WIFE CALLS FROM JUDGE STERN SCOLDING. PRATT IS FIRM

"Of all the animals I know about, man is the only one to attack his mate, the female," said Circuit Judge J. U. Campbell Friday in pronouncing sentence upon Cadiz Pratt, of Paradise Corners, for assault with a dangerous weapon. Pratt did not flinch when Judge Campbell said:

"I consider that you have not been sufficiently disciplined and therefore sentence you to a term of from six months to 10 years in the state penitentiary."

Pratt was indicted by the recent grand jury on a charge of assaulting his wife, whom he felled with a vicious blow from a heavy iron bar after quarreling with her most of the day. He attempted to prove that he acted in self-defense, but his own daughters did not support him. "Mrs. Pratt's life hung in the balance for more than a week and she is not yet thoroughly recovered."

Pratt interrupted Judge Campbell twice while he was pronouncing sentence to maintain that he had several times been compelled to forcibly keep his wife from doing him bodily injury.

CASES AGAINST UNION MEN DELAYED BY COURT

The case of S. A. Richards, striking paper maker and union official, arrested on a charge of using obscene language on the street, has been postponed because of the illness of City Recorder John W. Loder, who was to have heard the case Saturday. The case of Sam Finucane, charged with assaulting Matthew Rissberger, has been postponed for the same reason.

M. Fleming, arrested for carrying concealed weapons by Lee French, late acting chief of police, has filed a plea of former jeopardy in Justice of the Peace Sievers' court. Fleming was arrested, tried and fined by the municipal court and was soon after arrested on a warrant from the justice court. The result of the instrument filed Saturday is that the case has been held for hearing on December 1.

CHARLES E. NASH SUED BY WOMAN FOR $10,000

Charles E. Nash is asked to pay to Nellie L. Muirhead, of Portland, $10,278 for injuries said to have been sustained by the woman when the Nash automobile ran her down in Yamhill street. A complaint in the case was filed in Judge Campbell's court here Monday. It charges Mr. Nash with careless driving, with jockeying other vehicles for position in the street and with being on the wrong side of the street. Nellie Muirhead asks $10,000 as damages for a fractured skull, inducing concussion of the brain, and for a long list of other injuries which she says she suffered. The $278 covers the costs of medical attention and court.

HORSE CUTS LEG OFF

Animals Bolt from C. G. Evans. One Killed and One Injured

A peculiar accident that cost the life of a valuable horse owned by C. G. Evans, occurred at Concord station on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Evans was driving three horses hitched to a plow, when the animals suddenly broke and ran. The plow blade struck a front leg of one horse and the animal dropped almost in its tracks with the leg cut off. The horse was shot at once. The other horses continued to run, one of them breaking from the harness and cutting itself seriously in going through wire fences and orchards. The other animal alone dragged the plow over the road for more than a mile before it was stopped. The horses have several times showed a desire to run, Mr. Evans says, but this is the first time the effort resulted seriously.

UNION SERVICE TONIGHT

Rev. Mr. Seaman Will Preach. Rev. Gilbert is to Preside

Thanksgiving union services for the Protestant churches of Oregon City will be held this evening at the Baptist church, and the Rev. S. W. Seaman, past pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will preach the sermon. The Rev. E. E. Gilbert, of the Methodist Episcopal church, will preside at the service. The hour of service has been changed from the morning, as has been customary, to the evening at 7:30.

WOULD ORGANIZE SCHOOL-AGE WORK

SIX INDUSTRIAL CLUBS START AS RESULT OF ACTIVITY OF THIS CAMPAIGN

CHILDREN WILL BE TRAINED

State Specialist Will Cooperate County Superintendent Is Assisted in Plans

With the organization of 100 school industrial clubs as the summit of their ambition, state and county school authorities have started a campaign in Clackamas county with such vigor that in a single day six clubs were started on their way. Before spring the full number will be organized, it is hoped, and will provide a practical way in which the boys and girls of school age can really help the United States in the prosecution of its war.

On Tuesday six clubs were organized in as many schools, following brief meetings held by County School Superintendent J. E. Callaway, N. G. Maris, field worker from the state superintendents office, and R. J. Werner, county agricultural agent. The clubs started were at Estacada, Union, Damascus, Boring, Barton and Stone. It is understood that a specialist will be sent to the county in the late spring and early summer to assist in working school gardens, which are to be a feature of the work undertaken by the industrial clubs. The clubs will take up all branches of farm activity, it is said, not in the same manner as was formerly done, but at the request of the federal government and as a feature of the regular school work, rather than a side issue.

Instruction will be given the children in gardening and livestock raising and every possible piece of ground will be utilized by them. More than the usual emphasis will be put upon the rabbits, which are said to be destined to take the place of a large part of the national meat supply. In addition to the club agricultural projects the girls will devote much attention to home economics and will have classes in cooking, canning and baking.

DIVORCE SEEKERS FEW

Judge Campbell Separates Five Couples by Divorce Decrees

Louis Rath Friday filed an answer to the divorce suit against him brought by Anna Rath recently. He states that Mrs. Rath is a spiritualist and that her beliefs have given her a nervous wreck and have given her a violent temper. He asks that the case against him be dismissed, but asks custody of the minor children and full property title in case the suit is prosecuted.

Judge Campbell Friday signed a divorce decree separating Rose and Hugh Mulkins and restoring to the former her maiden name, Rose Callaghan. A decree signed Friday separates Joseph and Minnie A. Bishell.

Monday divorce decrees separating Lillian and John Irwin, W. L. and Olive M. Keffer and Anna F. and Fred F. Eby were signed and on Tuesday Bertha J. and Albert H. Mellien were divorced. Mrs. Mellien gets custody of minor children.

Burke Shoots at Auto

Recognizing the number as that of an automobile that had been stolen in Salem Tuesday, Night Patrolman F. C. Burke Tuesday night shot at a speeding machine on Main street. The shot served no other purpose, however, than to startle those who heard it, and the machine made away as rapidly as possible.

A NEW THANKSGIVING

How like the first Thanksgiving day is this! With our hearts and our storehouses full of the riches of a free nation we may return thanks to the guide of our destinies for liberty and prosperity—meaning while offering a prayer of hope that the peace of His kingdom may crown the glory of our lives.

Upon us falls the shadow of the third century since the fathers who made our freedom possible approached these shores—seeking here to establish the right of all free men. The America they created has perpetuated until today we are sending the progeny of those brave souls back to the land from whence our fathers came. And they go in the cause of liberty for which their forebears braved turbulent seas, hardships, privations and the savagery of the new world. Thereby, the first and the present Thanksgiving days are alike.

COUNTY AGENT BUYS LIME AT LOW PRICE

WILL SUPPLY FARMERS FROM TWO POINTS OF DISTRIBUTION SOON

(By R. J. Werner, County Agent)

There has been, and still is, considerable interest shown by the farmers of this county regarding the use of agricultural lime on the acid soils in this part of the state. In considering the need of a particular soil for lime there are five things to take into account, namely: (1) How much acid does your soil contain? (2) What is the best price at which the lime can be secured? (3) What per cent of calcium carbonate does it contain? (4) What can you afford to pay for lime and get your money back? (5) What crops are you intending to grow on the ground after lime is applied?

The acidity of the soils in different parts of the county varies greatly and there will be variations from field to field in the same locality. The only way in which the need for lime and the amount to be applied can be determined is by making an acidity test. The office of county agricultural agent is now equipped to make such tests free of charge to those desiring them.

One carload of lime has been ordered by County Agent Werner for the farmers of eastern Clackamas. This lime tests 95 per cent and will cost the farmers $6.25 in Estacada. This lime will be used by the men who apply for it as an experiment to determine how much lime their land needs. The lime agent who says that "this land needs one ton per acre and that land needs 500 pounds per acre," without making a test is just trying to sell his lime and get your money. The land in this county is so irregular that your neighbor might not need any lime while your land might need two tons per acre to sweeten it.

Two carloads of lime have been ordered for Oregon City but they will not arrive until in the spring. This lime will be laid down in Oregon City for about $4 per ton net and will be sold to the farmers who apply for it at whatever cost it will be to this office.

A CHRISTMAS GIFT TO COURIER SUBSCRIBERS

Here is The Courier's Christmas present to the people of Clackamas county, it cannot be duplicated in the United States, to our knowledge, by a paper charging as small a subscription fee as $1.00 a year.

With every NEW subscription entered upon the books between Thanksgiving day and Christmas day, The Courier will present a merchandise order with a full cash value of 25 cents on any merchant in Oregon City whose advertisement appears in The Courier between those dates. Think of it! The price is $1.00!

You can take The Courier's merchandise order into any store represented in this paper between now and Christmas and get 25 cents' worth of merchandise of your own selection. In addition, we will enter your subscription, free of cost, for one full year to the Oregon Farmer—Oregon's foremost farm journal. All for $1.00!

Old subscribers may take advantage of the same offer by paying one full year in advance on their subscriptions.

ELKS HAVE SERVICE

Clarence L. Reams to Address Lodge at Memorial Service

United States District Attorney C. L. Reams is to deliver the memorial address before the Oregon City lodge of Elks on next Sunday. The annual memorial service will also be featured by the appearance of the members of the Hartbridge Whipp male quartet of Portland, with a substitute for Mr. Whipp, who has gone east. District Attorney Gilbert Hedges is chairman of a committee of the lodge in charge of the memorial service, to be held at the lodge rooms on Sunday afternoon.

COURT'S BUDGET IS AN INCREASE

JUDGE ANDERSON'S LETTER IS STATEMENT COVERING A HIGHER TOTAL

BRIDGE PROVIDED IN DRAFT

Budget Meeting is December 22. Court Believes Estimates Are Toned to Limit

County Court, Nov. 27, 1917.

Editor Courier:

An examination of the county expenses, aside from roads, state and schools, shows that the present estimates for the county are an increase of $909,400 over the budget for 1917. This is nearly accounted for in elections. The appropriation for elections last year was $1000, the cost of holding the special election in June was $4199.00 and the increased appropriation called for in the present budget is necessary to make up the deficiency and provide for two elections this year. The proposed appropriations for roads is the same as that of last year.

H. S. ANDERSON, County Judge.

An unofficial draft of the county budget for 1918 has been completed by the county court and is to be presented to the taxpayers at the annual budget meeting set for December 22. The budget provides for the expenditure of less than $10,000 more than last year, although the court has been forced to include several items which were not considered in previous budgets. For instance, the salary of an agricultural agent, at $1500 a year. This item, incidentally, is now being protested by the circulation of petitions by individuals in the county.

The budget this year provides for a total expenditure, aside from roads, bridges and schools, of $1,068,156.50, whereas the total estimated expenditures of the county for the year will be $662,771.50. Receipts estimated from all sources other than direct taxes are $544,998.69, and there is an estimated balance on hand for the end of the present year, $10,000.

Features of the budget are the inclusion of an item, the cost not designated, for the construction of a new suspension bridge over the Willamette at Oregon City, and the erection of a county infirmary, for which no cost is set. A special high school fund of $36,000, which state law requires the court to raise on all property not included in high school districts, will be created by taxation. This fund is to pay the tuition of pupils in non-high school districts who attend school in other districts.

A permanent road construction program is promised for the coming year by the inclusion in the budget draft of an item of $14,968.00 for hard surfacing. In addition to this sum $28,735.00 has been set aside in the budget draft for expenditure with state aid on road work, probably to include considerable hard surface. The largest item in general county expense is for the care of the poor, a total of $14,000. The purchase of an automobile for the school superintendent's office is provided for in the budget, although no price has been set.

The court believes it has toned down its estimates until little material change will be made in them by the taxpayers at the meeting on December 22. Such items as the suspension bridge fund, county in-

ALVIN OBST WILL MARRY MISS LAURA ROSENTHAL

A wedding that holds considerable interest for Oregon City is to take place at Portland on Sunday when Alvin L. Obst, popular young businessman, is to be married to Miss Laura Rosenthal of Portland. Mrs. M. Rosenthal, mother of the bride-to-be, has announced the engagement of her charming daughter to Mr. Obst. The ceremony will be held on Sunday next at the home of Mrs. H. Blatt, 147 North Twenty-third street, Portland.

Mr. Obst, the groom, has been in Oregon City for several years and, although a young man, has built up a highly creditable business in the city and county and has a host of friends. He has been prominent in commercial and civic activity and his hobby for athletics has drawn considerable attention. He is an Elk, a member of the Commercial club, the Live Wires and other organizations.

LIVE WIRES HAVE A MEATLESS DAY PLAN

MAIN TRUNK PADDED FOR GOOD LUCK ON BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

An uneventful meeting was held on Tuesday by the Live Wires of the Commercial club and they devoted an hour to hearing committee reports and in calling upon members who have special reason for celebrating Thanksgiving. M. D. Latourette, main trunk of the organization, enjoyed his 36th birthday anniversary Tuesday and when he was called upon for remarks declined to speak. A spectacle ensued with Mr. Latourette stretched full length over a club billiard table and several men giving him the required 36 pades.

The club has decided to have one meatless meal each month and the matrons who serve the Tuesday lunches will be asked to prepare some substitute for these days. Belgian hares were suggested as a fitting substitute. The plan was adopted upon the suggestion of W. P. Hawley, Jr.

The Hawley Pulp & Paper company, through its president, reported the expenditure of approximately $40,000 for the installation of a sprinkler system for fire protection in the mills. A water source will be two large tanks at the top of the bluff, offering a gravity system for flushing the sprinklers.

Reports were made by E. E. Brodie for the Red Cross committee, and the bean committee reported. The Live Wires' beans were sold at the Red Cross market yesterday for 13½ cents a pound. This will produce revenue for the Red Cross and at the same time pay all expenses of the demonstration project and leave a balance of $11.25 in the fund. The Rev. C. H. L. Chandler reported for the committee that is raising the local fund for an enlisted men's recreation center.

XMAS EDITION SPACE IS IN BIG GENERAL DEMAND

Another epoch in the long and successful history of The Courier will be marked by the 1917 Christmas edition, to be published on Thursday, December 13. In spite of the war the artists are finding time to prepare the most pleasing line of Christmas advertising features, such as holiday cuts and fancy borders, that have ever been furnished.

Of these The Courier will supply itself in accordance with the demands of advertisers. It therefore behooves those who know the value of Courier space, and especially the pulling power of advertising in Oregon's best weekly at the Christmas season, to make space reservations early. In addition to a large standing circulation The Courier will mail a great many sample copies. The edition is not to be stinted in any way over past years, but the publishers anticipate a space reservation, judging from applications already made, that will exceed past records.

The Christmas Courier will serve Clackamas county as a guide book to holiday shopping, faithfully representing the progressive marts of trade in the city and county.

TAG DAY SATURDAY

A feature of the campaign to raise a fund for soldiers here will be a tag day, to be held on Main street next Saturday. Plans for the event are in charge of a committee led by Rev. C. H. L. Chandler, of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

WHITTEN FINED $20

Oswego Man, Intoxicated at Meeting, Arrested by Deputy

Frank Whitten, of Oswego, was arrested Monday on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place and was fined $20 and costs when he pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Sievers. Whitten is said to have attended a debate at Hazella on Saturday evening in an intoxicated condition. When he was shown the door he went to a dance in a nearby community. A warrant for his arrest was sworn to by Deputy Sheriff David E. Long and the arrest was made by Constable D. E. Frost.

Martha Jones Gets Judgment

A judgment for $31.10 was awarded to Martha Jones against F. A. Davis, by Justice of the Peace J. N. Sievers on Saturday. The amount was due on wages. A circuit court judgment against Emil Alt was entered Saturday in favor of Peter Wilson for $175 and the sale of produce owned by Alt was ordered in satisfaction of the Wilson claim. A jury heard the case.

Marriage licenses were issued here Tuesday to Harold Horner and Mary I. Folsom, of Estacada, and Clifford A. Doane, of Marshfield, and Henrietta Vista Adams, of near Aurora.

BATTLE OF GOLD AND ALASKA GOLD

TALES OF PROSPECTORS' LIFE IN THE FRIGID INTERIOR OF THE GREAT NORTH

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT

Some of the Hardships and Uncertainties the Grubstakers on Yukon Encounter

(M. J. Brown)

Men come here for gold. Ambition and health; They stick—for they can't get away; They dig, drink and die And then go to hell And pay for the last sucker play.

I found this on the wall of a deserted mining cabin on the Yukon.

It's Alaskan poetry; a jingle true to the Land of the Unyielding—the land where hardships oppress and death seems to win—the great North Land where men fight the white death—the land of cruelty, harshness, relentless—the land where men fight to get the best of a country that gets the best of them.

You have all read the stories of the two who "struck it." I am going to tell you about the 98 who did not—of the life and hardships of these gold hunters that too many writers do not touch.

A man who has lived in Alaska since the strike on Bonanza Creek at Dawson—a typical old "sour dough" boy—told me that it was his honest judgment that for every dollar of gold taken out of Alaska a dollar had been brought in, and later as I heard of the hundreds and thousands who never struck "pay" I am inclined to think he was not far from correct on his estimate.

The most of the dope that comes out of Alaska is of the by-gone days of big strikes, and the present days of hydraulic and dredging. Here is what the average prospector, be he "cheechako" or "sour dough," has to go up against in his hunt for the yellow stuff. This is the life of the ordinary prospector, of the 98 out of 100 who have little more than a grub stake and a hope when they start out.

So many think that mining in Alaska is done in the summer months and you often hear it said the season is so short. This is dead wrong. Mining is done in the winter—in the long nights of the north country when the sun is seldom seen, and when King Winter locks almost every stream in Alaska, except the Yukon, into solid ice. Here's taking a pair of gold hunters down the line:

They invariably prospect in pairs—two fellows will agree to team it. In many cases they are grubstaked, that is, some one will agree to put up a certain amount of food supplies to the pair, and if they make a "strike" half of the claims go to the grubstaker. This arrangement is now territory law, but it has always been unwritten and enforced law in Alaska. The man who would try to beat a grubstaker would not last long in the northland.

The two men have some locality in view where they just know they will make a strike. Every prospector has such a place where he knows there is gold. So they pack their grub on their backs and beat it. This is in the summer time, and when dog teams can't mush. Then, too, it is into a new country where there are no dog trails and where dog teams could do little good even in winter.

Some men will pack 75 pounds on their backs, but 50 pounds is the common load and it is load enough over the roughest country that lies out of doors. So the load must be food in most condensed form and it is usually flour, beans and bacon.

After that, perhaps, they reach there is water. A strike of the richest ground where there is no water is worthless. Strikes are invariably along small mountain streams, or in the bed of what was once a stream, with water near by that can be carried down.

The first prospect is made at the head of the stream. They dig there and pan. They don't expect to strike anything worth while. It is to determine whether in ages past any gold flakes were washed down this stream bed.

If the pans from the hole show "color" then the long, uncertain and terribly hard process of finding the deposits of rich dirt commences. And it is but a guess game. "Gold is where you find it" in Alaska and the guess of a tenderfoot is as good as the experience and wisdom of an old "sour dough." The prospectors simply guess about what place down the stream bed there may be some obstruction on the floor of the bedrock that would have stopped the gold in its centuries of washing and working down the stream.
