PECULIAR WEEDS GROW IN STREET

PAVEMENT BADLY BROKEN UP
BY UNFAMILIAR GROWTH
THROUGH SURFACE

MAKES GOOD COW PASTURE

Recently Laid Surface is Ruined by Mysterious Verdure. May Have Been Planted

When Broadway was a pasture and Forty-Second street was but a lane, as the over-worked popular song says, John Quincy Adams street, Oregon City, was a forest primeval, whereon, perhaps, wild Indians danced a war step, and where the cougar cries at night kept little Hiawatha awake in the tent of his grandmother and where the Laughing Waters of the Willamette sent the sound of their laughter to mingle fraternally with the balmy breezes on the fir-clad hill.

But, while Broadway was progressing under civilized influences and population to its position as one of the principal streets in the principal city of the world, and while Forty-Second street was gradually taking its place among the important thoroughfares, pioneers were heaving trails through the forest where John Quincy Adams street now cuts through Oregon City. Gradually J. Q. Adams street became the site of beautiful homes in this beautiful city. Gradually the town grew up and gradually demands for hard surface became more urgent.

The demands of a growing city must be heeded. John Quincy Adams street was paved.

It is said by prominent authorities, who devote their time to the investigation of things about which no one cares to know, that people and things revert to the type of their progenitors a certain number of times out of a certain number of hundred times.

Rich people built rich homes on John Quincy Adams street. A rich man named Carnegie built a beautiful library in a beautiful park on that street, and a rich paving company built a fine hard surface on the street.

That done the reversion to type set in. It is a long, sad story, featured by a fight over paving and between paving companies, which may or may not have anything to do with the reversion to type.

It may be, before the issue at hand is stated, that John Quincy Adams street is just qualifying for future glory along the lines achieved by Broadway and Forty-Second street and feels that it must become a pasture before it can be as great as either of these great streets.

Be that as it may, John Quincy Adams street, with its prettily paved surface, bids fair to become a popular cow pasture. The forage is becoming luxuriant and presents an admirable opportunity to some enterprising dairyman to establish on that street a feeding place for his cattle.

Between Sixth and Fifth streets on John Quincy Adams street a verdant growth of unfamiliar weed is becoming very heavy. Imagine a solid growth of weeds coming through hard surface pavement in such quantities as to make a solid cover of green in some places! Sounds like an absurdity when the hardness of paving is considered, but the fact remains that weeds are growing through on John Quincy Adams street.

Covering a space thirty feet long and extending toward the center of the street for several feet is a solid lawn of these weeds. Beyond that for a considerable distance little patches of the weed have gained admittance to the fresh air and sunlight through the paving surface. The weeds break through the surface and leave holes as large as a dollar. This is gradually enlarged as the weed spreads, so that if the present growth, which is from 2 to 6 inches high, was cut away it would probably be found that the paving surface was very badly damaged.

The weed which has caused the damage is not familiar to those who have seen it. It seems to be tender, but it is admitted to have a powerful punch when it can break through asphalt surfaces. Its source is a mystery, but its damaging effect is actual and may necessitate re-paving the street. It is difficult to tell just what damage the growth has already done, but those interested in the weed or its influence may easily ascertain for themselves the extent of its growth by a personal investigation.

The weed and its effects are seen in no other part of the city, which adds further mystery to the situation. Several opinions as to its source have been expressed, but lack at this time the proper evidence to make them worthy. They do not alter the fact, however, that the street is in a frightful condition; that it looks more like a pasture than the site of pretty homes should look and that there is deep mystery surrounding the appearance of a growth so powerful that it can break through a surface so hard and so recently laid.

HAWLEY EMPLOYEES WORK LESS TIME

EIGHT HOUR SHIFT PLAN IS STARTED AT COMPANY'S MILLS HERE

Employees in all departments at the Hawley Pulp & Paper company's mills in Oregon City are to work eight hours a day hereafter in place of from ten to twelve and thirteen hours. This announcement was made this week by W. P. Hawley, president of the company and is to be in effect as soon as the additional help necessitated by the change can be secured.

Approximately 125 men are to be affected by the change in operating plans at the mill. In addition to this number at least fifty additional men will be employed in various capacities at the mill as soon as the proper men can be secured. An increase of fifty per cent. to the working force in all departments will be made.

The change in shift hours, which cuts working time of shift workers in all departments to 8 hours a day, does not effect the large number of men who are employed by the hour or by the day. Those, however, who receive at present $2.00 for ten hours of labor will hereafter be paid at the rate of $2.25 for the same work of ten hours.

A feature of the change, which will necessitate the employment of three full shifts in place of two as at present, which especially interests the men concerned, is that the reduction in working hours, in some cases five hours daily, will not reduce the wage scale. The men will be paid the same amount for eight hours of work as they have been getting for twelve hours.

Parts of the mill are not run on the shift plan and these departments will not be affected by the change in hours. They will, however, receive the benefit of the wage increase for day laborers in instances where the men have been paid $2.00 for ten hours work.

THOUSANDS OF FISH CLIMB LADDER DAILY

WATER BELOW FALLS IS ALIVE
WITH CHINOOK SALMON WHICH REST THERE

That there is no reason for complaint from sportsmen in the upper valley because salmon cannot get into the upper river, is revealed by an actual count of the fish that ascend the ladder. More than 3,000 salmon get into the upper river each day by means of the ladder, and when the water is lower this estimate would probably be very low. By actual count of the fish ascending the ladder within a given period during the early afternoon, admittedly the resting time of the fish, and a conservative estimate made upon the basis of that count, reveals that more than 3,000 fish get over the ladder in every day of ten hours.

B. L. Jewell, deputy game warden, to prove that the complaints of upper valley anglers had no foundation, took a party to the falls one day last week. In the pools below the ladder could be seen tons of fish resting before attempting to get over the ladder. The water was dense with salmon and they were leaping the steps in the ladder continuously. Literally, fish were in the air at all times and as many succeeded in getting over the top step in the ladder as made the first leap. The water in the ladder was alive with salmon.

Within one five-minute period 16 fish leaped the first step in the ladder and 27 made the second step successfully. Computing the total number of fish to make similar progress during a ten-hour day it is evident that, at the same rate, 3,960 salmon leap the steps in the ladder each day. In the early afternoon the fish do not attempt the ladder in such numbers as they do in the morning and later afternoon, so that, if anything, more salmon go over the ladder than the estimate indicates.

The state game and fish commission has been aroused by complaints from the upper valley and Chief Game Warden Shoemaker was in Oregon City to investigate the matter personally recently. B. L. Jewell, deputy warden stationed at Oregon City, has kept close watch upon conditions at the ladder and is certain that since the spring run started great numbers of salmon have been going over the ladder. Peculiar water conditions retard progress at certain times and at this time there is more than the normal amount of water coming over the falls. In spite of this it is evident that there are many fish in the upper river when so many leap the ladder each day.

RANDS REELECTED TO WATER BOARD

CITY COUNCIL RECEIVES FINE
GIFT FROM FIRST NAT-IONAL BANK

MENTION A MUNICIPAL DOCK

Postoffice Employees Get Good Appropriation for Convention to be Held Here Soon

With two councilmen, Roake and Buckles, not voting, Harold A. Rands, chairman of the board of water commissioners, was re-elected for a three-year term at the meeting of the city council on Wednesday evening. Councilman Templeton nominated the commissioner and Councilman Metzner seconded the selection, saying that Mr. Rands' work with the commission was so successful that he was entitled to another term with the board.

With the presentation of a request from the Oregon Engineering and Construction company, asking the council for a permit to pile sand and gravel on Water street between Eleventh and Twelfth, councilman Templeton took occasion to tell the council a pretty story of the monopoly that another firm is supposed to hold on the sand and gravel business in the city and of the excessive charges for material that are made as a result. The request of the petitions was referred to the street committee.

In the discussion which was started by this request Mayor Hackett mentioned the advisability of holding to any rights on water front property and especially at the place mentioned in the request, as the site for municipal docks which will be needed by the city before many years. This location is the natural site of municipal docks, the mayor said, and will be utilized for such a purpose within the near future.

Postmaster Cook and representatives of the Clerk's and Carrier's association of the local postoffice appeared at the meeting and their picture of the benefits to be derived by the city from the coming Clerks' and Carriers' convention was for them an appropriation of $75 to aid in financing the convention, which is to be held June 24, with postoffice employees from all parts of the state in attendance.

An appropriation of $25 was made by the council to aid Beaches' Boys' band in the purchase of uniforms. The band has agreed to appear on behalf of the city at any time the request is made.

A petition for the vacation of an alley in the rear of its property was presented by members of the First M. E. church and the matter referred to the street committee and city attorney for a report at the next meeting.

Bids for hauling rock to Seventeenth street where a fill is necessary, were read at the meeting and the council extended the mayor full power in the matter of purchase of the rock, which has been free of cost with one-half the hauling charges paid. W. P. Hawley, Sr., made such an offer and the Hurley-Mason company are behind a similar proposition.

A vote of thanks was extended to the First National Bank for the present to the city made by that institution of a 7-ton steel vault. The bank is replacing the vault with a new one and the one taken out has been turned over to the city. The vault is valuable property and useful for municipal purposes. A location for its erection will be found.

Only one remonstrance to the re-assessment of J. Q. Adams street was filed with the council. This came from E. B. Lowe, who alleges that the assessment is excessive and that the street, with existing grades, is a damage to his property. He also alleges that the re-assessment was a mere makeshift and that the amounts were copied from the old assessment without an attempt to change them. The matter was referred to the city attorney who will report upon it at the next meeting.

An ordinance for the sale of Division street improvement bonds passed the first reading and was ordered submitted for final passage on June 21. Nine of the bonds to be sold will be issued in denominations of $500 and one will be for $200.72, a total of $4700.72.

In addition to the routine expenditures the only unusual features of the finance committee's report were items for the purchase of a stop watch and the cost of conducting funeral services over the remains of a late canine. All bills were ordered paid.

A motion passed granting the city officials the customary summer vacations with pay for two weeks. The gas company was ordered to provide some means for shutting the gas off at the main in case of fire on property along its pipe lines. In addition to these things the business of the meeting was devoted principally to routine matters.

Every man is the architect of his own health.

TOOZE FORCES ENEMY TO SHOW FULL HAND

SUPERINTENDENT SUES MINER
FOR LIBEL AS RESULT OF CHARGES MADE

The elastic at which the anti-Tooze faction in the city school rumput has been tugging for several weeks seems about to rebound against them, the first sign of which was the filing of a complaint today against C. G. Miner, high school principal, charging him with libel and demanding judgment against him in the sum of $20,000.

The first big break in the fight that has been carried on against City School Superintendent Fred J. Tooze, occurred when an injunction was heard by Circuit Judge Campbell asking that the city school board be not allowed to pay the official's salary or to engage him for further work. A. L. Beatie was behind this phase of the fight and Judge Campbell sustained a demurrer filed by the school board against the injunction suit.

Mr. Miner, who is named defendant in the action taken today by the city superintendent, has been one of several leaders in the attack on Mr. Tooze's ability and moral character. He is responsible for taking the fight over the head of the city school board and placing it in the hands of the state superintendent of instruction. Mr. Miner objected to the granting of any kind of a teaching certificate to Mr. Tooze by the state educational department. When Superintendent Churchill heard this objection he invited Mr. Miner to state his charges. Mr. Churchill wrote the following letter to the legal advisor of Mr. Miner and the anti-Tooze faction:

"My understanding is that Mr. Tooze wishes to have any charges against him, that are for the purpose of having his certificate revoked, brought directly to this department. I am sending him (Mr. Miner) a copy of this letter, with the request that he write me. This department will set the place of hearing here in Salem, but does not have any power to subpoena witnesses or to force their attendance."

In a previous communication the state superintendent invited Mr. Miner directly to make any charges he or his colleagues had in mind, in the following letter:

"Yesterday Mr. F. J. Tooze appeared at this office and made application for a one-year certificate based upon his graduation from the University of Ann Arbor. I had in mind the protest that you made against issuing such a certificate, but found nothing in the law to warrant my refusing to issue the certificate. The certificate was, therefore, issued to Mr. Tooze."

"Should you now wish to file a complaint asking for the revocation of that certificate you may do so. The time will then be set for hearing, and both sides will be given an opportunity to be heard."

It appears, however, that Mr. Miner and his friends refused this opportunity of forcing their allegations and after once going over the head of the local school board, returned some weeks later to file indefinite charges against Mr. Tooze with the local board. This latter action was taken only last week and in his charges Mr. Miner, although very indefinite, charged the writing of anonymous letters, false charges against Mr. Miner, falsely taking credit for the work of others, ignorant interference, untruthfulness, neglect of fire drill. In other charges prepared by the members of the anti-Tooze faction immorality and dishonesty are among the charges.

An anonymous circular asking for an investigation of the charges was distributed by the faction working against the city superintendent. These and other things have featured the fight that has been conducted against the superintendent and while such things were going on, Mr. Tooze seemed content to let them run their course.

It is now apparent that he considers that course nearly finished and what is left undone he will take into his own hands. It is evident from the letters written by the state superintendent that Mr. Tooze has been willing to have any charges against him aired publicly, but the faction against him has not brought to the surface specific instances of the general allegations made.

At the last meeting of the school board, late last week, the charges made by Mr. Miner were read in the presence of the city superintendent and a committee comprising O. D. Eby and J. E. Hedges was appointed to look into the advisability of holding a hearing. This committee's report was not to improve matters in any way as it only stated that, if a hearing was to be held certain things should be done.

Mr. Tooze has, therefore, brought the entire matter to a climax through the suit filed against Mr. Miner. The complaint claims statements made by Mr. Miner to be false, defamatory, unlawful and maliciously intended and calculated to injure and defame.

C. Schuebel, as attorney for Mr. Tooze, will base his case upon the charge of immorality, with the other charges as incidental to the main issue. At a conference between attorneys for the two sides in the fight, Mr. Miner's representatives refused

LOAN MEASURE IS ASSURED BENEFIT

CRIDGE SAYS MANY NOT IN-FORMED AS TO PROPOSED
LAW ADVANTAGES

WILL GREATLY AID FARMERS

Much Idle Land Will Be Reclaimed
and Tilled if Land and Loan Measure Becomes Legal

(Alfred D. Cridge)

The people's land and loan measure is practically assured of a place on the ballot. Some people don't like it. Many people do not know what it is.

It means business, and it is well backed. The Central Labor council of Portland proposed it.

The State Federation of Labor endorsed it. The American Federation of Labor endorsed it.

What is it? A straightforward, unequivocal attack upon the holding of land out of use. It is a notice to the idle land owner to get busy and use or sell.

If you are in favor of Oregon being held out of use to the extent of nine-tenths of its natural resources, then you are opposed to this measure.

If you are opposed to land monopoly and the holding of land out of use for speculative purposes, then you are in favor of this measure if you are consistent and informed.

Probably like most human beings you are not consistent; and, probably, like most citizens of Oregon, you are not informed.

The proposed measure will take advantage of the initiative pamphlet to offer you some consistent arguments and some valuable information. Then you can do as you please.

The measure attempts to do two separate things.

First, to make the holding of land idle in Oregon too expensive to be profitable.

Second, to enable men wishing to employ themselves, and to build homes for themselves (and their families, of course), to borrow money from the state treasury at cost.

To achieve the first thing there is only one way, and that way is to tax idle and used land alike, regardless of the improvements, and to take into the public treasury ALL the annual rental value. Only those using land directly can then afford to own it; and those who are holding it idle must get out of the manger and quit playing dog in it.

To achieve the second, the money coming in from rent taxation, according to the provisions of this proposed measure, will be loaned to those who wish to borrow it on their improvements, and then only after they have made some labor created improvement; and the limit is not to exceed $1,500 to pay any one person or family.

The farmer will be relied upon to defeat the measure, and probably he is a sure thing unless he wakes up. The farmer thinks he owns land, when in fact his interests are largely on things on the land he has put there, or paid someone to put there.

The farmer thinks that if his tax is the rental value of his farm he will be taxed and confiscated into a tenant.

In fact, most farmers pay more taxes NOW (if they are real farmers, making a living from farming land), than the rental value of the bare land they farm.

Any well cultivated farm has far more value because of the clearing work, building work, live stock, wells, fences and other labor-made things, than the wild land was before any thing was done on it, or than a tract of wild land along side, held out of use, of like area and situation.

Some farms have five times more labor value than pure land value.

The People's Land and Loan measure is a real rural credits law, and will enable any man to go upon unclaimed, idle land, and borrow small sums, as he develops it by his labor, at a low rate of interest, until he has borrowed $1,500 and has improvements, live stock, buildings and machinery equal to $2,500. After that he can take care of himself.

Just listen to the big landed interests and the big moneyed interests and believe it pretty soon!

That should tell you what to do about it next November.

Ladies Meet
A brief program and refreshments characterized the meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church, held at the church on Wednesday. Virginia Ingram rendered several very pleasing piano selections and a reading by Mrs. Robert Sartor was popularly received.

to make the charges filed with the school board any more specific than they were originally and because of this Mr. Schuebel has determined upon the line of his attack.

PRINCESS ROSE DONS ROYAL FESTIVE GARB

OREGON CITY MAID REPRESENTS THE AMERICAN BEAUTY ROSE

Miss Rose Uptegrove, princess in the court of Queen Rose of the Portland Rose Festival, has entered upon her royal duties in connection with the big celebration and is one of the several princesses who are being showered with honors and attentions this week. Miss Uptegrove was in Portland for all the events of the festival carried out yesterday, and will remain there until the last of the ceremonies have been completed tomorrow evening.

During her reign Princess Rose will represent an American Beauty rose, and each one of the young ladies in Queen Muriel's court will be garbed in a color scheme to represent some one of the popular rose variety. Miss Uptegrove, however, is the only one of the princesses who has the distinction of being Rose in name, garb and personality.

Princess Rose will wear a dress of jade green tulle with deep red roses hanging from the skirt. The hat to match is of American Beauty maline. The Clackamas county boosters who elected Miss Uptegrove have reason to be proud of their selection.

The festival in which Miss Uptegrove reigns as Princess Rose, opened auspiciously on Wednesday evening and will continue tomorrow evening. Many Clackamas county guests have been in Portland throughout the time of the celebration and many others will attend today and tomorrow. The Fallsarians of Oregon City will march tomorrow morning in the big fraternal, civic and industrial parade.

LIVE WIRES RECEIVE PORTLAND WELCOME

CLUB COMMITTEE WILL WAIT
UPON COURT IN CONNEC-TION WITH ARMORY

An enthusiastic invitation was extended to the Oregon City Fallsarians, the Live Wires and Clackamas county people in general to attend the Rose Festival at Portland this week by Frank McCrillis and General W. E. Finzer of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the Royal Rosarians. The gentlemen were guests on Tuesday at the Live Wire luncheon and were the speakers of the day.

Mr. McCrillis paid a glowing tribute to the citizenship of the state and especially of the Willamette valley and laid particular stress upon the importance of the Rose Festival as an opportunity for this citizenship to get together for the biggest celebration that is held in the state each year.

General W. E. Finzer, former adjutant general of the Oregon National Guard, is chairman of a committee to receive and entertain the Fallsarians who will take part in the big military, fraternal and industrial parade tomorrow morning and in his brief talk outlined the plans of the committee for the reception of the Oregon City organization. According to arrangements made, General Finzer's committee will meet the Fallsarians at the car upon their arrival at Portland, and will escort them to the place of formation for the big parade. Immediately after the parade the Fallsarians will be entertained at luncheon by the Rosarians and everything possible will be done to make the day a pleasant one.

George Randall, member of the Live Wire armory committee, reported upon the progress of the movement toward securing a home for Company G, O. N. G. Mr. Randall and the committee have arranged for a meeting with the county court this afternoon at which time the matter of the county appropriation for the construction of the building will be taken up. A committee of seven was appointed by Main Trunk Howland to wait upon the county court at the meeting today.

In connection with Mr. Randall's report former Adjutant General Finzer emphasized the importance of the construction of an armory and made several suggestions as to the benefits of a home for the militiamen.

Doctor's Little Son Presents Gifts at St. Agnes Baby Home

The little tots at St. Agnes' Baby home, Parkplace, were given quite a surprise a short time ago, when Master William Meissner, son of the popular Oregon City doctor, celebrated his third birthday by visiting the home and distributing from his tiny hands gifts for each child. Toys, dolls, marbles and many other toys were in the collection of the youthful Santa Claus. Candies and nuts were also passed around.

The children enjoyed the visit exceedingly and for days after the sisters were kept busy answering questions about "the generous little boy."

HIGH SCHOOL IS CLOSING CLASSES

CLASS OF FORTY-SEVEN WILL BE GRADUATED FROM ORE-GON CITY HIGH

FINAL EXERCISES ON FRIDAY

Rev. John Boyd Will Deliver Graduation Address to Largest Class
In History

The exercises and ceremonies that mark the conclusion of a successful year in the Oregon City high school are crowding the present week to the brim with interest for pupils, patrons and teachers, and each day sees some part of the commencement program enacted.

On Monday evening at the high school auditorium occurred the annual junior-sophomore debate. The question for the argumentative contest, was: "Resolved, that the commission form of government should be adopted in all cities." The affirmative was presented by the sophomore team, comprising Glyde Schuebel, Jack Swan and Charles Wallace. The negative team included Eschol Armstrong, Earl Paddock and Fred Tooze, Jr. The debate was lively and interesting throughout and was decided by the judges, Rev. W. T. Milliken, T. J. Gary and J. E. Calavan, in favor of the junior representatives. At the same meeting Naomi Armstrong sang beautifully. A. O. Freel, former principal of the Barclay school, now in the Portland Trade school, was chairman of the debate.

Wednesday evening was given over to the presentation of the Shakespearean comedy, "As You Like It," by the seniors of the high school at the Shively opera house. Under the direction of Mrs. H. B. Cartledge the young folks did admirable work in interpreting the difficult roles assigned to them. The play was decidedly successful.

The senior class-day exercises are being held today at the high school. The program commenced this morning at ten o'clock with many interesting numbers both by students, faculty and others.

This evening the members of the graduating class will be guests at an informal evening with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Tooze. Mr. and Mrs. Tooze have planned many delightful features for the entertainment of the young people.

Tomorrow evening will be devoted to the graduation exercises at the high school auditorium, at which time 47 pupils will receive diplomas presented by J. E. Hedges, chairman of the city school board. The class is the largest in the history of the local institution and in many ways contains the most accomplished pupils who have ever been graduated here.

The Rev. John Boyd of the Portland Presbyterian church is to deliver the graduation address. Violet Roberts will deliver the valedictory, Helen Swope is salutatory and Harry Romig will present the class oration. The last three features are awarded to pupils who have attained the highest percentages for the course in the high school. The highest percentage for the work of the course was attained by Harry Romig, with Violet Roberts, second and Helen Swope, third. Preference in honors, however, is given to pupils who have taken the entire four years in the local institution and this arrangement placed Harry Romig in third place rather than in first, as he has had only two years of work in the Oregon City high school, coming here from Canby.

Others who have attained remarkably high standing in their high school courses, but who have been in the Oregon City high school only one or two years, are Laura Brenner, Walter Whitcomb and Mary Thompson.

BOLLACK HONORED

Oregon City Man is Elected by Royal Arch Masons at Albany

Max Bollack of Oregon City was elected grand king of Oregon Royal Arch Masons at the 56th annual convention of the grand chapter at Albany on Monday. The convention closed Monday evening and the delegates have returned to their respective homes. From this city T. E. Beard and Harold A. Rands were the accredited delegates. The new officers were installed soon after their election, with thirty-three of the thirty-nine chapters in Oregon represented.

In addition to Mr. Bollack other officers elected at the convention were S. S. Spencer, of Eugene, grand high priest; James F. Robinson, of Portland, grand secretary; David P. Mason, of Albany, grand treasurer; Silas M. Yoran, of Eugene, deputy grand high priest; James H. Richmond, of Portland, grand scribe; Thomas M. Baldwin, of Prineville, grand captain of hosts and L. A. Wright, of Albany, grand chaplain.
