Preliminary organization for the drive to raise $15,000 for the National Red Cross society in Clackamas county is meeting with success. A branch of the society was organized at Mulino last week by Dr. J. H. S. Mount, chairman of the Oregon City chapter, and T. W. Sullivan, county campaign manager, with 25 members signing the roll. L. F. Holliday was appointed captain of the Mulino branch. A branch was also organized at Clackamas by Mr. Sullivan. Nearly 30 members were taken in at Clackamas, which is to be an auxiliary branch of the Portland chapter. Many more signified their intention to either join the society or help raise the allotted funds.

The organization at Clackamas followed a banquet tendered to the Third Oregon regiment band, which is encamped at that place. Mrs. Otis Welsh was appointed captain and Mr. Miller vice-captain. T. W. Sullivan, who was recently appointed manager of the campaign for Clackamas county, has divided the territory into 138 districts. Red Cross week starts June 18 and ends June 25.

STRIKE SETTLED AT CONFERENCE

MANAGER MCBAIN APPOINTED TO CLEAR DISCHARGED MAN OF INTIMIDATION

RETURN TO WORK ON FRIDAY

No Question of Hours or Wages is Raised by Employes Who Walked Out

The strike situation at the Crown-Willamette paper mill was considerably cleared at a meeting of company officials and the executive committee of the papermakers' union Thursday night, when an agreement was reached by which all of the strikers with the exception of Roy Ott, who was discharged 2 weeks ago, returned to work Friday morning with the understanding that Manager McBain, of the company, is it act as attorney for Ott and to be given 10 days in which to clear the latter of the charge of intimidating employes who failed to join the new union which was organized two weeks ago.

The strike was called just a week ago last Thursday night, following Ott's discharge. The men say he was dismissed because of his activities in the union movement. Ott was elected temporary president of the union, pending ratification of the charter. It is understood that the company will not deal with the union as an organization, although settlement negotiations were carried on for the men by the executive committee of the union. The officials make the distinction that they are ready to deal with any of the individual employes, but to expedite the settlement made the proposition to the executive committee in this instance.

No question of hours or wages was raised by the strikers, their contention being that Ott was discharged in violation of a state law which gives them the right to organize. The entire week passed without any incident of violence and the demonstration Wednesday, when more than 400 men peaceably marched to the plant for their pay, was the subject of much favorable comment. As one of the oldest employes passed the paying booth, Manager McBain remarked: "Well after all these years!"

The employe replied: "Yes, after 21 years." It developed that this employe started working in the plant when it was built, helped to paint the walls and later went into the baler room at $1.50 a day. He was getting $2.60 a day when he struck and, with a bonus allowed by the company, made $3 daily. He has taken six weeks' vacation in 21 years and quit once to accept another job which did not materialize, so that he did not lose any time getting back to work at the mill. In the 21 years of his employment he has asked for one raise of 25 cents a day, which was cheerfully granted, he declares. He is married and has raised six children, his oldest son being a member of the United States navy at present. He says there never was any complaint about his work and that Ott's discharge is the first act of the management that did not meet with his approval.

"MEANEST THIEF" STEALS SACK SUGAR FROM ORPHANS

The "meanest thief" has turned up in Clackamas county. He stole a sack of sugar valued at $8.75 from the Parkplace station of the O. W. P. Tuesday afternoon. The sack with four others was left at the freight depot to be delivered to the St. Agnes Baby home near Parkplace. The sugar was taken between 12 and three o'clock and could not possibly have been taken in mistake the agent says as each sack was plainly marked for the orphans' home. Any information leading to the return of the sugar will be gratefully received by the sisters at the home.

The matter of county division was again brought up at the meeting and B. T. McBain made a talk, saying in effect that now was the time to encourage good feeling between the Es-tacada country and Oregon City, and urged that the Commercial club and the Live Wires would donate a sum of money to the East Clackamas fair, or appoint a committee to solicit subscriptions throughout the county for this event. The following committee was named: O. D. Eby, M. D. Latourette and B. T. McBain. It was decided to continue the luncheons through June.

OWES ARREST TO FEAR OF SNAKES

FORGER WHO JUMPED OUT OF WINDOW AT HUBBARD CAUGHT HERE

TELLS GLIB TALE TO GUARD

Search for Runaway Wanted in Idaho Ends When James McNeil Gives Man Ride

To his fear of snakes and the generosity of James McNeil, insurance man of this city, W. R. Doyle, alias W. C. Kennedy, who leaped from a northbound Southern Pacific train, Monday night, in an attempt to escape from Deputy Sheriff Fred Ulen, who was taking him to Lewiston, Idaho, on a charge of writing bad checks, owes the fact that he is again in custody. Kennedy was captured by Constable Jack Frost, of this city, about six o'clock Tuesday evening, after a search that lasted from the time of his escape late Monday night. The runaway had been brought to the outskirts of this city by McNeil, who offered the man a ride from New Era.

Kennedy, after leaving from the train near Hubbard, walked into Canby, where he was met by Charles Thomas, bridge tender for the Southern Pacific. He was without a hat and Thomas stopped him, but the prisoner told a glib tale of being held up while riding in an automobile and forced out of the machine while the highwayman made the driver take him toward Oregon City. Thomas was not entirely satisfied and asked Kennedy to accompany him to the Canby marshal's home. After several questions from Marshal Ed Bowman, the officers apologized for stopping the man and let him go with the promise that they would bend every effort to catch the highwayman who had held him up. They telephoned their information to the sheriff's office here Tuesday morning with the description of the supposed victim. Sheriff W. J. Wilson and Deputy A. E. Joyner, who with other officers had been out all night, went to Canby, knowing that the man stopped by Thomas was their man.

At New Era they learned that Kennedy had appeared at a farm house, told his tale of the alleged hold-up and asked for a hat. The farmer's wife gave him his breakfast and a cap and he stepped to the telephone, called up Canby and asked the marshal if he had seen anything of the highwayman. He then very profusely thanked his friends for their assistance and, after inquiring the direction of the roads, went on. A few miles from New Era, McNeil caught up with the man and invited him to ride. The stranger told the story to McNeil, who had read of his escape, but the local man said he wouldn't "fall" for it and, after letting the man out of the machine near the city limits, he notified the officers. Constable Frost and the Idaho officer after an hour's search found the man standing at the edge of the bluff along the Southern Pacific tracks here and placed him under arrest again.

Kennedy is a native of Kentucky, affable and gentlemanly in appearance. He claims to be a member of the veterinary corps of the United States army and said he was making his way to Portland, where he expected to get back into the army. He took his arrest philosophically and said he would have lain in the woods until nightfall yesterday had he not been "scared of snakes." Deputy Ulen took his prisoner to Portland Tuesday night.

APPLY TO STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION TO PAVE ROAD

Application has been made to the state highway commissioners and state engineer by the Clackamas county court to have eight miles of road in this county hard-surfaced during 1917. SPENCE SAYS PAY MUST BE RAISED

POINTS OUT NEED OF FARMER TO HELP WIN WAR WITH GERMANY

GRANGE MEETS AT ASTORIA

Governor Withycombe Expresses Regret and Says Farmers' Place is Most Important Now

The 44th annual convention of the Oregon State Grange was convened at Astoria Wednesday morning, with every county in the state excepting Baker, Deschutes and Jefferson represented. Delegates from 121 subordinate granges are present.

A new feature was the seating of delegates from the various Pomona granges of the state. Clackamas, Columbia, Linn, Lane, Marion, Multnomah, Polk, Tillamook, Josephine, Douglas, Lincoln, Hood River and Washington Pomona granges being represented. Fully 300 grangers delegates and visitors were present when Master C. E. Spence called the session to order. After the report of the committee on credentials Jacob Voorhes, secretary of the fire insurance branch of the organization, submitted his report, showing that there are now in force fire risks to the amount of $2,338,619, a gain of over $100,000 during the past year.

On the opening of the afternoon session Roy McKaig, master of the North Dakota State Grange, made a short talk and promised later to explain the details of the non-partisan league in his state.

State Master Spence presented his annual report, saying in part as follows:

"Our nation is now at war, and it becomes our first duty so to manage our work that the demand for food supplies will be met. Our county agents inform us that there has been a large increase in the acreage planted."

"There is already a great shortage of farm help. While the deficiency may be partially supplied from the cities, untrained help is unsatisfactory, while the importation of Oriental labor should not be considered."

"If farm labor and farmers are not as well paid as those engaged in other industries much of the labor and many of the farmers will drift to those industries which pay the most. Then in another year the nation will pay the price."

"This war is a great social enterprise. For some the duty is to fight, for others to furnish money. The citizen who contributes his entire income beyond what is necessary for subsistence itself does less than the citizen who contributes himself to the nation."

"Our soldiers and sailors will fight loyally in any case, but their spirit will be more indomitable if they feel that every man who stays at home is serving the country to his utmost. We now have conscription of men. Why not conscription of wealth?"

"Since the Oregon State Grange at its last two sessions had gone on record as opposed to bond issues for road building as a principle, the bonding bill was opposed by me in the legislature and during the campaign. But now the election is over and a majority of the voters are found to be in favor of the bonds, it is the duty of every good citizen to assist in getting the best results possible for our dollars, regardless of our personal opinions in the matter."

This evening the delegates were entertained at a salmon dinner given by the business men of the city. John E. Gratie acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by Mrs. W. S. Kinney, president of Netel Grange; B. F. Stone, chairman of the Port of Astoria; C. E. Spence, State Grange master; Ray McKaig, master of North Dakota State Grange; Mrs. Nellie E. Bond, state lecturer; B. B. Leedy, chairman of Oregon legislative committee; Mrs. Florence Dickinson, of the Oregon women's work committee.

A letter was read from Governor Withycombe expressing his regret at being unable to attend the convention of the Grange, of which he had been a member since 1873.

"Just now," said the governor, "it seems to me the farmer's place in the general scheme of things is more important than ever before. It is increasingly apparent that perhaps the largest influence which the United States can exert in the world war will be exercised by the products of our fields. In a large measure, the successful outcome of the struggle depends upon the ability and patriotic industry of the farmers of America."
