GIVE TODAY TO RED CROSS

There are just four more days left in which to give toward Clackamas county's $15,000 for the Red Cross. That does not mean that it will be impossible later to contribute to the support of the work of mercy which the altruistic members of the society carry on. It merely means that the time for the "big push" to raise $15,000 will end then.

The campaign started last Monday and under the direction of County Campaign Manager Sullivan the work has been intensively carried forward throughout the week. Every nook and corner in the county has been or is going to be covered. Every man and woman has been or is going to be asked to do their bit before the "drive" ends at midnight Monday.

One hundred million dollars are needed for the work at once. It will not be long until that money will have been spent in deeds of mercy upon the battle fields and in the homes of dependents of those who have died or are fighting on those fields.

Unlike the Liberty Loan bonds, money given to the Red Cross will not pay interest in cash at stated intervals. But, it will pay the biggest kind of interest in human lives, in lessening suffering, in fact, in shortening the war.

Indications are that more than the $15,000 asked will be raised in Clackamas county. That is as it should be, for reports from other sections show those places have raised as much as two and three times their tentative quotas. Our people do not wish to do less.

You mean to give something, of course, and probably you have already been solicited and told the solicitor to call later or you intend to send in your contribution when you "have time." There is no better time than now.

Give Today.

FEDERAL TAXATION OF LAND

Recently Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, warned the private owners of 700,000 acres of idle land near the government reclamation projects, that if they failed to cultivate their holdings, the government might confiscate them. "No one has a right to what he does not use," said the secretary. The report of this warning brought the following letter to Secretary Lane from C. B. Kegley, master of the Washington State Grange:

"Good, Mr. Secretary. But why not just now confiscate for use the millions of acres held by speculators all over our broad land? In Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, there is idle land enough held out of use by speculators to feed an empire. Every loyal farmer will gladly join in the campaign to 'Feed the Nation,' but it rather grinds on him to farm his quarter section industriously, and see three quarters of speculators' land lie idle alongside of him. Not only does it lie idle, but it is a breeding ground for all manner of pests to destroy the crops of the industrious farmer.

"The days of speculation in food supplies must come to an end, and at the same time let us bring to an end all private ownership of unused land, so that not only our nation, but the nations of the earth may be fed as becomes a toiling people. No greater menace to the rights and liberties of any nation can be dreamed of than that one man or set of men may be permitted to hold out of use productive land purely for speculative purposes, while millions of men, women and children go to bed hungry every night, that these land hogs may profit off the industry of those who till the soil.

"It is a relic of the old feudal days, and has no place in our modern economic ideas of justice.

"This campaign for greater production is all right. But why not seize the idle lands and put them to use?"

Now according to the New York Tribune of May 28, there seems a good chance of carrying out Mr. Keg-ley's suggestion. The Tribune's Washington correspondent reports that both Secretary Lane and Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of Agriculture, have openly declared for taxation of land values as a means of raising revenue and of forcing idle land into use. The report states also:

"The administration will compel the cultivation or utilization of unused lands throughout the country through a scheme of heavy taxation for idle lands."

SUPPORT HOOVER

United States senators opposed to food control argued for four hours with Herbert C. Hoover over the enactment of a law making such control possible. At the end of that time, Mr. Hoover had not given all the reasons why the law should be placed on the books. He will return to the task tomorrow.

In the meantime, every loyal American should get behind Mr. Hoover and support the measure, for America and Canada must raise 60 per cent of the food necessary to win the war and it is essential that the food should not only be conserved but that no exorbitant prices should be placed on it by food gamblers.

Under Mr. Hoover, the farmer would receive a fair price for his product, the food would be distributed through an organization which would make speculation impossible, and a reasonable price would be asked of the consumer.

The farmers themselves favor government control of the sale of food. They say that at present the middlemen, the gamblers in futures, control the market and cheat both consumer and producer.

Mr. Hoover, with his experience of feeding the Belgians when he headed the relief work in that country, has gained wide knowledge of conditions in Europe. This knowledge will help him avoid mistakes made in those countries. It will help him, also, to keep a clear perspective of the situation confronting not only America but her allies, and he can do much to relieve the condition.

The power for Mr. Hoover to step in and take charge of food must be given before harvest time. Time must be allowed him to organize his forces. He will get no pay for his work; this is his own suggestion.

It is as necessary to conserve food, to sell it at reasonable prices so that all might have it as it is to furnish bullets and dollars and soldiers.

Support Hoover and help win the war.

DISPEL YOUR WAR WORRIES

Under this caption the Topeka State Journal makes the following summary of the Philosophy of the Frenchman:

Of two things one is certain: Either you're mobilized or you're not mobilized.

If you're not mobilized there's no need to worry; if you're on the front, of two things one is certain: Either you're behind the lines or you're on the front.

If you're behind the lines there is no need to worry; if you're on the front, of two things one is certain: Either you're exposed to a safe place or you're exposed to danger.

If you're resting in a safe place there is no need to worry; if you're exposed to danger, of two things one is certain: Either you're wounded or you're not wounded.

If you're not wounded, there is no need to worry; if you are wounded, of two things one is certain: Either you're wounded seriously or you're wounded slightly.

If you're wounded slightly there is no need to worry; if you're wounded seriously, of two things one is certain: Either you recover or you die.

If you recover there is no need to worry; if you die you can't worry.

HOME GARDENERS SHOULD PLANT OTHER VEGETABLES

Now that radishes, lettuce, and, in some sections, peas, spinach, and other early crops are being harvested, home gardeners should be making their preparations to utilize the freed space by planting other crops, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In planning for these plantings, the specialists suggest, it is well at all times, but especially this year, to concentrate efforts on the production of vegetables that have considerable food value and on those which may be stored in their natural condition, dried, or canned for winter use. One of the important crops that can be grown on the freed ground is late Irish potatoes. Navy beans furnish substantial food which is easily stored, and the present market prices make it worth while in sections where they thrive to replant space from which crops have been harvested with this legume.

Other vegetables having considerable food value from which choice may be made for late plantings include sweet corn, string beans, late beets, turnips, tomatoes, squash and pumpkins. As far north as northern New Jersey, southeastern Pennsylvania, central Ohio, central Indiana, northern Illinois, and central Iowa, sweet potatoes also may be depended on to mature from plantings made as late as June 10 on sandy land.

Among the less nutritious vegetables which may be planted in soil freed by early harvests are late cabbage and cucumbers. Winter onions, fall lettuce, and fall radishes also may be planted late in the season.

It is not necessary, the specialists point out, to wait until all radishes, heads of lettuce, and other early maturing plants are removed before planting seeds or setting plants for succeeding crops. Corn or beans, for example, may be started in spaces made in radish or lettuce rows, or between the rows. The radishes or lettuce will then be harvested before the late-planted crops need all the ground. Equally satisfactory results can be obtained from the combination of other early and late vegetables.

The Old Time Favorite
The Choice of the Modern Farm
MOWERS

Champion Mowers have features which you as a buyer cannot afford to overlook. They mean increased length of service and greater satisfaction to you.

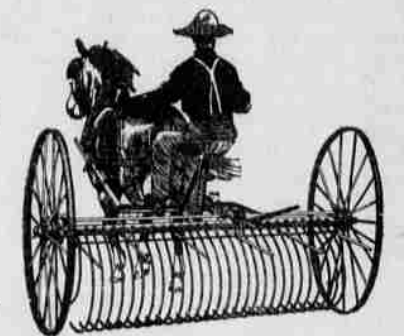

Wide Substantial Yoke.
Extra large case hardened yoke pins.
Extra long case hardened wearing plates.
Extra wide and strong wrought knife head.
Extra light draft and easy of operation.
These are but a few of the reasons why a Champion is an extra good mower to buy.

RAKES

No change has been necessary in the Champion Rake for several years, which is proof that it has reached as near perfection as it is possible ever to obtain in machinery.

Reversing axle stubs, when reversed is like new.
Reversing wheel ratchets.
Removable and renewable wheel boxes.
Best quality spring steel teeth.
Sure working self dump.

Come and study the sturdy construction of the Champion Rake.

TEDDERS

The Champion Tedder has often saved its cost in a single season. One has but to see the Champion work to learn of its excellent service. It is light draft and smooth operating. No matter what you need in cutting machinery, come in and look over what we offer in the Champion. You will find no better on the market and we can make you right prices.
