MRS. A. KING WILSON HAS INTERESTING TRIP

ACCOMPANIED BY SON, HAVE ENJOYABLE MOTOR TRIP.

OSWEGO, Sept. 1.—(Special).—A. K. Wilson and son, Robert, left Friday, August 11, for an extensive auto tour through Southern Oregon. They camped along the road in their auto. The first night was spent 10 miles south of Eugene. The next day they passed Roseburg, stopping at noon alongside of a machine from Los Angeles and another from British Columbia. Here they repaired their first and only puncture during the trip, which happened shortly before reaching Roseburg. Saturday night the party slept a few miles south of Canyonville, in the mountains. Sunday the travelers stopped in Grants Pass, just in time to attend church. Later in the day the band played in the public park and the tourists did not leave Grants Pass until 4 p. m. That night they camped about 20 miles up the Rogue river, on the road to Crater Lake.

Early Monday one of the party broke the rear axle of their machine and had to be towed into Medford for repairs. They were delayed three days while waiting for repairs, and decided to change their plans, of returning, and continue south to Klamath Falls and later return to Crater Lake.

After passing through Ashland, over the Siskiyou mountains and into California, they turned back into Oregon at Ager, a small town in California. They camped near Klamath Falls city that night. Next day they went through Klamath Falls and on up to Crater Lake.

They were up to the lake on Sunday and counted 100 machines there (from all parts of the country) showing that this is a very popular resort.

After staying at Crescent, a small town in eastern Oregon, they traveled all night to Bend. From there the party went down the Deschutes river and into The Dalles, where they rested the last night of the trip. Early Thursday morning they left The Dalles and went down over the Columbia River highway to Portland, arriving in Oswego about 5 p. m.

During their trip they met several tourists. All the towns through southern and eastern Oregon have a free auto camp ground where tourists are welcome to stop and camp as long as they wish.

Mr. Wilson was asked by several people, if Portland had an auto camp and he was sorry to answer that Portland did not.

The roads, on the average, were in good condition, especially eastern Oregon.

CHINA PHEASANTS DESTROY GARDENS

WORK DAMAGE TO POTATO CROP
—MR. JOHNSON COM-
PLAINS.

OSWEGO, Ore., Sept. 1.—(Special).—Mr. Johnson, who has a very large potato garden in Oswego, has made application to the deputy game warden for assistance, asking the state to reimburse him for damages done, or will be done, by Chinese pheasants, if relief is not given soon by the state authorities. About 200 acres in and around Oswego, a private reserve protected by the O. L. & S. Co. is a regular heaven for these birds, which are becoming a regular menace to gardeners here.

How to Give Good Advice.
The best way to give good advice is to set a good example. When others see how quickly you get over your cold by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy they are likely to follow your example. This remedy has been in use for many years and enjoys an excellent reputation. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

OSWEGO, Sept. 1.—(Special).—Kenneth Davidson has returned from a short visit to Ione. He disliked the idea of returning as wages in that part of the state looked good to him, but school time and studies beckoned him home.

DENA REBECCA LODGE HOLDS MEETING FRIDAY

SMALL ATTENDANCE VOTES TO BUY WATERMELONS.

OSWEGO, Sept. 1.—(Special).—Several of the very attentive members of Dena Rebecca Lodge were absent last Friday and the few present voted to buy watermelons, that they might make the ones absent feel sorry of missing so grand a time. Some of the members were attracted to the "movies" in Portland that night.

The lodge is sure of a big attendance next meeting night, but may be surprised as to a hearty feast of watermelon, for the few present will not vote so rich a feed this time. Nevertheless they like to have a large attendance of members each meeting night.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC BUSY FIXING WEST SIDE LINES

BLOCK SYSTEM BEING INSTALL-
ED AND TRETTLES STRENGTH-
ENED FOR WINTER SERVICE.

Many betterments have been recently ordered by the Southern Pacific for its west side electric lines, running between Portland and Oswego, and beyond. Some of this work has already been completed, and the balance of it is under way. The net result is that before the winter season settles down, this line will be thoroughly modernized, and will be much safer for traffic.

L. H. Hottwig, chief foreman of overhead construction, has a gang of men now installing a block system between Oswego and Portland. To complete this work will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. Another line crew is busy in the neighborhood of Cook station, duplicating the Oswego "over-lap" device, which will segregate the various sub-station districts, giving separate control over the current in each district.

In order to save the many long trestles of the line from possible weakening during the winter weather, Foreman Smith is busy with a gang of men reinforcing the piling with concrete pedestals; and the trestles at Riverdale and Mazon station are being reinforced. As soon as this work is completed Mr. Smith will take his men to the Wilsona bridge and completely rebuild this structure.

In addition to this work, the track gang from the Brooklyn yards has just finished placing a thousand new ties on the Milwaukee cut-off, from the main line to the Oswego bridge, and in several places the rock embankment has been strengthened and now ballast tamped down. All these improvements will add to the safety of the two lines and the comfort of travelers over them.

Soft Answer.

"No, dear; if they were long enough you wouldn't have had those corns."—Houston Post.

EVIDENCE THAT CONVINCES.

A Twice-Told Tale That Will Carry Conviction to Enterprise Readers.

Over three years ago Mr. Montgomery publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills.

He then told of benefit he had received.

Now, with unshaken confidence, he confirms his statement—

Tells how passing years have strengthened his faith in Doan's.

There's no better test than the test of time.

Can any Oregon City reader ask for more convincing evidence?

J. F. Montgomery, Oregon City, says: "I had been troubled for some time by kidney and bladder annoyances. I had a dull ache in my back, across my kidneys. I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Huntley Bros. Co.'s Drug Store, and the pains soon left me and I found the kidney and bladder trouble was lessened." (Statement given April 4, 1913.)

On April 17, 1916, Mr. Montgomery said: "I am still strong for Doan's Kidney Pills and whenever I can, I recommend them to my friends. They never fail to do me good whenever I have occasion to take a kidney medicine."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Montgomery has twice publicly recommended.

CHALLENGE IS ACCEPTED

MILWAUKIE AND OREGON CITY
TENNIS DATES SET.

When the Milwaukie Tennis club received a challenge from the Oregon City club they went the local organization one better. Within an hour of the receipt of the challenge W. B. Perry, president of the Milwaukie club, had phoned their acceptance, and had offered to play five matches of singles instead of three as contained in Oregon City's challenge. It was decided to play the matches Friday and Saturday, and the Milwaukie club is now arranging the schedule.

This means that some half dozen of Oregon City's best tennis exponents will go to the neighboring town this weekend. Keen interest is manifested in the result, and many local people have indicated that they will be present at some of the matches.

USE OF THE TOOTHBRUSH.

It Was Unknown In England In Lord Chesterfield's Time.

When did the English first adopt the toothbrush habit, which in recent times has been denounced by certain medical authorities? In "Esmond" Thackeray makes Lord Castlewood spend "a tenth part of his day in the brushing of his teeth and the oiling of his hair," and in doing so the novelist commits a double anachronism.

During the first half of the eighteenth century all fine gentlemen wore wigs and had no use for oil on their hair, while the toothbrush was so late as 1754 unknown to Lord Chesterfield.

Writing to his son, Chesterfield says: "I hope you take great care of your mouth and teeth and that you clean them well every morning with a sponge and tepid water, with a few drops of aromatic water dropped into it. I do insist upon your never using those sticks or any hard substance whatever, which always rub away the gums and destroy the varnish of the teeth."—London Saturday Review.

Poisoning as a Diversion.
Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 351, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty mantrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further information followed, and 170 mantrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.

Explanation of the old familiar story of the man who, recovering from an almost fatal injury or a serious illness, becomes healthier, more vigorous and youthful than before. It also confirms the old one about the idiot who, being hit a terrific blow on the head, regains his reason.

He Was Worried and Hopeless.
"For ten or twelve years I was bothered with kidney trouble," writes T. F. Hotchkiss, Little Rock, Ark. "I tried many remedies and doctors, but grew worse all the time. I was worried and had almost given up all hopes. I tried Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me a lot. I have since used five boxes and am now a well man." Foley Kidney Pills drive out aches and pains due to kidney trouble; also sleep disturbing bladder disorders—Jones Drug Co.—Adv.
