About the State

Resume of the News of the Week from All Parts of Oregon

Actual operation of the Oregon rural credits amendment got under way last week. Final letters of instructions to state land board attorneys, application blanks and information relative to amortization tables were sent out by G. G. Brown, clerk of the state land board, to the respective attorneys in the 36 counties of the state, and it is expected that within a week the first application will come in from one of the attorneys for a loan.

After nearly six years of negotiations, an agreement has been signed between the O. W. R. & N. and the city of La Grande for the construction of the biggest viaduct in eastern Oregon. It will be constructed at North Second street to the main line tracks. Work is to commence immediately, and the project will cost about $22,000. The city is to maintain the approaches.

Weston is lining up almost solidly behind the $6,000,000 road bonding issue. At a road meeting held at that place last week by the Weston Commercial association a rising vote was taken and fully 90 per cent of the 150 present stood up. Several representatives of the Eastern Oregon Highway association attended the meeting from Pendleton. State Highway Commissioner W. L. Thompson reports that sentiment in Baker is changing in favor of the measure.

The Klamath Falls city council has passed the ordinance providing for the issue of $300,000 in funding and refunding bonds to take up the six "railroad warrants" issued by the city for $50,000 each. This is the last official step for the city to take before it is ready to let the contract for construction of the Klamath Falls municipal railroad, which will extend from the corner of Second street and Klamath avenue in this city eastward through Olene, to a point near Dairy Station, 22 miles from the city.

Throughout the greater part of Lake county and from Klamath and Modoc counties comes the cry that there is a shortage of hay and that stock is going to suffer. At Alturas they are shipping hay from Reno, but in spite of this Andrew Frandsen, who ranges his flocks north of Alturas, says there is almost certain to be a loss of sheep.

Approximately 50,000 jackrabbits have been killed this winter in Crook, Lake, Klamath and Malheur counties by organized poisoning campaigns, according to R. A. Ward of the United States bureau of biology, who was in Portland last week. Most of these were killed at an average cost of eight-tenths of a cent each, as compared with a minimum of five cents where bounties are offered.

A box of 17-month-old Yellow Newton apples, with the top pried off and with a card bearing the following inscription, "These apples were picked on October 15, 1915. Take one," tacked on the side, has attracted the attention of all callers at the office of the Hood River Apple Growers' association. The apples, grown on the east side place of C. A. Reed, director of the association, are in a state of perfect preservation and have retained their natural flavor.

The supreme court is to pass on a case wherein E. S. Hayes of Halsey sued for a tract of land which he alleged he had earned by working for his father five years without any other remuneration. Hayes won the case in the state circuit court, and the other heirs of the late Alex Hayes last week filed notice of appeal to the supreme court.

I. N. Clark and G. Callaghan of Oakland, Cal., have taken a long-term lease of the box factory at North Bend from the Southern Pacific company and bought the machinery from F. W. Kern, who formerly operated the industry. The new owners will repair and make additions. The factory, which has been closed for two years, will open at once. It will give employment to 150 men. This leaves only one factory in North Bend idle, and negotiations are under way for operating that.

There seems to be a feeling that mohair is to break all bounds this year and soar to the highest prices ever known. The statement has been made by one of the leading buyers in this state that he looks for the mohair pools to open around 80 cents a pound, a price unheard of in Oregon. In addition to this he says he believes the market will reach $1 a pound before the season ends. The effect of such talk will be, of course, to stiffen growers' ideas as to what they ought to get and will probably cause prices to reach a point never before attained.

J. Fred Larson, interested with Portland capitalists in a plan to establish a $200,000 shipbuilding plant at Florence, the seaport town of western Lane county, made the first announcement of the project upon his arrival in Eugene from the coast this week.

The Oregon Electric railway is preparing to rebuild the big trestles that form the approaches to the bridge across the Willamette at Wilsonville. The work will require 100,000,000 feet of timber, nearly 40 carloads of which are already on the ground. It is said the estimate made by the company's engineers shows the cost to be around $65,000.

Last year work amounting to $15,000 to $20,000 was done upon the trestle, which at that time had lasted nine years. Fir was used in the foundations, but this time cedar will be used for all foundation work.

The shortage of hay has become a serious problem recently to some of our ranchers, says the Alturas Plaindealer. A good deal of hay is being shipped in over the N.-C.-O. by the smaller owners. The larger owners expect by careful management they can hold out until the first of April. To that end many cattle are being distributed to various feeding points.

"A Good Old-Fashioned Physic" Foley Cathartic Tablets, a wholesome physic, thoroughly cleanse the bowels, sweeten the stomach, tone up the liver. For indigestion, biliousness, bad breath, bloating, gas or constipation, no remedy is more highly recommended. Wm. O. E. Bielke, Hancock, Mich., writes: "I have given Foley Cathartic Tablets a thorough trial and I can honestly recommend them as a mild but sure laxative. They work without griping." Give stout persons a free, light feeling. —Jones Drug Co.

RIGHT SPRAYING

Right Materials, Times and Methods Told by Specialist To give Oregon orchardists in brief form successful methods of combating pests and diseases with the right materials at the right time and used in the right way, four spraying bulletins have just been issued by the Oregon Agricultural college extension service. Since it is already time to apply the first of the sprays recommended, growers are notified that they may secure any or all of these bulletins immediately. The series is as follows: Spraying apples and pears, No. 193; spraying peaches, No. 194; spraying cherries, No. 195; and spraying plums, No. 196. "Spraying to kill the pest or parasite by hitting it with the proper solution when it is unprotected, or to coat the susceptible parts of the tree or fruit with a killing substance so that fungicide or pest can make its attack at no point not suitably protected with a poisonous material," says the apple and pear bulletin. That is what each number of the series tells how to do for the particular kind of tree for which it was written.

The spray tables are new and different from any heretofore published on spraying, so far as known. They yield more information in clearer form and less space than any other. They show what to spray for, what with, at what time, and how to apply the spray. They likewise show at a glance how to dilute for required strengths and how to combine for two or more troubles. Illustrations show stage of bud, leaf and fruit development at which applications are made. Since spraying is often the difference between a profitable and an unprofitable crop, these little columns may mean a great deal to growers.

RUINED CASTLES

Mrs. Dozier Says Landed Husband Was Cruel and Moneyless Pretty pictures of wealth and plenty were painted by R. A. Dozier to his fiancée, Rosina Wallace, before the wedding of that couple in Portland on February 24, 1917, according to the divorce complaint filed in Judge Campbell's court on Monday by Mrs. Rosina Dozier. Three weeks later Mrs. Dozier says she was forced to leave the home provided for her because of the cruelty of her husband.

In the meantime her castles in Spain were but a heap of ruins about her head. She found that the property which her husband had boasted of owning in several states was but the fruit of his imagination. That he was without funds to provide decently for her is a statement in her complaint. After the wedding, Mrs. Dozier says, her husband took her to "that which he called home and installed her in an old tumble-down shack which was wholly unsuitable for habitation, in which the only stove provided was a broken one, unfit for use, and the only cooking utensils provided were one frying pan and some old cans."

Dozier was a lazy mortal, his wife charges, and frequently laid in bed covered with unfit and unclean bedding until a late hour in the morning to avoid the necessity of buying fuel. He provided meagerly for the household, it is charged. From this unpleasant career in matrimony Mrs. Dozier asks Judge Campbell to save her and to restore to her the name she had before she married Dozier, Rosina Wallace.

money circulate to every individual cell in the American body; we sit still on the stool of tradition, while our circulation settles down to starvation in the weak parts that are sat on, and congestion in the strong parts that are specially privileged to pile up the money-power.

If we keep on long enough squatting on the dunce seat while we affirm "All is well, America is rich," we'll bring on national apoplexy. Then we'll go the way of China—partitioned to the nations that don't sit still.

But we are waking up to exercise all our parts by governmental function. The Germans started it; they are forcing their body-kultur upon us. We are accepting it in self-defense. When we get it well started the war will end in a United States of All the Nations, with money-power circulating to every part and "ceiling."

What is true of America is true of the whole world. The human race is one and there must be free circulation of economic power to all nations, or we'll die of world-apoplexy.—Nautilus.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Communication Indicates Something is Wrong but We Don't Know What

The Courier is "up a tree." At least 13 times we have read the following communication from Mrs. Viola Burr of Clackamas and to say that we don't know "where we are at" it putting it mildly. Our kidneys have always been strong and the only pain we ever had in our back was from hard work rather than kidney trouble. Last week we published Governor Withycombe's patriotic proclamation. Could that have inspired Mrs. Burr in this way? Governor Withycombe does not want war any more than the Courier does. But the governor is with us in wanting peace if we have to fight for it. We didn't know he had "war" in his mind and heretofore hadn't been certain he had a mind at all.

But we cannot comment upon this letter, because, honestly, we don't know any crazy people trying to get any individual's home or property. Mrs. Burr's exact words are: "To whom it may concern: In Oregon City Courier 3-22, Governor Withycombe has set his hand and caused the seal of Oregon affixed 3-21-17. Now if Governor Withycombe will get this war out of his brain he will be in a better condition to see the needs of the people. United States does not want war. Oregon especially ought not to be troubled at all. The most danger our country is in is from crazy people injuring private individuals to get their homes and property—and if you people get a dose of kidney cure you will have a better understanding of the true situation. Very respectfully yours, MRS. VIOLA BURR."

Wire-Tired Trucks Powerful wide-tired trucks are now being used in logging regions in Oregon and Washington, which virtually make their own roads as they go. One type of these cars is described in the April Popular Mechanics magazine. It has front tires 10 inches wide and back tires 20 inches wide. An experienced driver carefully selects his course as he goes over a route for the first time and the weight of his machine makes a road as it moves along. A few trips over the same line of travel serve to make a hard, smooth surface which will withstand considerable bad weather. Four-wheeled trailers are often used with these trucks.

Husband Was Cruel Charges of cruelty are the basis of the divorce complaint filed here Saturday against V. Horlocher by Iva Horlocher. They were married at Portland on March 12, 1912.

Wants Others to Know Remedy That Helped Him

MR. CHAS. FROELICH

Oregon City, Portland, Canby and Hubbard at the Huntley Bros. Co.'s drug store; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitoila is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant and disintegrates the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, discharging the accumulated waste to the sufferer's intense relief. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alternative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, rundown system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer from stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

Can't Understand How He Was Cured so Quickly After Suffering Nineteen Years

For nineteen years, Mr. Chas. Froelich, R. F. D., No. 2, Gorham, Kansas, suffered from kidney and stomach trouble. He tried all the doctors for miles around but got no relief, and had about given up, when Mrs. Froelich read in the Kansas City Post about Fruitoila and Traxo and what it had done for a man with stomach trouble. He says, "She sent for Fruitoila and Traxo and from the first I felt better. I only took two bottles and am well now and can eat and work like a young man. Fruitoila and Traxo did it and I'll do all I can to get others to try it."

Fruitoila and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus Laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in Oregon City, Portland, Canby and Hubbard at the Huntley Bros. Co.'s drug store; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitoila is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant and disintegrates the hardened particles that cause so much suffering, discharging the accumulated waste to the sufferer's intense relief.
