POULTRY AND EGGS

GOOSE RAISING PAYS

Points on Breeding, Incubation and Feed and Care of Goslings.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Geese can be raised in small numbers successfully and at a profit on farms where there is low, rough pasture land with a natural supply of water. Geese are generally quite free from disease and all insect pests, but occasionally are affected by the diseases common to poultry. Grass makes up the bulk of the feed for geese, and it is doubtful whether it pays to raise them unless Six breeds of geese have been admitted to the American standard of perfection—namely, Toulouse, Embden, Chinese, African, Wild or Canadian and Egyptian. In addition to the standard breeds, there is the so called Mongrel goose, which is a hybrid made by crossing one of these varieties, or the common goose, with wild geese. The illustration shows an African gander.

good grass range is available. A body of water where they can swim is considered essential during the breeding season and is a good feature during the rest of the year. The market for geese is not so general as for chickens. This should be considered in undertaking the raising of geese. The demand and the price paid for geese are usually good in sections where geese fattening is conducted on a large scale. Many geese are kept in the south for the production of feathers rather than for their flesh, but the demand for their feathers is not so good as it has been, making the business less profitable. Wherever possible, the geese on a farm should have free range. Many farmers in the south keep them to kill the weeds in the cotton fields.

Houses.
Except in winter or during stormy weather, when some protection should be provided, mature geese do not usually need a house. Some kind of shelter, such as a shed open on the south side, a poultry house or a barn, is usually provided by breeders in the north and is used by many in the south. Coops, barrels or some other dry shelter should be provided for young goslings. The geese houses should be kept clean and plenty of clean straw provided for the floor.

Selecting and Mating.
Geese, like other kinds of poultry, should be selected for size, prolificacy and vitality. They should be mated several months prior to the breeding season to obtain the best results. Therefore breeding stock should be bought in the fall. Goose matings are not changed from year to year unless the results are unsatisfactory. A gander may be mated with from one to four geese, but pair or trio matings usually give the best results. The wild gander usually mates with only one goose. When mated, geese are allowed to run in flocks. From four to twenty-five geese may be kept on an acre of land, and under most conditions ten is a fair average.

Incubation.
Geese are fed a ration to produce eggs during the latter part of the winter or so that the goslings will be hatched by the time there is good grass pasture. They are allowed to make nests on the floor of the house, or large boxes, barrels or shelters are provided for that purpose. The eggs should be collected daily and kept in a cool place where the contents will not evaporate too freely. If kept for some time they may be stored in loose bran. The first eggs are usually set under hens, while the last ones which the geese lays may be hatched either under hens or under the goose if she is broody. If the eggs are not removed from the nest in which the goose is laying she will usually stop laying sooner than if they are taken away. Some breeders prefer to raise all the goslings under hens, as geese sometimes become difficult to manage when allowed to hatch and rear their young. Hens used for hatching goose eggs must be dusted with insect powder and have good attention, as in the case of geese the period of incubation is longer than in that of fowls. Goose eggs may be hatched in incubators and the goslings successfully raised in brooders, although this is not a common practice.

Much Extra Work in March
It's between seasons now, when few persons perspire as much as health demands. The result is double work for the kidneys, for the kidneys must throw out waste matter from the system that is eliminated through the pores when persons perspire. Overworked, weak or disordered kidneys need help now. B. H. Stone, Reading, Pa., writes: "Whenever I need a kidney remedy I rely on Foley Kidney Pills. They have been worth their weight in gold to me."—Jones Drug Co.

TO CELEBRATE FOURTH

Millmen Will Stage Big Time at Chautauqua Park

A Fourth of July celebration is practically assured for Oregon City this year as the result of the meeting of committees at the Commercial club Thursday night, representing the mill employes of the city. According to the outline of plans for the event, as made Thursday, the celebration will be held at Chautauqua park at Gladstone and will be a public affair, although competition for prizes will be limited to mill employes and their families.

The three mills are represented on the committee which will have arrangements for the event in hand. The committee members are M. D. Edwards, chairman, Fred Metzner, H. F. Tschirgi, Julius Reams, Blake Bowland, H. Henningsen, E. Chapman, J. Bealieu and B. L. Harvey. The Hawley Pulp & Paper Co., the Crown-Willamette Paper Co. and the Oregon City Manufacturing Co. will assist their employes in making the affair a success. Programs of music and athletic events, as well as dancing, will be provided.

FORESTS OF AUSTRALIA.

They Are Unlike Those to Be Seen in Any Other Country.

One readily understands why the Australian loves his trees. The groves of giant eucalyptus form pictures never forgotten, and the scent of the wattle brings a homesick feeling like the smell of sage to the westerner.

The flora is not only beautiful, it is unique, and has no counterpart in other lands. Of the 10,000 species of plants most of them are purely Australian and are unknown even in New Zealand. The general impression one gets of Australian forests is their total unlikeness to anything seen elsewhere. The great forests of timber trees are not damp and shaded and all of one species, but are well lighted and filled with other forests of shorter trees. In places the woods consist of large widely spaced trees surrounded only by bunch grass, and even in areas where water is not to be found on the surface for hundreds of square miles true forests of low trees are present.

Forms which may be recognized as tulip, lily, honeysuckle and fern take on a surprising aspect. They are not garden flowers, but trees, and the landscape of which they form a part reminds one of the hypothetical representations in books of science of a landscape of mesozoic times, a period antedating now by millions of years.

The trees are indeed those of a bygone age. In America and Europe shadowy forms of fossil leaves of strange plants are gathered from the rock and studied with interest; in Australia many of these ancient trees are living. The impression that one is looking at a landscape which has forever disappeared from other parts of the world is so vivid that the elms and maples and oaks in some of the city streets strike a jarring note. The transition from Jurassic to modern times is painfully abrupt.—National Geographic Magazine.

A FINANCIAL QUANDARY.

Uncle Joe Cannon's First Tussle With Domestic Economy.

Representative Cooper of Ohio invited Uncle Joe Cannon to go to his home town, Youngstown, and make a speech. Uncle Joe said he couldn't go, he wasn't in speaking trim, but that he had rather go to Youngstown than anywhere he knew. And he said it Uncle Joe's eyes got sorter dreamy, and he surprised the congressman by wandering off into the following story: "Cooper, I got my wife out of Youngstown. Seems like yesterday when we stepped before that Justice of the peace and were married. I was just starting out to practice law in Illinois, and besides our railroad fare back home I just had $100 in the world. I handed that $100 to my little new wife and told her to go to the nearest store and buy what we actually needed while I stepped around to the courthouse.

"In about an hour when I went to join her I saw her coming to meet me much perturbed. She had spent $8 over the $100 at the store and had come for me to straighten things out. Right then and there I was up against my first big responsibility. I wanted my wife to have those goods that she had selected, but I couldn't have produced another dollar to have saved my life. So I went in the store and told the young clerk who had waited on her just how it was. And he believed in me and shipped us the goods.

"Do you know who that young clerk was, Cooper? It was Marshall Field. And Uncle Joe walked off, with a mist in his eyes.—Washington Herald.

Grass as It Grows.

It may be a matter of surprise that tender young grass can ever force its way up through hard ground. The principle is the same as that of opening a tin of condensed milk. The sharp point of the tin opener is first inserted in the tin and when an entrance has been forced the blade can follow. So it is with the grass. Each blade has a fine point, which, by the mysterious power of growing life, forces its way between the particles of soil, however tightly they may be packed together, and thus a passage is made for the blade to follow.

No Midnight Walks for Modern Father

HERE'S another electrical convenience, and one that mothers and fathers are sure to appreciate. It is baby's milk warmer, operated by electricity.

But why should fathers appreciate this? Well, fathers don't have to get up in the wee, small hours—out of a comfy bed—and trot way down stairs, light the stove and heat baby's midnight lunch. No, indeed.

Mother merely turns a switch—don't even have to get out of bed—if the milk warmer is placed on a table near by. In a jiffy, or to be accurate, about a minute and a half, the milk is heated and ready to give baby.

Attractive in design, being finished in nickel, and supplied with several feet of cord, these heaters are especially popular among women folks. Not only may they be used to warm baby's milk, but also to boil eggs on the dining room table or, in an emergency, make tea or coffee.

They are very inexpensive to operate, may be used in any room in the house. They come in two sizes, pint and quart capacity. An ebony handle, by which the device may be lifted when hot, is provided. They are also easily washed.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Oregon City Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

This Oregon City citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

F. H. Busch, 11 Eleventh St., Oregon City, says: "I have suffered from an acute attack of kidney and bladder trouble and got no relief until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They stopped the trouble after I had taken two boxes and I have had no return of it since." (Statement given March, 1910.)

On April 17, 1916, Mr. Busch added: "I am permanently cured of my former troubles and Doan's Kidney Pills get the credit." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Busch has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

MISS DOAN SPEAKS

Woman's Club Hears Letter of Thanks from President Wilson

The Oregon City Woman's club last Thursday afternoon heard read a letter from the White house, thanking the club for its expression of faith in President Wilson. The meeting at the Commercial club was attended by 50 women, and Mrs. E. W. Scott was hostess for the day. Miss Doan, former matron of the state training school for girls, told the club women of the work at the school. Refreshments were served by a committee including Mrs. R. J. Goodfellow, Mrs. H. P. Brightbill and Mrs. Anderson.
