

POULTRY HOUSE SITE.

High Ground Best Location For All Seasons of the Year.

High ground is the best location for the poultry house, according to T. S. Townsley, assistant in poultry husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Dryness is a most important factor to be considered in the selection of a site for the poultry house. Dampness is one of the greatest enemies of poultry. The soil on which the house is built should have good drainage. This may be obtained by selecting high ground or soil that is sandy or of light gravel.

A high location is desirable in winter also because of the air drainage. The cold air flows into low places and causes frozen combs and toes in poultry wintering there. A southern slope is preferable because it is warmest in winter and dries quickly after a rain. A northern exposure should be avoided, for it is cold in winter and warms up late in the spring.

IMPORTANT TO SPRAY ORCHARDS IN WINTER

To use a cheap grade of spraying material is poor economy, writes F. A. Lawton in the Orange Judd Farmer. For several years I have used lime sulphur with more or less success. Last year I decided to try the soluble sulphur compound and found it is much better to handle and the results from spraying were improved. Orchards that had not responded readily to former treatment were in much better shape after a winter spraying with soluble sulphur compound.

The winter spray for fungus should be put on before the buds start in the spring. This is the most important spraying of all, for if an orchard is badly infected with fungus no amount of summer spraying will give good fruit, while an orchard given a thorough treatment of winter spray will give a crop of fruit in fair condition without any other treatment. But if you wish to be sure of getting first class apples the winter spray should be followed by another later on when the blossoms begin to fall, and perhaps more spraying later in the season might be desirable.

Plums and peaches need several summer sprays to keep down the rot. Some form of arsenate of lead should be used with the spray at the time the blossoms begin to fall, as this will largely do away with wormy fruit. I have raised several hundred bushels of cherries during the last few years, and by giving them a thorough spraying with lime sulphur and arsenate of lead just as the blossoms fall, have never been troubled with wormy cherries, only on the tops of high trees where the spray did not reach. Cherries should have at least three sprayings, the first when the blossoms fall, the second two weeks later and the third after the fruit is gathered.

To get the right results an orchard should be thoroughly trimmed, all sprouts and dead leaves cut out, and enough branches taken out to give the sunlight and air free access to the center of the tree. For fruit, to be good, must have sunlight and air.

Spray For Cabbage Pest.

I have been making a specialty of onions and cabbages but have been much troubled with green worms, writes a correspondent of the American Agriculturist. I have tried different formulas but have never found one that I have never seen in print. It is doing me more service than any I have tried. Here it is: Take a half pint crude or raw petroleum oil and add a half teaspoonful of potash. Shake these well together. To this add ten gallons of water and a little paris green or arsenate of lead. It will kill the worms and will stick to the leaves until the cabbage grows. I apply this preparation with a compressed air sprayer, throwing it well into the loose heads and over the tender leaves. The preparation mixes smoothly and evenly and will not injure the foliage in any way. It must be thoroughly mixed to be effective.

Prune the Orchard.

Fruit growers do not need to wait until spring to prune their orchards, says W. G. Brierley of the division of horticulture, Minnesota Agricultural college. Results at University farm show little or no difference in the growth and maturity of the wood where pruning has been done any time between November and May.

If the usual care is taken to make the cuts close to the main trunk or branches no stubs will be left to die and decay, though the covering of wounds with a white lead and oil paint or with common grafting wax warned to the consistency of cold molasses will give added protection. Moderate pruning is better than heavy cutting.

Bees For Farmers.

Have you a little beehive in your yard? If you haven't you are helping to lose the $14,000,000 worth of honey products that are available in Minnesota every year and is not collected because there are not enough bees to store it. Nearly $15,000,000 worth of honey could be produced every year in the state. Only $500,000 worth is collected. The honey could be collected at a minor cost by keeping as many hives of bees in every yard as can be fed from the honey products produced around.—Professor F. Jager, Minnesota Agricultural College.

STAFFORD

Grain and grass which began to look sick after the last cold spell is coming out green and fresh after these days of quiet rainfall, last Friday being the worst of the season.

Mrs. Harrison of the Mountain road visited with Mrs. Gage last week. I. Q. Gage and wife motored from their home in St. Helens on Saturday, stopping with Mrs. Gage till Sunday afternoon. He writes that they had a puncture at Oswego which detained them 40 minutes, but drove home in three hours, finding roads better than on the previous day.

Mrs. Henry Peters has been taken to the hospital and Mrs. Ed Sharp is caring for the 18-month-old baby. Mrs. Oldham and family spent the day at Mrs. Nissbaum's Sunday.

Mrs. Clara Peters has been quite sick again. Eggs have come down so housewives can afford to look for broody hens.

Mr. Perry, on the road to Willamette, has two thousand eggs in his incubators, and has already sold that many chickens at ten cents apiece, but feed is so high now that it takes off a good deal of the profits.

Mrs. Gage would keep a good horse for what she would want to drive and use it, with a view to buying it if satisfactory.

A band of gypsies passed through Stafford Sunday going west with eight span of horses, chickens, children and old women, innumerable children going barefooted.

Mr. Cole preached Sunday evening at the chapel to quite a full house.

HERE ENTERS SADIE

Answer in $25,000 Slander Suit Filed by M. J. Kerkes

Sh-h-h-h! "My friend Sadie" spilled the alleged beans.

And when Sadie tipped over the alleged kettle the wrangle started. Thus far it has brought Walter Givens, Estacada merchant, into the Clackamas county circuit court with a damage suit against M. J. Kerkes, now of Portland, in which Givens asks $25,000 for alleged slanderous remarks made by Kerkes and involving the private life of Givens.

In his complaint filed some time ago, Givens charges that Kerkes told certain Estacada people that Givens was conducting himself in an immoral manner. Kerkes on Tuesday filed an answer to the complaint in which he set up mitigating circumstances. He says that he met Givens in Portland last May and was introduced to a woman Givens was accompanying. Givens is alleged to have introduced the woman to Kerkes as "my friend Sadie," and to have remarked, by way of completing the how-do-you-do, "she's a good fellow." Kerkes says the gaudy dress of the woman, her age and general appearance led him to the conclusion that she was not the proper companion for Givens, who is an ordained minister in the Christian church in addition to being one of Estacada's foremost merchants.

"My friend Sadie" and the man of the cloth from Estacada visited the Portland stock yards, a theatre and a cafe, Kerkes charges. It does not appear from the complaint the Kerkes knew personally that Givens and "my friend Sadie" were occupying quarters at a Portland hotel—which is one of the things Kerkes is charged with saying about Givens in the latter's complaint.

The interesting feature of the affair is that Kerkes has retained Dimick & Dimick as his counsel. E. W. Bartlett of Estacada will appear for Givens. Walter A. Dimick opposed both Bartlett and Givens in the Cascade county division fight in the last session of the legislature and won out over them. What may happen when the three tangle again is a question.

Send Seeds and Diplomas

Garden seeds and standardization diplomas are occupying much of the attention of County School Superintendent J. E. Calavan this week. Schools which have satisfied the standardization requirements for the year are being given diplomas from the state superintendent's office. There are 60 schools among those to receive the honors. Several hundred packages of vegetable seeds received from Senator Harry Lane are being distributed in the schools of the county and especially in those engaged in school garden work.

Obituaries

Henry W. Boerner

Henry William Boerner, aged 73 years, died at the home of his son, Charles C. Boerner, at Bolton yesterday. Mr. Boerner was a native of Germany and funeral services will be conducted from the German Zion church on Friday afternoon. The body will be buried at Mountain View. The widow, two sons, Charles C. and William E. Boerner, and one daughter, Mrs. Lena Cramer, of The Dalles survive. There are also 12 grandchildren.

Efton Farmer

Funeral services for Efton Farmer, who died at his West Linn home on Monday evening, were held from the Holman parlors in this city Wednesday afternoon. Rev. A. J. Ware officiated and interment was in Mountain View cemetery. Mr. Farmer was a native of Missouri, 27 years old. He leaves a wife and two children, in addition to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Farmer, and brothers and sisters.

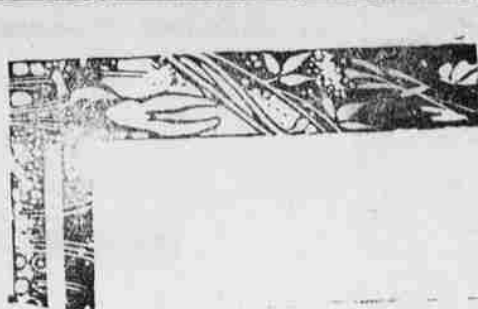

Dr. DeBusk Speaks

"Retardation" was the subject of the address by Dr. B. W. DeBusk, of the state university, at the educational meeting at Wilsonville on Saturday under the direction of J. E. Calavan, county school superintendent. A large number of patrons and 12 teachers, in addition to a horde of youngsters, attended the meeting.

Lien Foreclosure

Herman Anthony yesterday filed application to foreclose tax liens against property held by Peter H. Sager and Minnie Anthony, as administrators of estates. The liens are listed on the 1911 tax roll and cover property in the vicinity of New Era.

NEW M. W. A. CAMP

Mulino Lodgemen Start Out With Determination to Do Things

The institution of a new camp of the lodge of Modern Woodmen of America at Mulino recently was the signal for an awakening in lodge circles there, it is said. The new chapter has leased Berdine's hall for its meetings and has enlisted some of the leading people of the community under the M. W. A. shield.

The lodge was instituted by District Deputy Lageson of Oregon City. He was assisted in his work by District Deputies Jester and Escort and Born of Portland's Rose City camp. Thirty members were installed the first night and a membership campaign that is already well under way is expected to bring in many more. District Deputy Lageson tells of a movement to establish a chapter of the lodge at Beaver Creek.

Stallard to Speak

"Stallard of Oklahoma." That is H. H. Stallard, one of the socialists who ran a good race for congress at the last election. He will speak at Knapp's hall on Saturday evening, April 7, and will be the feature of a program including entertainment and refreshment. Among his subjects is "How Would Nehemiah Right the Economic Evils of Our Present Industrial System?" Mr. Stallard will discuss this and other subjects.

Oil Stove Causes Fire

When Mrs. A. Nelson yesterday attempted to smother the flames from an oil stove by throwing a quilt over the fire she got into trouble that resulted in a call for the fire department. Before the apparatus was hauled out, however, a neighbor had extinguished the fire with a wall chemical. The only damage done was to Mrs. Nelson's nerves and her quilt.

John Telford Leaves

John Telford, of Canemah, a pitcher for the Tacoma baseball team in the Northwest league, left for the Tacoma training camp on Monday morning. Telford has been spending the winter on his father's farm at Canemah, and has picked up considerable excess weight that he must lose before the baseball season starts. The young man weighs about 180 pounds.

Paper Napkins For Dinner.

Custom has much to do with what is called "good form." I dined recently at the home of a very wealthy man, worth many millions not made in "war babies", where the best form always rules. The napkins were of Japanese paper. They were very large and fine, but the innovation surprised me until on subsequent inquiry at one of the best Manhattan shops I learned that use of the paper napkin is quite proper and likely to become universal—only for dinner.—Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Still Interfering.

George Bailey of the Houston Post notes that a New York redhead is suing a druggist for $5,000 damages because of peroxide he sold her ruined "her crown of glory," and makes this comment:

"It is bad enough when tawny maned girls use peroxide. For a redhead to vandalize her topknot in any such way as that ought to be against the law, and no well regulated widow would think of doing so."

He Is Risen!

Go to Church on Easter

It is the solemn day of the Lord's resurrection. "Now is Christ risen from the dead." Make one in the great congregations which throughout Christendom acclaim the rising of Christ and gain in spiritual richness by the acknowledgment of His Lordship. Bow the head and bend the knee in gratitude to God for the passing of winter's perils and in joyful anticipation of spring and summer.

It is a time for prayer. Join the worshippers.
