SEYMOUR DIRECTS CLUB ACTIVITIES

SEVEN MEETINGS IN THREE DAYS ATTENDED BY PUPILS OF 24 SCHOOLS

WILL GREATLY BENEFIT FAIRS

State Leader Praises Spirit of Children and Work of the County Officers

Interest in school industrial club work in Clackamas county is booming as a result of the campaign which will be completed today by H. C. Seymour, state leader of boys' and girls' clubs, County School Superintendent Calavan and a corps of assistants. Since Tuesday Mr. Seymour and his aides have been more than busy conducting meetings throughout the county in the interest of industrial club activities, and the great amount of good accomplished by the strenuous hours this group put in can only be measured by the results that will be manifest at the county and state fairs this year and in the future.

On Tuesday meetings were held at Gladstone, Milwaukie and Beaver Creek. In this series the schools of Jennings Lodge, Jones' Mill, Clackamas, Parkplace, Oak Grove, Ardenwald, Harmony and Carus participated in addition to those in the districts where the meetings were held. On Wednesday the school houses at Willamette and Mt. Pleasant were the scenes of the meetings attended by industrial club members from Willamette, Canemah, West Linn, Mt. Pleasant, Twilight and Clairmont. This morning a meeting was held at Macksburg and was attended by pupils of that district in addition to those of Needy, Dryland and Lone Elder. This afternoon a joint meeting is being held at Barlow which is attended by Barlow, Canby and Mark's Prairie pupils.

At each meeting the keen interest of the majority of pupils has been evidenced in the club projects. Mr. Seymour points proudly to Willamette, Mt. Pleasant, Beaver Creek, Twilight, Milwaukie, Oak Grove and Jennings Lodge as the homes of some of the most excellent clubs and club workers that he has seen on his travels about the state. The children in each of the districts which sent delegations to the several meetings, as well as the parents, are alive to the value of the project work and show their interest in the work by their attendance and questioning at the meetings that have been held.

In addition to Mr. Seymour, the state leader, and County School Superintendent Calavan, the meetings have been addressed by Miss Helen Cowgill of the extension department, O. A. C.; N. C. Maris, field worker for the state department of education and Judge Grant B. Dimick, president of the Clackamas county fair association. The principal topics for discussion have been, of course, club work and county and state fairs, but these subjects proved highly interesting in the manner in which they were presented.

There are fourteen distinct club projects under way among the pupils of Clackamas county schools, although the principal interest among the young club members seems to center in the corn, potato, gardening, sewing, canning and baking projects, according to findings of Mr. Seymour. In this county there are 400 girls engaged in the sewing club projects; 300 boys and girls in the gardening projects and 60 in the pig clubs. This, says Mr. Seymour, is considerably above the average for the state of Oregon. And considering the manifold attractions for youngsters elsewhere at this time of year the leader considers the attendance at the series of meetings just held to be remarkable. That the parents should take such an active interest in the work of the children is another source of pleasure to the officials.

"The project workers," said Mr. Seymour this morning, "show an excellent spirit in all their work. They seem to have a definite purpose, an end in view, so to speak, and are prepared to work for every prize that is available for them at the state and county fairs. I find that Superintendent Calavan has been visiting the schools about the county at the evening meetings, in addition to his regular visits, and has created, in this way, a great deal of enthusiasm. He is a sincere worker in the interest of industrial clubs in the schools of his county and should certainly receive the praise of the people, especially the parents, of the county. The present plans in the minds of most of the boys and girls indicate a most successful and unusually valuable display of project products at both the county and state fairs.

"The great difference between the industrial club plan of effort and the old-fashioned juvenile contests is that the child goes into the work with a definite purpose. He works throughout the year and gets credit for the work he or she accomplishes. The

SQUABBLE UNCOVERS OFFICIAL CHARITY

PALMGREN SISTERS AIR FAMILY STRIFE IN SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Family strife engendered hate in the hearts of two sisters, caused one of them to faint on Main street and brought to light on Saturday the beautiful spirit of charity that rests in the breasts of the law's worthy exponents in the Clackamas county court house.

Frieda E. Palmgren, sister of Mrs. Marie Nodturf, whose home is beyond Willamette, came to this state from the southeast recently at the solicitation of her sister, who wired expense money for the trip. Arriving here Mrs. Palmgren was confronted with a request for the payment of the money advanced. Trouble started in the home that harbored the sisters, and on Saturday, the younger, Mrs. Palmgren, prepared to leave the house.

To the departure Mrs. Nodturf objected and to show her objection held the younger woman's trunk and personal belongings. This brought Mrs. Palmgren to the sheriff's office where, with the assistance of the entire force of county legal talent, including the district attorney, justice of the peace, sheriff and deputies, a replevin action was started to recover the things. The officers went to the Nodturf home on Saturday afternoon and took possession of the trunk after a wordy tilt with the mistress of the house, who is said to have mutilated much of her own property in her rage. Returning, Mrs. Palmgren fell in a faint in front of the court house.

It was then that others learned of the sweet charity that had its home in the stern hearts of the law's exponents. Mrs. Palmgren had had no money to file papers in the replevin action. District Attorney Hedges, John Seivers, Sheriff Wilson and Deputy Hackett "chipped in" to raise the fund and the lady was on her way rejoicing.

But the trouble started Monday when Mrs. Nodturf appeared before the sheriff with a score of telegrams and letters from her sister dated from large southeastern cities where she had sojourned with a "Spanish gentleman," prior to her departure for Oregon. The telegrams were mostly requests for funds, and were all marked "collect." Mrs. Nodturf submitted them to the official as a proof to him that she had not done wrong in holding her sister's personal possessions. Mrs. Palmgren's to the sheriff's office for delivery to the banished sister and her young son, who are lodged with friends near the city.

Fainting was one of Mrs. Palmgren's chief fortes, said her sister. It has served on many occasions to bring sympathy and aid when she was in need. "She dolls up in silks," said the older sister, "and then faints at a convenient time and place." Dr. Frank Mount attributed the last spell to over-excitement.

COYOTE MASSACRE

Beaver Creek Farmers Take Up Arms Against Coyote Pest

A coyote massacre has been ordered as the result of the organization at Beaver Creek this week of a Coyote club, with a purpose all its own. Coyotes have been troubling the farmer so much of late that drastic steps were necessary. As a result a number of farmers gathered to form the extermination club, elected W. F. Harris president and J. Hoff secretary, and outlined a plan of action.

state agricultural college, the federal department of agriculture and the state educational department cooperate with the children to bring about the greatest measure of success in the work and are constantly behind the little folks in any effort they make. The college especially is sending out literature at all times to the club members. This literature, in addition to the personal attention that is given to each case, starts with the preparation of the ground, in the case of the gardening projects, and takes the workers through the various stages of crop production by helping in seed selection, planting, cultivating throughout the season and the final selection of seed and crop specimen for exhibition purposes. This, as is evident, improves the quality and interest of the school displays at the fairs and is a wonderful aid in the general work of the pupil.

"Just before harvest time the college will send full instructions as to the preparation of the exhibits which will be placed at the fairs and I do not hesitate to say, after observing the interested work in all projects in this county, that the Clackamas county fair will be the most successful in history from the view point of the school participation. This will have a telling effect at the state fair also, and Clackamas should be well to the front among the exhibitors in the school department."

Mr. Seymour was strong in his praise of all who are concerned with the advancing of industrial club projects and activities in this county. He especially commended Superintendent Calavan for his interested effort.

CHURCH FAILING SAYS BEAUCHAMP

CHAUTAUQUA LECTURER SCORES SEVENTH DAY CHRISTIANITY

CRIMINAL WAVE DISCUSSED

Humorist Deals With Serious Problem. Says Lodge Is Doing Work of Churches

Seven-day Christians, rather than seventh-day Christians was the substance of an unusual and highly interesting theme discussed by Lou Beauchamp at the Gladstone chautauqua on Saturday evening, when a great audience assembled to greet the witty and popular lecturer.

Mr. Beauchamp diverted from his humorous, yet weighty, address, entitled "Take the Sunny Side," to discuss the trend of present day religious and Christian tendencies. He scored the church with stern words and pointed to its shortcomings in the social scheme of the community and the nation, and called attention to the reasons for these shortcomings. A large measure of credit was given to the fraternal organizations that have appeared throughout the nation and which increase in membership and importance as the sphere of the church constantly becomes smaller. Mr. Beauchamp said that the fraternal society was filling the place of the church in the community and that unless Christians awakened to their position the church would be replaced to a great extent by the lodge.

"If more ministers would preach sermons upon present day subjects rather than upon the threadbare, antiquated theological topics that the church-goer is usually forced to listen to, more men would be active Christians and the church would not be utterly failing in its mission as it is today," said the speaker.

"There are two reasons for this criminal failure of the church to do the things that Christ commanded his followers to do, and the things that are now done by other agencies than the church. First, the church boards pay their ministers less than the average unskilled laborer receives, and less than a man, wife and one child can respectably live on; second, the fault lies with the people in the congregation, who will energetically demand the police to close gambling dens and public dance halls, and who will return home to play bridge for a prize or to enjoy themselves at a private dance hall. The church members and avowed Christians are playing cards while they scorn others for the same thing and while the fraternal orders are doing the Church's work. That is why men keep their religion as well as their property in their wives' names."

"When the minister is under-paid and under-fed; when the minister must continually worry about the social demands of his hypocritical congregation without starving himself and his family, he cannot be expected to find time to get the information and ideas he must have in order to do justice to his work in the pulpit.

"When the membership of all the churches in the United States increases only 2 per cent. annually—far less than the increase in the population during the same time—something is decidedly wrong. What would you business men think of your business if it increased only 2 per cent. in a year's time?"

"The United States not only leads the world in progress, but it leads the world in crime. In proportion to population the number of murders in the United States was 16 times as great as in England during 1908, 13 times as great as in France and 4 times as great as in Spain. There are approximately 136 murders to every 1,000,000 of the population of the United States, and only about one in every 67 murders pays the penalty for crime with his life or with life imprisonment. Seventy per cent. of arrests now made in the United States are of boys and girls under 19 years of age, and the increase of juvenile crime shows no sign of being checked."

"I firmly believe that when we ceased to allow the Bible to be taught to the young people while they are in school, we unleashed this flood of juvenile criminality."

The failure of up-to-date religion and the undeniable facts in connection with the criminal page of the biography of these United States were so capably presented by Mr. Beauchamp that they served to awaken many a slumbering conscience in the large audience. The tinge of guilty conscience spread to the face of more than one religious person in the auditorium. Perhaps this is why, when the speaker returned to the humorous side of his lecture, "Take the Sunny Side," his wit was so enthusiastically applauded. Perhaps the smiles and the hearty laughs still cover up the unquestioned truth of Mr. Beauchamp's statements.

COUNCIL WILL TALK JITNEY FRANCHISE

MERCHANTS OBJECT TO SERVICE THROUGH OSWEGO FROM PORTLAND

A new angle appeared to the jitney franchise business which is to be taken up for final disposition at the meeting of the city council to be held tonight. An application will be made by Harry M. Shaw of Eugene, for a franchise to run a jitney service between Oregon City and Oswego and from Main street in this city to Mountain View. It is understood that Mr. Shaw's petition provides for a regular schedule of daily runs between these points which are not now served by any means of transportation.

It is unquestionable that the people of Oswego should have a means of getting to and from the county seat without the necessity of the round-about trip through Portland and down the east side. It is also admitted that the Mountain View district is entitled to any service that it can get. And in granting any franchise that will aid the three communities mutually the council is but doing its duty to the public.

However, the duty of the council in such a case as this does not extend beyond Oswego. To allow a jitney between Portland and Oregon City, even though it does also serve Mountain View, would be a criminal injustice to the Portland Railway, Light & Power company. This is certainly one case where the cry of "corporation" and "monopoly" does not hold out in the minds of public spirited persons.

If Mr. Shaw will conduct the proper sort of a business between Oswego and the county seat and between Main street and Mountain View he is entitled to any favors the council can bestow upon him. To extend a service beyond Oswego should not be considered. At any rate the Mountain View service should be considered and a franchise granted to anyone who can successfully operate cars upon the hill.

In their insistent demands for service the residents of Oswego have been accused of selfish motives. It is said that they are not so anxious to get service into Oregon City as they are to Portland, but bring the county seat into the matter because cars would not run alone between Portland and Oswego. Several attempts to secure a franchise for the entire district have failed and if the council does its duty all other requests for such franchise will fail.

There is not a single businessman in this city who favors a jitney service that will be in direct and fatal opposition to the railway company, one of the heaviest taxpayers in the county. The jitney saps the life blood of legitimate transportation enterprises and should be tolerated only where there is not other suitable means of travel. By no means should competition with the P. R. L. & P. Co., be permitted by the council.

At any cost the council should do all that it possibly can to create a jitney route between Main street and Mountain View and between Oswego and Oregon City, but no farther. Such a service is greatly needed; it would not be in competition with the city's heavy taxpayer and would be a boon to Mountain View residents. Otherwise, let the jitney regulation remain in its present admirable state.

STATE SHOULD HAVE LAND GRANT MONEY

COMMERCIAL BODIES ASKED TO AID IN SECURING EQUITABLE DIVISION

To secure for the state of Oregon her just share of the money derived from the sale of the Oregon-California land grant the Portland Chamber of Commerce and valley clubs are co-operating to further a gigantic campaign which will take many forms, including that of writing letters to the congressmen and senators from this state. Congressman N. J. Sinnott has introduced a bill which provides that 40 per cent. of the revenue assigned to the reclamation service shall be expended by that service for the reclamation of Oregon lands. This is known as house resolution 16597.

Monday, July 31, has been fixed as the day for mailing letters. The letters should be directed to any member of congress with whom any Oregonian is acquainted. If Oregonians do not know congressmen, it is probable that the residents of this state can reach members of the senate and house through getting in communication with influential people in the states where they originally resided.

To all Oregonians who have given the matter any thought, it is apparent that the members of congress from the eastern and southern states cast their votes on the Chamberlain-Ferris bill without giving the state of Oregon that consideration which is rightfully to be expected from legislators of the United States.

MILLIONS TO AID STATE ROAD WORK

NATIONAL FORESTS BENEFIT BY PASSAGE OF ACT TO HELP STATES

NATION PAYS HALF THE COST

Streets in Towns of 2500 or More Not to be Improved With Federal Appropriation

The sum of $85,000,000 of federal funds is made available for the construction of rural roads, by the passage of the federal-aid road bill which became a law on July 11, 1916. Of this sum, $75,000,000 is to be expended for the construction of rural post roads under cooperative arrangements with the highway departments of the various states, and $10,000,000 is to be expended for roads and trails within or partly within the national forests. The act limits the federal government's share in road work in co-operation with the states to 50 per cent. of the estimated cost of construction. Federal aid may be extended to the construction of any rural post road, excluding all streets or roads in towns having a population of 2,500 or more, except the portions of such streets or roads on which the houses are, on an average, more than 200 feet apart.

Five million dollars is made available for expenditure during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and thereafter the appropriation is increased at the rate of five millions a year until 1921, when the sum provided is twenty-five millions, making a total of seventy-five millions. In addition, an appropriation of $10,000,000 a year for 10 years—a total of $10,000,000—is made available for the development of roads and trails wholly or partly within the national forests.

The class of roads to be built and the method of construction are to be mutually agreed upon by the secretary of agriculture and the state highway departments.

The act provides that after making necessary deductions for administering its provisions—not to exceed 3 per cent. of the appropriation for any one fiscal year—the secretary of agriculture shall apportion the remainder of each year's appropriation in the following manner:

One-third in the ratio which the area of each state bears to the total area of all the states.

One-third in the ratio which the population of each state bears to the total population of all the states.

One-third in the ratio which the mileage of rural delivery route and star routes in each state bears to the total mileage of rural delivery routes and star routes in all the states.

The various states securing aid under the provisions of the act are charged with the making of needed repairs and the preservation of a reasonably smooth surface, considering the type of the road, but are not obliged to make extraordinary repairs or undertake reconstruction. If, after due notice, a state fails to maintain a federally aided road properly, the secretary is required to refuse further aid until the road has been properly repaired at state expense.

The objects sought through federal aid to roads in the national forests are thus explained by the secretary of agriculture in his annual report for 1915, in which he recommends such legislation as well as federal aid to rural post roads:

"The real agricultural problem within and near the forests is to make possible the successful occupancy and development of the lands that already have been opened to entry or actually patented. The mere private ownership of land does not insure successful use of it. In Oregon and Washington alone there are about 3,000,000 acres of logged-off land, much of it agricultural in character, now lying idle. In this condition speculative holding of the land for higher prices plays a large part. Another cause is the lack of transportation facilities. A settler may clear land and raise crops upon it, but he is helpless if he cannot market them. There are great areas of fertile land unused today on this account. In many sections near the national forests pioneer conditions still exist. The population is small, and the task of road building is beyond the means of the residents. There is little or no demand for timber, and the receipts from the forests which go to the community are small. The fact that the public property is not subject to taxation makes such communities feel, and very justly, that the forests are not contributing enough to local development."

Buys Coal Business

The coal department of the Oregon City Ice and Cold Storage company has been purchased by E. A. Hackett and will be combined with the wood and fuel business already established under the charge of Mr. Hackett. By the sale the ice company divests itself altogether from the sale of fuel and will devote itself strictly to the ice and cold storage business.

MRS. MYERS KILLED IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

MACHINE ROLLS OVER EMBANKMENT, KILLING ONE, INJURING THREE OTHERS

One death and one severe injury was the toll of an automobile accident on the new Oregon City-Parkplace hard surfaced road last Thursday evening when Mrs. W. H. Myers, 3001 Sixty-Second street, Portland, lost her life and Mrs. W. G. Kent, proprietress of a rooming house in Portland was painfully injured. The machine being driven by young Mrs. F. W. Orpin of Portland ran off the hard surface into soft earth and turned turtle over a small embankment, pinning five of the six occupants beneath it. Mrs. Kent is the mother of Mrs. Orpin, who owned and drove the machine.

Mrs. Myers, whose life had gone when aid arrived to remove the stays of the top of the machine from her, was strangled to death. She was thrown in such a way that her neck caught on the wire of a fence at the side of the road and the stays of the top rested on the back of her neck so that she could not move. Frantic efforts on the part of her companions to remove the car from its position were ineffective.

The occupants of the machine, in addition to Mrs. Myers, were the driver, Mrs. F. W. Orpin, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wells and little son of Oregon City and Mrs. W. G. Kent of Portland. The party was en route to the chautauqua at Gladstone from this city, where they had just finished a dinner party at a local eating place. Mrs. Orpin could not account for the accident beyond the fact that the machine could not be controlled in the soft earth at the side of the road. She admitted being an inexperienced driver and those who saw her soon after the accident beyond the fact that the machine could not be controlled in the soft earth at the side of the road. She admitted being an inexperienced driver and those who saw her soon after the accident beyond the fact that the machine could not be controlled in the soft earth at the side of the road.

The accident occurred during daylight hours just a few feet beyond the Southern Pacific tracks on the new road between Oregon City and Parkplace. The driver had just completed the descent of the rise beyond the track when, attempting to get her proper position in the road, the car went off the surface into the soft dirt and immediately turned over. Mr. Wells, who had his young son in his lap, hurled the youngster from the car into a clump of bushes as soon as he saw that an accident was inevitable. This saved the little fellow from injury and he was the only one of the party not badly bruised.

The following day a coroner's jury exonerated Mrs. Orpin from blame. In its report the jury said that Mrs. Myers' death was caused by "stragulation resulting from being under an accidentally overturned automobile driven by Mrs. F. W. Orpin and the jury believes no blame is attached to Mrs. Orpin or anyone." The jurymen were Maxwell Victor, G. E. Long, George Hall, W. N. Trudell, J. B. Bowland and Sam Jones.

Mrs. Kent, after several days under treatment at the Oregon City hospital, was removed to her home in Portland early this week.

RURAL CREDITS IS FORUM HOUR TOPIC

GOVERNOR AND DR. MACPHERSON SPEAK. MILL ROAD TAX ADVOCATED

Farm, farmer and farming were the themes of several highly interesting addresses at chautauqua yesterday morning when the forum hour was devoted to a program designed to instruct and entertain the agriculturist.

The session was presided over by C. E. Spence, master of the state grange, and Governor James Withycombe was the most prominent speaker. Others who addressed the large audience were Dr. Hector Macpherson of the Oregon Agricultural college and J. D. Brown, president of the Educational and Cooperative Union of America. President W. J. Kerr of the state college, listed for an address, was detained at Corvallis and could not carry out his part of the program.

Dr. Macpherson explained and discussed his hobby, "Rural Credits," in the cause of which he is one of the state's most ardent workers. Mr. Brown's address was along lines of agricultural improvement and development, in which the Educational and Cooperative Union is so actively engaged in many communities.

"Agriculture is the basic wealth of this nation and the greatest problem before the nation today is that of providing cheaper money for the farmer," said Governor Withycombe in the course of his interesting address. "I see the solution of the cheaper money question in the rural credits measure which is to go before the people at the November election. This measure is one of greater value to the farmer than any that has been presented in years and it deserves (Continued on Page 8)

ASSEMBLY CLOSES WITH FIRE WORKS

CHAUTAUQUA IS PROFITABLE. PROFIT WILL NOT BUILD NEW AUDITORIUM

1000 INHABIT TENT COLONY

Persons From All Walks in Life Help to Make Twenty-Third Session a Success

A literal blaze of glory brought to an auspicious close the twenty-third annual Willamette Valley chautauqua at Gladstone park last evening. The burst of glory in its literal sense was in the great fire works display that followed the regular evening program at which the Kaffir Boy's choir entertained a great throng with their unique music. Unique in that there is but one Kaffir boy's choir.

From all points of view the chautauqua this year was probably better than any ever held in the long and successful life of the important Clackamas county institution. Throughout the thirteen days of the delightful program there were 1000 persons camped in the park. This mass of people making up the Gladstone park tent city erected 235 tents, and in many cases beautified them with flowers and greens that the outing might be the more enjoyable. The canvas covered community was inhabited by people from all parts of this county and from many sections of the state. The campers came from as far east as Hood River and from as far south as Eugene. They were all serious minded folk, seeking the knowledge that is available to those who will devote themselves to the classes that are carried on each day by the most capable instructors that can be obtained.

The ticket sale, although it did not total much more than that of the previous year or so, was very good. Approximately 12,000 single admission tickets were sold and 700 season tickets were paid for. The final audit of the books of the chautauqua association will probably not show a great profit, but the directors feel satisfied in having reaped any profit as a result of the efforts for which the community praises them. The profit will not build the new auditorium, but that structure will be ready for the programs next year without a doubt.

The expenses incident to a successful chautauqua assembly are astounding. The primary outlay for such things as the program, the park and pre-season advertising represents a cash outlay of more than $5500. Then there are innumerable minor expenses that mount up into large figures when totalled.

The program this season was so splendidly blended as to hold exceptional interest for all classes of chautauqua patrons. There were series of classes attended by persons of all ages and their instruction ranged from Shakespeare to gymnastics. And to make the whole more welcome a liberal sprinkling of genuine entertainment was blended into the program each day with baseball games and the like. The platform held some of the nation's best talent in all lines. There were humorists and rich contralto voices; there were native Hawaiian musicians and first-rank politicians; there were popular lecturers and moving pictures, a range of instruction and entertainment that had not an equal in the northwest this season or in the past. And the promise is for an even better chautauqua next year.

People from all walks of life made this session of chautauqua successful. Their interested and unselfish co-operation with the management did much to encourage that loyal group of workers and enabled them to put the spirit of success into their work in behalf of the community. The churches played an important part in the assembly. Several denominations established camps at the park and maintained headquarters for the members of the respective congregations. In fact everything seemed to conspire to make the thirteen-day period one of exceptional merit, even though old Sol did desert the cause for a time. The history of the twenty-third annual chautauqua at Gladstone park is a history merited by facts.

Gladstone park is pointed to by chautauqua workers everywhere as the home of the west's greatest chautauqua and with the erection of a fine new auditorium next year this designation will be more appropriate than ever.

The Wrong Man

The distinction of writing a letter which appeared in the last issue of the Courier over the initials "J. B. C." has been given to J. B. Carter of this city by certain of his friends. Mr. Carter positively had no connection with the letter in question. Mr. Carter had no knowledge of the communication before it appeared in the paper. Suffice to say that J. B. Carter is not the J. B. C. who wrote the letter in question.
