MANY WOULD SEPARATE

Matrimonial Sea Proves Especially Turbulent This Week

The divorce mill grinds on: Matrimonial bonds and bandages are thrown into the huge machine of the law to come out all slick and clean, just as good as new, for a new start in life or for useless years of remorse. Only the hundreds who are principals in the actions can tell the story and a large number of couples seek knowledge of the story in Judge J. U. Campbell's court this week.

Claire C. Howard seeks separation from Bert Howard to whom she was married on October 19, 1890 at Rice Lake, Wis. The charge is cruelty and an ungovernable temper which caused her to leave the home provided.

Alleging that Annie Robinson had a husband at the time of her marriage to Joseph Robinson, the latter demands that the bonds of matrimony be cut by the law. The couple was married on January 22, 1909 and just recently the husband has found that the other spouse was not disposed of as a preliminary step to the later wedding.

E. V. D. Paul, prominent in realty circles and well-known in this state for his activities in the hop industry, is defendant in a divorce suit filed by Margaret S. Paul. Mrs. Paul alleges cruelty and the heaping upon her head of personal indignities. She asks $40 a month as alimony in addition to attorney's fees. The couple married at Ukiah, Cal., on May 11, 1907.

Desertion is the charge upon which Genevieve O. Dunning bases her suit for divorce from Callest S. Dunning to whom she was married at Portland on October 19, 1902. She asks $25 a month alimony and the custody of a young child born to the union.

As the cool breezes of old Oregon are to the parching, glaring heat of the hottest town in America, Yuma, Ariz., so is the love today to that which existed a year ago between L. M. Sullivan and Meto Sullivan, whose marriage occurred at Yuma, Ariz., on June 8, 1915. Mr. Sullivan charges his wife with deserting the home he had provided and would destroy that home forever.

After nine years of wedded life the glamor of a romance culminated at Winnipeg, Ont., on August 7, 1907, in the marriage of Mary A. Ainsworth and Taylor Ainsworth, has worn off. With the desertion from the cause of connubial bliss of the husband nothing but the dress remained, without chick or child to make it more bearable. Mrs. Ainsworth asks a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

So much for the meat that entered the mill during the week. The following decrees were granted by Judge Campbell during the same period:

Grace King from Clifford King, and Ella Schilling from Fred Schilling. Defaults have been entered in the divorce suits of O. R. Hollingsworth against Vesta A. Hollingsworth, and S. Miller against E. Miller.

Patrick Harris

Aged about 70 years, a native of Ireland and a resident of Clackamas county for a half century, Patrick Harris passed away at his home at Gladstone on Monday afternoon, after a brief period of suffering from heart trouble.

Mrs. Harris died two years ago. Patrick Harris, Jr., a son, whose whereabouts is not known, survives, in addition to a sister, Mrs. Margaret McAdam of Portland, two nieces and one nephew.

Patrick Harris came to America nearly fifty years ago from his birthplace in Ireland. He located temporarily in California and later came to Clackamas county, where he purchased a farm near Sandy. Some years ago he disposed of this property and purchased a home at Parkplace. For the past several years he had made his home at Parkplace.

HORSE KICK KILLS

Lad Suffers Injury Which Causes Instant Death. Was Traveler

Ten-year-old Wilbur Reinwater of Spokane died on Friday immediately after being kicked just above the heart by one of a team of horses he was driving. With his parents and brothers and sisters the little fellow had been spending several weeks at Bandon and was returning to Spokane in his caravan outfit when near Bolton, the lad stepped back to cut a switch. In getting back to his seat with the switch in his hand he put his hand upon the shoulder of one of the horses. The kick came immediately and when his parents could get to the boy he was dead.

The accident occurred on the road close to Bolton. The remains were brought to Oregon City and held until the parents arrived at Spokane, when the body was shipped there for burial. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Reinwater.

SHAD ROE SALAD.—Soak the roe in cold water five minutes; then lay it carefully into a pan with one quart of boiling water, two teaspoonsful of salt, one teaspoonful of minced onion, one-half of a bay leaf, one teaspoonful of mixed whole spice and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Let it simmer (not boil) fifteen minutes; pour off the water; add cold water; add a piece of ice and when the roe is chilled and firm dry it in a napkin; divide it into long strips and then into slices; serve on lettuce.

Codfish Souffle.—Cook rice until soft in milk in a double boiler; season with salt and pepper. Beat the yolks of the four eggs well for a cupful of rice and add to the rice after it has cooled a little. Then add a cupful of shredded codfish and then fold in the whites of the eggs well beaten. Bake in a buttered baking dish and serve hot with softened butter.

Sardine Sandwiches.—Take the sardines from a large can, skin and bone them and mash to a paste. Take the yolks of three hard boiled eggs and mix to a paste and chop the whites very fine, blend with this some melted butter, then add the sardines and flavor with lemon juice.

Creamed Sardines.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter, add one-fourth cupful of soft, stale breadcrumbs and one cupful of this cream and bring to the boiling point. Add one box of sardines, two hard boiled eggs finely chopped, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of each of pepper and paprika. Again bring to the boiling point and serve on toast.

Fried Smelts.—Clean six selected smelts (the large ones) and cut five diagonal parallel gashes on each side. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Roll in cream, dip in flour and fry in butter until delicately browned. Remove to hot serving dish and pour around the following sauce: To butter in frying pan add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one cupful of chicken stock. Season with one and one-third teaspoonfuls of anchovy essence and a few drops of lemon juice. Bring to boiling point and just before pouring around the smelts add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter and one teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley.

Return from Outing
County Clerk Iva M. Harrington and her brother, George Harrington, deputy sheriff in charge of tax collections, have returned from a pleasant sojourn at Foley's springs, where they spent their annual vacation. Just before starting for home Miss Harrington became suddenly ill, probably from ptomaine poisoning which she acquired from eating canned vegetables. By virtue of her admirable work with the road and reel Miss Harrington won the significant sobriquet "Nimrod."

BOOTH AS HAMLET.

His Stage Business Was Used by Both Fechter and Mounet-Sully.

Like all men before the public, Edwin Booth was frequently the victim of malicious detraction. He was accused of imitating other actors, at first his father, then the tragedian Fechter and others.

Fechter was at that time very popular in England and in this country. He once called on the younger actor and said with brutal frankness, "I hear they say you imitate my business, and I am going to watch you like a hawk." It must have been rather trying to play to this rival glaring conspicuously from a stage box, but at the conclusion of the performance Fechter came back to say that the charge was quite unfounded.

Shortly after this experience Booth took a night off and went to see Fechter, and he was astonished to see the German actor following the ghost in "Hamlet" with the handle of his sword uplifted as a cross. Booth remarked dryly that Fechter had evidently approved that part of his business and had adopted it. Shortly after this the critic of a New York paper made the interesting discovery that Booth had purloined this bit of business from the foreign actor.

Booth smiled at the extravagant praise bestowed upon Mounet-Sully for his wonderful business in "Hamlet" in swearing by the shadow of the cross made on the stage by his sword. Booth's comment was that he had done that years before Mounet-Sully ever played the part of Hamlet. Both pieces of business were the results of accidents. On one occasion his sword stuck into the stage so that he could not pull it out, and he noticed the shadow cast by it and realized its significance as he pointed to it. On another night, as he was struggling with Marcellus and Horatio—"Unhand me, gentlemen, or, by heaven, I'll make a ghost of him that lets me!" he lost his hold on the sword; it flew up into the air, and as he caught it he noticed that the light made the sign of the cross; he caught the eloquence of its meaning, and it became a permanent part of his performance—Edwin Milton Royle in Harper's Magazine.

CANINE SWIFTNES.

Eskimo and Siberian Dogs Are Fast, but the Greyhound Excels.

Few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. Some statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist. After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by little fox terriers who followed their masters patiently for hours while they were riding on bicycles or in carriages he says that even greater endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs. Thus the wolf can run between fifty and sixty miles in one night, and an arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel forty-five miles on the ice in five hours, and there is a case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and one-half miles in twenty-eight minutes.

According to M. Dusolier, the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used on hunting ranges is from ten to fifteen yards a second. English setters and pointers run at the rate of eighteen to nineteen miles an hour, and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours. Fox hounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six and a half minutes, which was at the rate of nearly eighteen yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed is equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty yards every second.—Our Dumb Animals.

Held Bible and Rudder.

Some years ago Japan was neither so free nor so friendly with other nations as she is today. In those old days when a foreign ship entered the Japanese ports the captain was obliged to place his Bible and rudder in charge of the chief officer of the port and leave them there until he was ready to sail. Of course he wouldn't sail without either, and the Japs could easily keep tabs on the movements of all ships in their harbors.

Find Auto in Road

An automobile stolen from Dr. C. H. Wheeler of Sellwood last week was found on Monday by Sheriff Wilson and Chief of Police Burke on the highway just beyond Canemah, where it had been deserted by thieves after the gasoline tank had been drained in a joy-ride about the country. The machine had seen hard use since it was taken from its owner and in addition to being out of gasoline was minus a tire on one wheel. The machine was returned to Dr. Wheeler.

VETERAN COLLAPSES

Aged Pedestrian Aided on Journey Toward Old Soldier's Home

The shades of life are fast covering the aged body of Andrew J. Wilcox, a civil war veteran, who was brought to Oregon City on Tuesday evening by an automobile party which picked the old man up at the road side near Sandy, where he had fallen fatigued after the first lap of a journey from The Dalles to the Old Soldier's home at Roseburg.

Ninety-two years old, was Mr. Wilcox. Trouble with a son at The Dalles was responsible for his desertion of the home which he had decided to walk to Roseburg. From The Dalles to Portland he rode on the train. From Portland to Roseburg someone picked him up for a "lift" on his long journey and left him again at Boring, many miles off the road. Between Boring and Sandy the strength in the aged limbs failed the faithful old soldier and he collapsed at the roadside.

When brought to this city by an someone picked him up for a "lift" on Post, G. A. R., made it their business to provide for the comfort of a former comrade. He rested through the night and properly fed was started toward Roseburg by a swifter means of transportation than he had employed from Portland.

JAPAN'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

It Seems to Be Too Subtle For Occidental Minds to Master.

Japan was the first foreign country where I saw moving pictures shown. In Yokohama one whole street is given up to moving pictures—Theater street. Great banners hung clear across it with the picturesque Japanese alphabet racing up and down them advertise the respective performances.

On the floor the audience sits, with their feet squarely turned under them, absorbed in the shifting shadows. The subtleties are in English, but so common is English coming to be in Japan that the meaning doesn't go over their heads. There is always some one to whisper the title's meaning.

American manufacturers have labored long and hard to find films that will amuse the Japanese, but their success has not been very marked. No white child can fathom a Japanese's sense of humor. Our funniest films over give go flat. But in the midst of a death scene in some dramatic film they will suddenly begin to rock with merriment. There is a fortune in it for any one who will locate the Japanese sense of humor and manufacture plays that will hit it.

The Japanese are now manufacturing their own films, but they are not of much interest to white people, as nothing ever happens in them. There is no action. Half a reel may be given up to drinking a cup of tea. But this may be exceedingly funny to the Japanese, for there has been more going on than shows on the surface.

By the way they lift their cups, by the way they swing their fan they are passing a message. Two Japanese can talk to each other with their fans, while the white man standing alongside understands nothing of what they are saying.—World Outlook.

A King's Ransom.

The expression "worth a king's ransom," though generally supposed to mean the ransoms paid for a king, more probably refers to that paid to a king. In early times, when armies received practically no regular pay and the soldier's reward was the booty taken from the vanquished, each soldier had a right to the bodies as well as the goods of the prisoners he captured. The conqueror might slay his prisoner, sell him to slavery or set him at liberty on payment of a ransom. But, though it was the common practice in feudal times for the individual captor to receive the ransom for prisoners of low degree, those for princes or great nobles were always paid to the king; hence a king's ransom.

Chameleon Beaches.

The beaches of Snails Island, in the Gulf of Mexico, change color twice daily with the tides. The sands are really of a golden color, and when the rising tide spreads the wide beach still remains gold, but when the tide ebbs they look quite purple, and this is accounted for by myriads of tiny purple snails crawling in the wake of the ebbing tide. It is to these snails that the island owes its name.

Origin of Music.

The origin of music is lost in antiquity. Among civilized people it probably originated among the Egyptian priests, who employed this art in their religious rites and ceremonies. From the Egyptians the art passed on to the Greeks and Romans and so on to modern nations.—New York American.

Barlow Road Open

At least a month behind time the Barlow pass road over Mt. Hood is at last open to travel, according to word received here this week from Government camp and other points along the route. Usually the snow is off the roads toward Mt. Hood much earlier in the season, but the late snows of this spring have made travel impossible until a few days ago. The reports along the line have suffered considerably, as, heretofore, the tourist travel has started early in June. The only hope of the resort owners is that the summer will last the longer for having started so late.

John Tallman of St. Paul, Minn., was a visitor this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore.

FIREMEN MAY JOURNEY

Annual Tournament Being Planned at Corvallis for Early Fall

An invitation has been received by the Oregon City Fire department from the Corvallis firemen requesting participation in the annual tournament of the Willamette Valley Firemen's association, which is to be held this year at Corvallis, September 3 and 4. Prizes and trophies valued at $500 have already been arranged for. The local ladders have not replied to the invitation, and unless they can finance the trip themselves will, in all probability, remain at home. The boys prefer not to request donations from the business men for the trip and are thoughtfully attempting to solve the problem of expense without outside aid.

In addition to the contests there will be lectures on fire protection, fire prevention and fire fighting. State Insurance Commissioner Harvey Wells will speak to the delegates on the work his department is doing in the prevention of fire losses.

There will also be a parade each day, a pomper drill, a dance each evening, including one street dance; a banquet and a spectacular fire drill on the top of a hotel.

PASTOR REFUSES OFFERS
Tempting Scholastic Positions do not Lure Minister from Local Charge

To just what a sincere degree the Rev. W. T. Milliken, pastor of the local Baptist church, appreciates Oregon City, Clackamas county and old Oregon is made evident when it is learned that he has refused a high position on the faculty of Northern Baptist Seminary of Chicago, in order that he might retain his pastorate here.

The regents of the big school first tendered Mr. Milliken an offer of a professorship, which he promptly refused. A few days later he received word that he had been selected as dean of one of the departments at the seminary. For several years he has been more or less active in the work of the school, especially in the way of mapping out graduate courses of study.

But the deanship, attractive as it was, did not offset the charms of Oregon City and Oregon where Mr. Milliken and family have made their home for five years. He refused the offer and will remain in charge of the church here.

The Rev. Mr. Milliken is himself a highly educated gentleman, and it was in appreciation of his worth that these offers were made to him. He holds two collegiate degrees that entitle him to a prominent place in educational circles, for in addition to his degree of doctor of divinity he holds a master of arts degree.
