STATE SHOULD HAVE LAND GRANT MONEY

The Oregon-California railroad grant lands and the division of the funds to be secured therefrom. No objection is made to the manner of appraisal and settlement of the lands and we are accepting the division of the money as provided in the bill which was 25 per cent to the school fund of Oregon, 25 per cent to counties in which the lands are situated, 40 per cent to the general reclamation fund and 10 per cent to the Federal Treasury. A general objection does come, however, from all sections of the state as to the plan allowing the reclamation bureau to expend the moneys represented by the 40 per cent division where-ever its officers may decide.

The contention is made that the 40 per cent referred to, whatever the general sum may be, should be spent for the reclamation of Oregon desert lands which can never be brought under settlement until irrigation plants are constructed and water carried to them. Oregon lands are just as deserving of attention from the reclamation service as are lands of Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, New Mexico, or Arizona, and the fund being taken from the resources of Oregon, it would appear that Oregon desert lands should in all fairness be given the preference in the construction of reclamation works.

The taxed land of all kinds in the State of Oregon amount to 25,931,276 acres. The non-taxed lands in the state of Oregon amount to 35,257,204 acres. These include Indian reservations, National parks and monuments, National forests, Military reserves, power sites, reservoir sites, coal reserves, unappropriated government lands, lands filed on but not patented, state school lands, and the Oregon-California land grant.

There are in the state, largely in the southern, central and eastern tiers of counties, 32 projects for reclamation of desert lands. These cover 1,108,599 acres and the total amount of money which will be needed to complete them is $54,844,000. It is not expected that such a sum of money can be realized through the 40 per cent of the sale price of the grant lands which will be devoted to the reclamation work, but whatever the sum may be, it will serve a valuable purpose in preparing these lands for the occupation of settlers. If all of the lands could be reclaimed they would furnish homes for over 15,000 families and add materially to the tax valuation of the state. It is probable that over 2,000,000 acres of such desert lands can be ultimately reclaimed and turned into prosperous farms in this state.

RURAL CREDITS AS FORUM HOUR TOPIC

The hearty support of every person who has the least interest in agricultural activities. That should mean every man and woman.

"The next most important problem from the viewpoint of the farmer is the matter of better roads. Personally I do not approve of the bonding system for highway building. I think it has not proved feasible elsewhere and we should not experiment with it. I advocate a one mill state road tax. One mill does not mean much to the individual taxpayer, but it means a million dollars a year for the state. Such a thing means, on the face of it, a system of perfect hard-surfaced roads throughout the state."

The governor pointed out beauties of farm life, and decried the movement of young folk toward the great cities. But the entire blame was not placed with the younger generations. Those who are operating the farms, he said, should make farm life even more ideal than it is. They should modernize their homes to add charm to the life in rural districts for the young people. The young generations are needed on the farm. There is no place for them in the cities.

An especially interesting part of the address made by the state executive concerned the flax experiment carried on by the state at the prison farm this past year. The governor personally discourages flax growing or experimenting in this state at this time, because, as he stated, the knowledge of the proper handling is not sufficient as yet.

The flax experiment conducted by the state was a failure financially, he said. In spite of this it may prove of immense value in the future, and while it was admittedly a failure it gave employment to 150 men without a large outlay of money by the state. The value of the experiment later is expected to more than offset the financial loss at this time.

Carmen Picnic at Estacada

That rain need not dull the pleasure of an all-day outing, at least for the Portland Railway, Light & Power company's employees, was shown Saturday when more than 600 persons went to Estacada for the annual picnic of the Employee's Beneficial Association. Among the number were Oregon City's quota of employees, or as many of them as could be away. No fire was allowed, everyone being asked to don their "rainy day togs" and adopt the slogan of "rain won't hurt."

Twenty-three athletic events for the men, women and children were enjoyed in the afternoon. Luncheon in old-fashioned picnic style was the noon event. The prizes for the contests and races were donated by the physicians and druggists of the association's list and by various mercantile establishments.

TOOZE MUST PROVE

Demurrer Overruled by Judge in Case of Tooze vs. Cartledge

A demurrer to the complaint in the $20,000 libel suit filed against Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cartledge by City School Superintendent F. J. Tooze was overruled by Circuit Judge J. U. Campbell on Friday.

Although C. Schuebel, attorney for Mr. Tooze, objected strongly to the statement, Judge Campbell did not retract his statement regarding Bulletin No. 1, which was the first big libel in the fight that has been carried on in and out of court. Judge Campbell said that this bulletin is not actionable and that the plaintiff must prove libel. In his objection to this Mr. Schuebel said that he could prove that the pamphlet was actionable and was in itself libelous.

TALKS RURAL CREDIT

Dr. Hector Macpherson, O. A. C. Delivers Interesting Address

"The interest burden of eight or nine per cent on Oregon's $30,000,000 indebtedness carried by Oregon farmers would be greatly reduced by the passage of the rural credits constitutional amendment now before the people for their consideration," said Dr. Hector Macpherson of the O. A. C. bureau of organization and markets, who has taken an active part in preparing the measure for the ballot and who discussed rural credits at the farmers' meeting at chautauqua Wednesday morning.

"If our farmers are prosperous every other legitimate business will share in that prosperity," Dr. Macpherson declares.

"In addition to the high interest rates, long and expensive freight hauls to distant markets and inflated land values have placed Oregon agriculture under almost insuperable handicaps," says Dr. Macpherson. "It is estimated that the average Oregon farm fails to make wages for its occupants and 2 per cent on the investment represented."

"Oregon farmers pay interest at the rate of 8 1/4 per cent and 9 1/4 per cent on the $30,000,000 farm indebtedness. It is the purpose of the proposed amendment to take the burden out of the farm mortgage insubus of the state and to give the farmer a period of 36 years in which to pay off the mortgage. The actual rate of interest is 5 per cent. One per cent will be added to pay the principle and in 36 years the entire indebtedness, interest and all, will be wiped out."

"This means an annual saving in interest and mortgage of over three-quarters of a million dollars annually. It also means an end to the perpetual worry and expense of renewing mortgages. It will greatly lessen the number of mortgage foreclosures, lost homes and blighted hopes. It will mean better equipped farms and better rural prosperity, which will be shared in by railroads, factories, and stores and also by laborers in our cities."

"The system is inexpensive and perfectly safe. The borrower foots all the bills without involving the state or taxpayer in any expense or risk."

MARION WALKER IS HOST

Gay Gathering of Little Folks at Walker Home at Little Echo

The home of M. E. Walker, deputy internal revenue collector, at Glen Echo, was the scene of a merry gathering of little folks on Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Walker entertained in honor of her little son, Marion's, eighth birthday.

The little folks were brought to the Walker home by George Howell in his auto and the afternoon was happily spent in new and interesting games, among them being the visit of "Crazy Jane" and "The Giantess." The house was artistically decorated in the national colors, in keeping with the month of independence and a bonfire lighted during the afternoon, in front of the boy scout camp, proved to contain a huge bunch of firecrackers, which caused much merriment.

The dining room was decorated with red, white and blue flowers, a huge mound decorating the center of the table with streamers of red, white and blue satin leading to each corner of the long table.

A lovely birthday cake, ornamented with candy roses and eight candles, stood at the honor guest's place, and individual cakes, each bearing a candle, marked each plate, the candles carrying out the color scheme.

The rooms were darkened upon the entrance of the little folks and the candles lighted, which produced a beautiful effect.

Delicious refreshments were served, consisting of cakes, ice cream, sandwiches, punch and various good things to delight the little folks.

Mrs. Walker was assisted in entertaining by Miss Alta Howell, of Oregon City, and Mrs. L. M. Hoyt of Hillsboro, and daughter, Margaret.

Those enjoying the afternoon were: Laurel Hoyt, Hillsboro; Mildred, Miriam and Marjorie Swafford, Dwight and Janice Hedges, Gordon Miller, David Meldrum, Wilbur Eddy, Judith Hedges, Barbara Hedges, Elizabeth Howland, John Moffatt, Winifred Humphreys, Catherine Hawkins, Roland Wilson and Eulaine Cox of Oregon City; Arden Grasier, Harold Boardman, Fredrick Courts, Ruddy Courts, Claude Dummire, William and Philip Hammond and George Carlson, of Gladstone; Helen, Joyce and Otis Grant of Glen Echo; Bobbie McAlpin and Margaret Seeley of Meldrum. Other guests were Mrs. George Swafford, Mrs. Gilbert Hedges, Mrs. Sadie Rayburn and Mrs. Courts.

Barbers Versus Printers

The printers of Oregon City are up in arms over a challenge to play baseball, evidently with the idea of being badly defeated by the representatives of the barbering trade in this city. The result of the "up in arms" movement is a call for practice in the very near future that the masters of the printing art may successfully defend themselves from the surprise attack from the barber camp. Old, young and middle-aged of both trades are expected to romp upon the diamond on the second Sunday in August, both teams under guard.

Troubled at Night

Painful, annoying bladder weakness usually indicates kidney trouble and kidney trouble never should be neglected. Backache, rheumatism, sore, swollen or stiff muscles or joints—all these have been relieved promptly and efficiently and help to health. Henry Rudolph, Carmi, Ill., writes: "I was bothered with hurting in back and was troubled at night and had to get up several times. Since taking Foley Kidney Pills I sleep all night without getting up."—Jones Drug Co.

TRAPPED BY HIS BLIND RAGE.

For Stupid Obstinacy a Himalayan Bear Takes the Prize.

"Most wild animals are stupid as well as greedy, but for sheer brainless obstinacy in the face of opposition," writes Prince Sarath Ghosh in his book, "The Wonders of the Jungle," "there is no animal like the Himalayan bear. If he finds a thing in his way he will always push it aside, if he can, even though it would be easier to go round the obstacle."

"The wily natives of India have observed that trait in his character and from it have contrived a trap to catch him. They select a tree with a suitable horizontal bough. At a point on the bough about ten or twelve feet from the fork they fasten a bait likely to attract the bear—honey, for example, or goat's flesh. Then from another bough above that one they suspend a heavy block of stone. The rope is so attached to the upper bough that the stone hangs between the bait and the fork of the tree."

"The bear scents the bait from a distance, comes to the tree, sees the food on the bough and climbs up the trunk of the tree. Reaching the bough, he walks along it to get at the bait. But suddenly he notices the obstacle in the way and pushes it aside with his paw. The stone swings out of the way for a second, then it swings back and hits the bear on the paw. With a growl of irritation the bear pushes it aside more violently. The stone swings away again; then it returns with greater force and hits the bear on the chest."

"With a snarl of rage the bear gives the stone a tremendous thrust and sends it up into the air in a wide curve. Then down comes the stone in a similar curve and hits the bear a thumping whack on the ribs."

"Most animals would desist after that third blow; not so the bear. He is now in a perfectly mad rage, and a bear is a good boxer. He hits out with his paws right and left and sends a stone hurtling forward in a still wilder curve. Then after a few seconds the stone comes back and hits the bear a terrific 'uppercut' on the jaw."

"The bear is roused to white hot fury. He thinks an enemy is hiding behind the stone—and an enemy might do in the jungle—and he is determined to reach that enemy."

"But, alas, the bear never went to school and learned the law of gravity! Every blow he hits the stone is returned tenfold. And as the stone has no brains to be knocked out it is the bear that gets knocked out at last. He will never, never give in until he is knocked out of the tree."

"Then the wily natives hiding below rush in with a net and throw it quickly over him."

"And that is how many menageries and zoos get their Himalayan bear."

Why Not a Garden Pool?

As to the garden pool—why not have one? It may be ever so simply done, and often the more simple it is the more charming. Or it may be very elaborate and artificial, like those in the tiny toy gardens of those masters of artifice, the Japanese. No other garden feature offers greater possibilities for diversity of form or for originality than the pool. I know a city garden with high walls about it, rather a cramped garden because of the nearness of other dwellings. But under a small tree in that garden is a bit of a basin with water that is always fresh, set there in the sod to invite the birds for a daily bath. And where birds are there is the spirit of the woodland and mountains, no matter how high skyscrapers tower round about.—Bertha H. Smith in Country-side Magazine.

Thoroughly Disinfect.

In the days when the Munich dynamite was tottering two students cut off some of their fingers as a protest to the government's delay in granting a parliament. Such forms of protest are to the Chinese what writing a letter to the paper is to the Englishman. When these students were taken to the Union Medical college the doctors remonstrated with them for misusing their bodies and running the danger of infection as well.

"Oh, you needn't fear on that point," said these students. "We boiled the knife first."—World Outlook.

Monster Coins.

It is understood that the largest gold coin in circulation is the gold "loof" of Anam, the French colony in eastern Asia. It is a flat round piece worth 555 English money. The next size to this unwieldy coin is the Japanese "obang," which weighs more than two and a half ounces and is about equal to ten English sovereigns.—London Opinion.

The Seven Seas.

"The seven seas" is a poetic name for the oceans of the earth. The "waters embraced" in the term include, therefore, all the great waters of the earth. Specifically the seven seas are divided as the north and south Atlantic, north and south Pacific, Arctic, Antarctic and Indian oceans.

Hatchery Site Sold

Starting the sale of a parcel of government land consisting of the sixteen-acre tract formerly used as the site for the government fish hatchery with the statement that he held a sealed bid for $5000 on the land D. Winn, federal officer in charge of the sale, specifically ended the matter. In view of the high bid no other offer was made, although a number gathered at the court house last Saturday to enter bids on the property. The name of the purchaser was not made known.

WILL SUBMIT PLAN

Idea of Having Auto Tax Help Road Building Inspires Resolution

C. C. Chapman of Portland proposes to submit the following set of resolutions to granges, farmer's unions and commercial clubs of Oregon for consideration.

"The subject of financing highway improvement is pressing hard for solution in Oregon," says Mr. Chapman, "and any plan that promises results without adding new burdens to the taxpayer merits the most careful attention."

Whereas, the wear on Oregon roads is caused principally by automobile traffic, and

Whereas, the improvement of through highways is of direct benefit to automobile owners, in saving time and other expense, and

Whereas, automobile owners as a class are liberally disposed towards road improvement and will endure an increase of auto license fees if the proceeds are to be expended by the state for permanent improvement of through roads, therefore be it

Resolved, that we recommend to the 1917 General Assembly of the state of Oregon the enactment of such legislation as will bring an increased revenue from automobile license fees, same to be the basis for providing interest and sinking-fund payments for bond issues for permanent highway improvement by the state.

Delegates Named

J. K. Morris and H. W. Trembath have been selected as the official representatives of Cataract lodge number 76, Knights of Pythias of Oregon City, at the grand lodge convention to be held in Portland next month. Many of the members of the local lodge will attend the convention while it is in progress, but the two named will be the official delegates.
