WILL CITY YIELD ITS WATER RIGHT?

To forestall open discussion of the plan and an airing of the opposition to it, Councilman Meyer moved that the matter be referred to a committee of three, to report back not later than Wednesday of next week. Councilman Andrews seconded this motion after it had been put several times with no takers, and no immediate opposition to the measure developed.

"I think Mr. Hackett, the incoming mayor, ought to be chairman of this committee," said Mayor Jones.

"I decline to serve," said Mr. Hackett.

"I'll appoint Mr. Metzner chairman, then," said the mayor, "and with him Mr. Templeton and Mr. Meyer."

"I object to having Mr. Meyer on the committee," said Mr. Latourette. "He is closely associated with me in business, and I don't want any chance for members of the council or the people to declare that influence has been used."

The mayor appointed Mr. Andrews in place of Mr. Meyer, and Andrews declined to serve.

"Well, then we'll make it a committee of two," said the mayor. Later at the request of Mr. Templeton, who declared the matter to be one of the gravest import, the committee was increased to four, Councilmen Cox and Albright being added. With the committee standing Metzner, Albright, Cox and Templeton, it is known that at least two of the committeemen are opposed to the plan, so the committee will probably bring in a "deadlock" report and the matter be threshed out in council next week.

Mr. Latourette suggested that a number of taxpayers be named on the committee as well, but the mayor either did not hear him or purposely paid no attention to the suggestion.

And there the matter rested temporarily, with so much "under the surface feeling" that everybody heaved a sigh of relief. Chief opposition to the plan is declared to lie in the fact that the sale of the city flume would seriously embarrass the municipality in the future if at any time it desired to utilize the water rights to operate a city hydro-electric plant. With a long term of years still running on the city's water lease, and with drinking water obtained from the South Fork, many taxpayers and property owners are urging the construction of a municipal lighting plant so that more lights can be obtained in the residence section and so that cluster lights may grace the business streets.

Aside from the water matter the council canvassed the vote of the city election and the mayor mumbled a proclamation which declared the amendments carried and the new officials elected.

A report of the board of appraisers on Division street was read, and filed.

It showed that the city would have to stand approximately $2100 of the $8700 proposed improvement.

The Honorable Christian Schuebel got an ordinance introduced declaring the grade of J. Q. Adams street, from Thirteenth to Fourteenth. It appears that the city is engaged in a suit with a property owner on this street, and the question has been raised that the grade has never been established, though the street has been improved.

The Honorable Christian Schuebel also asked authority of the council to spend not more than $40 of the city's money for a map showing where Main street ran before the flood of 1861—the map to be used in the "friendly" suit of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company against the city regarding the ownership of lower Main street. Mr. Templeton wanted to know if Mr. Stipp's report on this disputed property wouldn't do as well as a map, but Mr. Schuebel said:

"Stipp doesn't know any more about this than an unborn child."

Considering that the suit is being fought on the basis of a report that Livy Stipp made when he was city recorder, Chris paid his brother attorney quite a compliment. He got permission to spend not more than $40 for a map.

Mr. Schuebel then said he'd like to have a five-minute executive session, and invited Mr. Buckles, one of the councilmen elect, to join in the secret meeting. The meeting lasted five minutes, and then Mr. Schuebel came into the council chamber. Three minutes later Mr. Van Auklen left the star-chamber conference and came out to sit behind the stove. Two minutes later Mr. Meyer emerged from the private room, and a minute later Mr. Templeton came out and joined the conference around the stove. At this the chances of Oregon City losing its water right to the Hawley mill was informally discussed.

The secret meeting? Oh yes; that was sought by Mr. Schuebel to find out if his job would hold good after the first of the year, or if the council would conclude that in spite of the Stone amendment it had the right to appoint the city prosecutor and the city recorder. Mr. Schuebel's inquiry was nicely disguised under an interest in city suits that will come to trial early in January, and gave no hint of any doubt on his part that under the Stone amendment, making the city prosecutor and city recorder elective, he would automatically hold over.

Mr. Hackett, to whom the question of the appointment was naturally put, replied that he did not care to say anything about his plans for the city or the city's administration until after he was mayor, which would be the first of the year. And some of the councilmen present didn't declare that they would favor the retention of the present "city attorney," either.

Mr. Schuebel said that he thought Mr. Hackett ought to reveal his plans in private, because if he (Schuebel) wasn't going to be "city attorney" after the end of the year, the man who was going to be ought to have a chance to familiarize himself with the city's interest in the pending cases. No definite news was given Mr. Schuebel.

Council then adjourned, without anybody getting a chance to ask Mr. Van Auklen whether he had paid the printing bill for the publication of his jitsy ordinance yet, or whether he intended to pay it.

WHY HAVE LAWS LIKE THESE, EH?

but employees of the Enterprise, where the budget was printed, say it was printed twice because the first time it was printed it wasn't right, and that the second printing was made to correct an error. If that is correct, the budget hasn't been properly published, and maybe there is a cloud on the legal right of Oregon City to collect its 10 1/2 mill levy next year. If there is a cloud, why didn't the "city attorney" find it out?

The Honorable Christian Schuebel remarked, at this same interview, that he not only knew the law, but that he kept posted on supreme court decisions, so that he knew what the supreme court thought of the law. Bearing this in mind, it was the Honorable Christian Schuebel who slipped to the council that little ordinance regarding the $275,000 bond issue, in which the councilmen individually are held responsible for any excessive appropriations that may be made over the budget.

And there is a state law that says whenever a public official is held financially responsible, he must put up a bond to cover this responsibility. Yet we haven't noticed anything about councilmen furnishing a bond in the new ordinance. How about that, Mr. Christian Schuebel; has the supreme court ruled that bonding is not necessary?

THIS IS NICE

Enterprise Editorial on Road Matters Sure to Cause Good Feeling

Wednesday morning the Oregon City Enterprise had for its leading editorial the following complimentary outburst. Doubtless it will be much appreciated by farmers and other citizens of the county who do not usually read the Enterprise. So that they will be sure to see it, the Courier reprints a portion of it, as follows:

"One thing is certain. There are about 30,000 out of the 37,000 persons (the population of the county seat is about 30,000) in Clackamas county who know just how to get the greatest returns out of the annual $300,000 road fund. Every grocery clerk, farm hand and mill worker has a fine method worked out to the smallest detail and is ready to expound his system to build new roads at the lowest cost at a moment's notice.

"Some of these wiseones are qualified to discuss the subject because they have driven a horse and know just the kind of road on which a horse can travel best; others have lived in the country and have seen men at work on the roads; a few have worked on the roads themselves and some, without even this weighty experience, rely entirely on imagination. Another thing is certain. Clackamas county could turn out the largest collection of road experts of any county in the state—that is, if talk could build roads."

TAXPAYERS CUT BUDGET

County Court Estimates Pared Down During Lively Session

Members of the taxpayers' committee, appointed to review the county budget, found things they didn't like in it Wednesday night, and continued their meeting to Thursday to discuss it further. Six hundred dollars, in round figures, was sliced off the appropriation wanted by William J. Wilson for the sheriff's office; and an emphatic plug was put into the hole through which $7950 was proposed to be paid for the county fair grounds at Canby. The taxpayers didn't see why a county fair should be held in a town inaccessible to other parts of the district.

A resolution recommending the appointment of a county purchasing agent could save at least ten percent on some bills.

Consideration of the estimates for the prosecuting attorney's office was postponed until Thursday's session of the meeting, when District Attorney Gilbert Hedges will be heard, and when the committee will also be favored with suggestions regarding this appropriation from the Honorable Christian Schuebel. Just why the committee should hear Christian Schuebel in the matter was not revealed, but it was said that Christian would have some helpful hints to offer.

SOME SENSE TO THIS

Mutual Payment of Debts Suggested As Good National Move

What promises to become an annual national event has been inaugurated as National Pay-Up Week, February 21-26, inclusive.

National Pay-Up Week had its beginning in the little city of Waukon, Iowa, a county seat of but little over 2,000 population at the end of a little railway in the northeastern part of the state of Iowa. Waukon is a beautiful little city, and a busy business center, but the people of that community are like the people in many another town and community—that is, some of them have, during the past years, bought goods for which they never paid, until the week of January 9-15, 1915, the principal of the high school, who happens to be secretary of the Commercial Club, suggested that it would be a good thing for Waukon to have a day of reckoning, or rather a week of reckoning. The idea appealed to the business men of Waukon, more particularly to the merchants who had considerable money in outstanding accounts. So the week of January 9-15 was advertised as Pay-Up Week, and during that time in this little city, over $50,000 in old accounts was wiped off the books of the local business houses.

Everybody seemed to join in the spirit, and consequently all found it easy to pay their debts. And it is needless to say that prosperity reigned in that town, for it means something to a town of 2,000 population to lift a debt of $50,000 in one week's time, and especially when part of the debt is so old that it has been considered uncollectable.

SHIVELY OPERA HOUSE

Richardson and Talbert present "THE CAPTAIN AND THE LADY" for the balance of this week; a modern story in four acts, considered one of the best of the modern dramas. It pictures the struggles of a young man who tries to support a wife on a small income and is goaded by his friends and mother-in-law until in his desperation he steals money from his employer and is caught after a time and is about to be arrested. He sends his wife to his employer's rooms at night to see if she can save him from jail and the scene with the stern old captain where the young wife pleads for her husband is intensely dramatic.

"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER" will be presented the first three nights of next week.

The high school tuition law was also suspected by the committee of harboring a nigger somewhere in its depths, and the taxpayers said that it ought to be thoroughly probed. Figures regarding the cost of educating children in Oregon City schools, as compared with the tuition charged for outside pupils attending the county seat high school, was quoted, and an apparent discrepancy was noted.

PORTLAND IS BLIND

Woodburn Independent Joins Ranks of Those With Clear Vision

Portland will learn in time that there is too much selfishness in its conservatism. It will waken up when too late. Seattle is helping to develop certain parts of Eastern Oregon and San Francisco will take care of the remainder of that great section. Portland will continue to keep its money at home. This does not develop resources or build big cities. The leading men of that city do not know the meaning of progressivism. They take a little run out to a neighboring hamlet and think they have done wonders and sufficient. They used to have a pretty good Chamber of Commerce in that city but now it looks as if the members are a lot of sleepers unless the agitation refers to Portland. This is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and they know it well.—(Woodburn Independent.)

Now they're making baseball bats in Eugene. Maybe the Varsity players will use the home-made product and find them so good they can win all games next year. If they do, what a boost that will be for the buy-at-home movement. According to this, Oregon City ought to turn to making automobiles, then it might go ahead.

We take particular pains with the stationery we print for our customers.

FOR SALE—One team of horses, average weight (about 1350 lbs.), will sell cheap for cash, also a saddle horse and three-year old colt, wt. 1150 lbs.; two sets of buggy harness, buggy shaft and tongue, one buggy, one surry, one double spring hack, one separator, one dining room table, one range and carpets. Address Mrs. Mary E. Case, Park-place, Ore., Telephone 292-M.

At Eldorado School
A basket social will be given at the Eldorado school December 11th. Everybody cordially invited. You'll enjoy a splendid program.

RUN-DOWN WOMAN

Made Strong By Our Vinol
Fort Edward, N.Y.—"I was in a run-down, nervous and weak condition, so I could not do the housework for my little family of three.
