

THE FASHIONS

New York's social season is in full swing; it opened in a blaze of glory with the swinging back of the Metropolitan's doors late in November. This first night, as always, drew the usual brilliant, opera-going audience, wonderfully gowned in these soft shades so much favored for formal evening wear this winter. The white throats, beautifully dressed hair, and gleaming jewels distracted the attention more than once of even the "dyed-in-the-wool" music lovers, who are usually immune to clothes when Caruso is to be heard.

The Favored Pale Tints

Among the prevailing shades worn by the gorgeous "first-nighters" were pink, blue and white, with here and there a stunning black frock or one and their delicately colored frocks.

of vivid emerald green. This shade of green is an exception to the rule of white, or pastel shades, now so modish; there were several entire gowns in this shade at the opera and the most striking and artistic costume noticed at the Horse Show, some weeks earlier, was also of this green. It is wonderfully becoming to a woman with white hair and a youthful face. Black is favored for evening, too, and served as an attractive touch of contrast among the pale tones in the "golden horsehair."

The Matters of Fans and Gloves

Among the most fascinating accessories accompanying these attractive costumes were the fans; these were not the small, useless fancies of several seasons past, but large, graceful fans of ostrich, curled and uncurled. Many were in white, or the pastel shades; one especially attractive fan was of midnight blue, uncurled ostrich.

The matter of gloves with the sleeveless frocks, and all were sleeveless with one or two exceptions, has probably been a problem to many; white gloves, coming just above the elbow, were generally worn; now and then one noticed a pair in pale pink or deep cream to match the frock; one or two pairs of black, too, were worn. The universal use of tulle, malines, or the fine-meshed net was very noticeable; it was used to veil the neck and arms, as a scarf, in the hair, or billowing, pannier-fashion, over the hips. The men with their black suits and white fronts made an excellent background for these pretty women dresses worn under smart separate coats of cloth or fur, the tailored suit as in days gone by, was most in evidence. Not the straight mannish suit entirely, although there were many of these, too, but the easy-lined, semi-tailored suit of broadcloth, gabardine, duvetyne, whipcord and novelty checks and stripes. Many dull-colored mixtures were worn, trimmed of course, with fur or braid.

An exceptionally effective suit of dark green duvetyne, was made with a flounced skirt and flaring peplum on the coat. A wide soft collar of dark fox and a barrel muff of fox accompanied the suit. Other effective details were the matching spats, the wide velvet hat, and the nifty stick. Another tailored suit, worn the same afternoon, equally simple and chic, was of dark blue gabardine, made with a Russian blouse coat, and flaring skirt, trimmed with narrow bands of seal; a small ball muff of beaver and seal was carried, and spats of white ribboned with the stiff-brimmed hat.

The Three-Quarter Coat

This length prevails in the separate coat for daytime wear. They are of fur, or cloth, fur-trimmed. When the coat is made of cloth it may contrast with or match the frock. One notices a box-back now and then, but the belt in some form is most generally favored. Buttons are attractive trimming; in novelty metals, gold filigree, nickel, and the like. The majority of these coats are made with normal shoulders and set-in sleeves, although there are many raglan models. One especially pretty coat was of broadcloth, brown velvet, loose and falling nearly to the skirt hem, belted in with brown leather. Several leather costumes were noticed at the Horse Show one afternoon; they were worn by mannequins from one of our large dress-making establishments, and created quite a bit of comment. Leather suits are a novelty and as such are attractive, but in all probability they will not become popular with the general run of people.

FOREST RECORD GOOD

Secretary of Agriculture Reports on Nation's Domain for 1915.

In his annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, indicates a number of important measures for the conservation of the resources of the Nation. Among these measures are:

Assistance to communities near the National Forests in road building and similar improvements through a plan involving the advancement of funds for these purposes to be charged against the State's future share of receipts from the Forests.

Authority to grant water power permits within the National Forests for fixed periods.

Classification of the remaining public grazing lands to determine their character and secure information upon which to base plans for their future improvement and use.

In regard to aid for local improvements, the Secretary states that "assistance should be given in the building of roads to bring into productive use the resources of such regions. Therefore, the suggestion contained in the last annual report is repeated, that upon a showing of public necessity, appropriations be made for specific roads and similar improvements, to be charged against the State's future share of receipts from the Forests. This action would promote local development of agriculture and other resources."

In the matter of water power, the Secretary points out that the National Forests contain approximately one-half of the water power of the West. Unfortunately the present law does not authorize the granting of permits for fixed periods. It should be amended and recommendations to this end have been made repeatedly.

In the Western States power development has advanced proportionately very much more rapidly than in the East, where land is privately owned. The amount of water power used in the generation of electricity by public corporations, street railway companies, and municipalities has in the last decade, increased 440 per cent in the West, or more than twice as fast as in the remainder of the country. According to the Secretary four and one-half times as much water power, in proportion to the population, is used in the West as in the remainder of the United States, and nearly three times as much as in the Eastern States.

Strong and Well As Ever

Fred Smith, 325 Main St., Green Bay, Wis., says: "I suffered a long time with a very weak back. Foley Kidney Pills completely relieved me of all soreness and pain and I now am as strong and well as ever." Winter aggravates symptoms of kidney trouble; cold weather makes aching joints, sore muscles, and irregular bladder action more unbearable. Foley Kidney Pills help the kidneys eliminate pain-causing poisons.—Jones Drug Co.
