BOYS OVER HERE—OVER THERE

John Moger of Estacada, who has received his honorable discharge from the service, was in this city a few days ago. He was with the 20th Engineers.

George Swanson of Hubbard, has received his honorable discharge from the service, and has returned to his home. He was in Oregon City the first of the week, where he visited friends.

Oscar Franklin, a bugler of the 72d Infantry, and member of Company K, has returned to Clackamas county. He was stationed at Fort McDowell, California, and has returned to his home at Molalla. Franklin was in Oregon City a few days ago, where he visited friends.

Ross Hiddleston, who has been in the navy, on the U. S. S. Nebraska, has returned to his home on the Abner, about two miles from this city. Hiddleston has traveled much since entering the service. He has been to South America and also to France, but is glad to be back to Clackamas county. He has been in the service for the past two years. The young man arrived home shortly before his father, the late W. B. Hiddleston, passed away. Mr. Hiddleston's death occurred April 2.

Ernest Keesling of Macksburg, is another Clackamas county boy who has received his discharge from the service. He was with the Eighth Division, the same division that "Scoop" Young and Jack Bannon belonged to. He was disappointed in not being able to go overseas with his division, for while stationed at Fort McDowell, California, he was stricken with influenza, and suffered from that disease for 42 days. For several days his condition was critical. He was in Oregon City Tuesday, and while here visited among friends.

Albert Martin of Hoff, who has been in the service for some time, was in Oregon City Wednesday. Martin has received his honorable discharge from the army. He was stationed at Vancouver since entering the service, and was among those from Clackamas county desiring to go overseas to get into the big fight. He was born in Poland, and is one of the most patriotic young Americans.

Otto Jameson of Eagle Creek, who has recently received his honorable discharge from the naval service, was in Oregon City a few days ago. He has been on the West Humboldt, a cargo ship.

Albert H. Lins of George, is among those to arrive home from the service. He has received his honorable discharge at Bremerton, Wash. He was in Oregon City a few days ago.

George Pepper, one of the first young men of Oregon City to enter the service, has returned to this city, and has resumed his position with Hannon & Company. George has been at the radio school at Mare Island, having completed his studies, and had planned on being able to go overseas. He was to have made the trip soon, had the armistice not been signed. Pepper has many friends here who are giving him a cordial reception.

Gordon Taylor, editor of the Molalla Pioneer, is making a hit in Europe with his lecture on "Dad". He has been giving this lecture in France and Germany, and has just completed his work in Germany, where he has been with the Army of Occupation. Mr. Taylor is giving the lecture under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. He has returned to Paris, and will later sail for home.

Charles Elbert Wells, a well-known Oregon City young man, who has been in the naval service for more than a year, is on the U. S. S. Leviathan, and has made many trips to France. He is looking forward to receiving his discharge from the service.

Kent Moody, who is with the Army of Occupation, writes his mother that he is having a most enjoyable time on his furlough. Sergeant Moody said on a card received Tuesday "Tell my friends in Oregon City that I have had one gay time seeing gay 'Paros'." Several photos were received of the young man, and he has gained in weight, and is the picture of health. One of these was while seated on a motorcycle. Kent does not know just when he will receive his honorable discharge, but is awaiting patiently for the time when Uncle Sam gives his consent for that time.

Mrs. S. J. Ownby of Seventh street, is in receipt of the following letter from her son, Ivan:

Palma, C. Z.,
March 12, 1919.

"Dear Everybody:
"Just a few lines to let you know that I am still alive and well, and at last on the Pacific side of the continent.

"We all came through the canal yesterday, and are leaving here tomorrow for Corinto, Nicaragua, and expect to be in California in about two weeks. We had a real nice trip through the canal, but we sure had a rough trip crossing the Caribbean sea coming from Cuba to Colon, C. Z. It was sure a long trip. It took us one week, and the biggest part of the crew was sure seasick, but the old 'sea dog' has never been sick yet, but this hot weather down here would make me sick if I had to stay in it."

"I was in hopes I could get some silks and such down here, but all the towns in the zone are restricted to 'gobs', so I guess there will be no chance. It is only about five miles from here to Panama City, but all we can do is to look at it. No chance to get into it. If I had a suit of 'civies' I could go most any place down here, and they would sure think I was one of the natives. I am as black as any Indian you ever saw. If we don't get out of the boiling hot weather pretty soon, I will be as black as a coon."

"Glad to hear that Ed and Emil are home, and sure hope I can get out when we get up north."

"With love to all, I am your loving son and brother,

"Ivan."

U. S. S. C. 291
San Diego, Calif.
Pacific Fleet.

From all indications Oliver Ferguson, one of the Clackamas county boys, who has been in some of the greatest battles in France, and among those wounded and gassed, is to be allowed a furlough and visit his father, Lawrence Ferguson, of New Era. He will probably arrive at the Ferguson home today. Mechanic Ferguson is with the 14th Company, C. A. C., and has been stationed for a few days at Fort Winfield Scott, San Francisco, having been with the 25th Battalion, First Anti-Aircraft Sector in France.

In his letter, written April 5, he says:

"Dear Dad:

"Just a line, and do hope this finds you greatly improved."

"I expect to get my furlough Tuesday morning, so will most likely get started Tuesday evening or Wednesday morning. Do not put too much faith in my getting my leave, as one never can tell what will happen in these days. However, I am quite sure it will be approved. It is for only one month, but that is better than none, isn't it? I do not know what train I will come on, but I hardly think it will stop at New Era, so will most likely get off at Oregon City or Portland, but I will lose no time in getting to New Era."

"So, goodbye Dad, and take care of yourself, and I'll do the same."

"As ever your son,

"OLIVER."

In a clipping sent from San Francisco by the young man to his father, tells of the great reception given the company, of which Ferguson was a member, a part of which is as follows:

"The first fighting contingent to leave San Francisco for France, the First Anti-Aircraft Battalion, returned to San Francisco yesterday with a fighting record second only to that of the 363d Infantry."

"One hundred and forty-seven young San Francisco boys found San Francisco as glad to welcome them back as it was proud to send them over. There was no end of enthusiasm displayed by the welcome and the welcomed yesterday. They came into the Oakland on a special train. A host of relatives staged a dramatic scene when the special came to a standstill. The welcome closely resembled a riot, for the Red Cross, the War Camp Community women and hundreds of friends and relatives and a very noisy band presented a very noisy and enjoyable welcome."

"The First Anti-Aircraft men are heroes with an enviable record. They were the first San Francisco soldiers to leave that city for France. This First Anti-Aircraft fought at St. Mihiel, Chateau Thierry, in the Argonne, and at the storming of the Meuse. They brought down eleven enemy planes unofficially. They were the rivals of the Second Anti-Aircraft Battalion, Los Angeles men, in destroying forever the famous Flying Circle of the Germans at St. Mihiel."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barker, Sr., and family, of this city, are in receipt of several letters from their son, Thomas Barker, who is with M. G. Company, 362d Infantry, and who is recovering from wounds received in battle. This is one of the young men of Oregon who has failed to receive any letters from his relatives in this city, or in fact who has not received any mail since arriving in France. He has sent many letters but a large number are now being returned that were sent by relatives of this city. One of the letters having been returned had been opened, and a handkerchief had been sent as a Christmas gift to the soldier boy had been removed from the letter, and is now a mystery to the family as to where it is. There have been many changes in Mr. Barker's family since he has gone overseas, and which the young man is still unaware of. Among the sad events was the death of his sister, Mrs. Nellie Shipley, and also his little niece, Merle Shipley, eight months old daughter of Mrs. Shipley, who were among the first victims of influenza.

One of the letters received this week was dated February 28, and says in part, as follows:

"Another fine spring day. The sun is shining and it is nice and comfortable outside. We had our first thunder shower yesterday evening, that is it thundered about four o'clock."

"There was a train load of convalescent and crippled soldiers left here yesterday for (I heard) Brest. I am still at Base Hospital No. 104, but have given up saying when I will leave for home, whenever I write to anybody saying that I expect to leave soon, it generally means some time in the distant future. I am feeling fine. All I do is to sit around the ward and read or else go over to the Red Cross but almost every evening as there is a show of some kind over there."

The second letter is as follows, and is dated March 9:

"Another nice day. It rains one day and the sun tries to shine the next. I am still here Bordeaux, and I don't know just when they will get tired of me and send me home. I hear that they are going to send out about 2000 from the evacuation hospital this week. If they do there will be some chance of leaving soon. You see we have to be transferred to the evacuation hospital before we leave for the States. I had the cast taken off my arm a week ago, but they put a splint on it again. I expect that it will stay on until I get back to the States."

"We certainly have no kick coming here—plenty to eat three times a day, and absolutely nothing to do. The Red Cross has a fine but just across the street from our ward, where we have a show or band concert every night. They also give out free every afternoon either hot chocolate, cigarettes, smoking tobacco or candy."

"As ever your son and brother,

"TOM."

CHARLES F. STUTZ OF OREGON CITY IS HOME FROM FRANCE

Charles F. Stutz, who has been with the 155th Aero Squadron in France, has returned to his home in Oregon City. He enlisted November 1917, and was sent overseas three months after entering the service. He was first stationed in England, and after arriving almost overseas, he was stricken with measles, and was in a serious condition when reaching port. It was necessary to be carried on a stretcher when he reached there, but he is now enjoying the best of health, although he has had hardships while in the army in France, where he was later transferred from England. He was also in Germany for some time, but says "the good old U. S. A. for me every time." He was driver of one of the big trucks while overseas and was close to the battle line on many occasions, and often heard the roar of the big guns.

Fred Stutz, a brother of Charles, is also in the service, and is with the 174th Aero Squadron. He has also been in France, and arrived safely in New York April 4, and to arrive here shortly. He has been a cook with the squadron, and had his first experience in this line when entering the service of the United States Army, and has enjoyed his novel experience and has made good.

These two brothers enlisted on the same day and left on the same boat for overseas service, being separated later after their arrival in England. Upon the arrival at the family home in Oregon Charles Stutz saw for the first time two new arrivals in the family. One was little Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fugill of Astoria, who made her appearance in the new world November, 1918, and little Laura Calif, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Calif, of this city, who is but a few weeks old.

A family reunion is being planned for the reception of the young men at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Stutz of Bolton, when all members of the family are to be in attendance.

Mrs. C. F. Stutz, mother of the two young soldiers, has been one of the most active members of the Red Cross Society branch of this city. She has assisted in sewing, and when a drive was on for securing fruit pits to be manufactured into masks, this woman saved every little pit and many a sack she brought to the headquarters to be used for the soldiers. She has always given her service in every patriotic cause.

L. Baron Is Home From Overseas

L. Baron, who has been with the Canadian forces in France, his native country, returned to Oregon City Friday evening. He received his honorable discharge at Vancouver, B. C., Thursday. Baron has been with the Canadian Railway Engineers, and has had much experience since going overseas. He has been in the service over a year. He arrived in Portland at 5:30, and relatives were at the train to meet him, including his wife, formerly Miss Kate Cooper, and her two little daughters.

GLADSTONE MARINE IS BACK IN STATES AFTER LONG SERVICE

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson of Gladstone, received a telegram from their son, Percy Wilson, who has been in the marine service for the past four years. He has arrived safely at Mare Island, Cal., from the Philippine Islands, where he has been stationed for some time. He left Honolulu March 25, and had an enjoyable trip. About 100 marines made the trip and are to be mustered out of service. Wilson's four years in the marine service will be up within a few weeks, and he is to ask to be transferred to Bremerton, Wash., where he will receive his honorable discharge from the service. At the present time he is busy engaged with office work, assisting in mustering out the young men. Since entering the marine service four years ago, he has not had a furlough, and is looking forward to the time when he will be home again. At the time of enlisting he was connected with the office of the Crown-Willamette Paper company.

VOLUNTEERS WANTED BY U. S. ARMY FOR OVERSEAS SERVICE

Sergeant E. L. French, of the General Recruiting Service Station at Portland, was in this city Friday in the interest of the station. Sergeant French just came from Salem and Eugene where he established branch stations, and while no station will be maintained here a canvass for volunteers for the American Expeditionary Forces is being made by the office.

The government asks for 50,000 volunteers to take the place of the boys over there. Enlistments are for one year and for three years. The men who have had previous military experience may enlist for one year and the new recruits for three years.

The recruits will be sent to the San Francisco Recruiting Depot for training and owing to the chance for foreign service at an early date and the fact that many boys who have been discharged without an opportunity to see active service the recruits are coming in very rapidly.

Those enlisting for foreign service may enter the infantry, cavalry, field artillery, engineers or the medical department and recruits for home service have the privilege of choosing any branch.

WEST LINN SOLDIER SEVERELY WOUNDED BUT IS RECOVERING

Earl Kiser, one of the well-known young men of West Linn, is safe, although he is suffering from wounds, but now able to again join his company in Germany. The young man is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kiser, prominent residents of West Linn, and word has just been received of his safety in Germany. Although the young man has written 50 letters since being in the hospital in France, this is the first word received since August. He is a member of Company L, of the Michigan Division, having been transferred to that company from Company D.

The young man was wounded in battle in the woods near Tours in August. He was the first boy of West Linn to enlist to go to the Mexican border, and was one of the first to enlist during the world war.

Kiser is the brother of Mrs. Richard Bittner, who is one of the most active members of the Red Cross Auxiliary of West Linn.

Clackamas Boy Is Back From France

In every offensive but the Argonne front before he had reached the 20th anniversary of his birthday and bearing many marks of his physical contact with the Hun, Sergeant C. D. Manning, son of Mrs. R. C. New of Clackamas, arrived in San Francisco last Wednesday and will be mustered out at the Presidio shortly.

Gladstone Man Is Captured By Reds

—NEW YORK, April 3.—Young Men's Christian Association officials today identified the two workers reported in yesterday's cable dispatches from Archangel, Russia, to have been captured by the Bolsheviks, as Bryant R. Ryall and Malcolm V. Arnold. The spelling of the names was apparently confused in cable transmission. Ryall is 34 years old and has been in Russia a year. His mother, Mrs. E. C. Ryall, lives at Gladstone, Oregon.

FISHERMEN STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4.—Two thousand San Francisco fishermen went on strike today and their 600 boats are tied up idle at Fishermen's wharf. The strike, the men say, will not be lifted until States Market Commissioner Harris Weinstock is removed from office or acceptable relief is furnished to the fishing industry of California.

W. S. S. Workers To Be Given Prizes

Marion, through its county chairman, W. M. Smith; Clackamas, by J. E. Calavan, county chairman; Jackson, by W. G. Ager, chairman; Malheur county through County School Superintendent Fay Clark Hurley; and Clatsop county by J. E. Gratke, chairman, have already adopted the plan of giving a number of small prizes in War Savings Stamps and Thrift Stamps to boys and girls of school age, in the respective counties, for the most interesting adventures met with in acquiring money with which War Savings Stamps are purchased between January 1st and October 1, this year. The contest is to close on the first of October; the awards will be made in the various counties by the 15th.

The winners in the various counties will then be announced and the most novel thrift stories will be sent to the State Headquarters for publicity use.

The three first prizes will be three five-dollar W. S. S. Certificates. These are first in each class.

For the most novel—the most unusual—method of making money with which War Stamps are purchased.

The most ingenious or original method of making money with which War Savings Stamps are purchased. The hardest work performer (time put in, kind of work and results considered) in selling stamps, between January 1st and October 1st, 1919.

Then there are to be ten one-dollar prizes in Thrift Stamps for the ten best adventures in any or all of these classes. All letters must be in by October 1, 1919. The committee of judges will be named by the County Superintendent of Schools and the Chairman of the War Savings organization.

BIG GAIN IS MADE IN BUSINESS OF THE RECORDERS OFFICE

The following report from the office of County Recorder J. G. Noe, shows that the business in this office is on the increase during the past year. There were 603 deeds filed for the months of January, February and March. During the three months there were 236 mortgages and 301 satisfaction of mortgages.

The fees for the various transfers for March amounted to $616.40, which was the largest amount since March, 1917.

Willamette Boy Arrives in U. S.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Morrell of Willamette, have received word of the safe arrival of their son, Clarence Morrell, a well known young man of Willamette, in New York from France. He was among those arriving on the Manchuria, a former steamer plying between San Francisco and China that was placed on the Atlantic a number of years ago.

Clarence Morrell is with the 373d Pursuit Aero Squadron. He enlisted in the service December 4, 1917, at Portland. He was first stationed in England after going overseas, and remained there from March 1918, to October, 1918. He was transferred to France October 4. He is enjoying the best of health, and is looking forward to the time when he returns to his home in Clackamas county.

Clyde Morrell, also a son of Mr. and Mrs. Morrell, enlisted in the aviation corps November, 1917, at Aberdeen, Wash., and left for Vancouver, Wash., where he was stationed for a brief time before being transferred to Camp Kelly Field, Texas. He was later transferred to Waco, Texas, where he was assigned to the 609th Aero Squadron. He later was stationed at Camp Greene, N. C. As it was impossible to secure aero production there, the young man was transferred into cooks and bakers class, when he was awarded a diploma, and was then sent to Mt. Clemens, Michigan, where he has since been stationed, and was disappointed in not being able to go overseas.

Loyalty League of Hazelia Entertains

The Loyalty League of Hazelia held an entertainment at the Hazelia school house Saturday evening, when Gilbert L. Hedges, district attorney, gave an interesting patriotic talk before a large and enthusiastic audience.

This is one of the most enthusiastic meetings held at the school house of Hazelia. A number of vocal and instrumental selections were rendered.

TAG SALES IN TACOMA CAUSE ARREST OF 57

TACOMA, Wash., April 5.—Fifty-seven arrests were made by the police today in the rioting that took place when a half hundred soldiers of the Soldiers and Sailors Mutual Aid association, attempted to hold tag sales on the streets of the city in the face of a police edict forbidding the sale. Thousands of shipyard workers thronged the street corners and hooted the police who were attempting to keep order and allow the passage of traffic on downtown streets. It is estimated that nearly 3000 people gathered at one street intersection, where a large number of the arrests were made.

WHEN, HOW TO PLANT CROPS IN THE GARDEN

—GARDEN crops are divided by the United States Department of Agriculture specialists into four groups as regards the time of planting them in the open ground.

The first group includes the vegetables that will withstand considerable frost and which may be planted two or three weeks before the danger of frosts is past in the spring. The second group, or semi-hardy crops, may be planted a few days before, or about the time, that the last killing frost is likely to occur. The third group, those easily killed by frost, should not be planted until all danger of frost is over. The fourth group, the heat-loving plants, should never be planted in the open until both the soil and the air are thoroughly warm.

Among the crops of the first group—that may be planted before frosts are past—are Irish potatoes, smooth peas, onion sets, cabbage plants, kale, turnips, beets, lettuce, and mustard. They may be planted early, because they require two or three weeks to come up. While the young plants are easily injured by frost, by the time they sprout and come to the surface frost danger is likely to be past.

Don't Follow Moon Rule. Some gardeners formerly believed in planting Irish potatoes and certain other garden crops in the proper phase of the moon. No one seems to know how the old moon theory the investment in seed is too great for taking a chance with the weather, but with beets, lettuce, and radishes a very small quantity of seed is required, and if they come through in good shape, the product will be ready for use much earlier than if the planting were delayed. About 25 or 30 feet of row will give all the early beets required by an ordinary family. Radishes may be planted in the rows with early peas. However, it will be necessary to remove the radishes before they begin to crowd the peas. As a rule, radishes will be ready for use in three to four weeks after planting, or just about the time that the peas have begun to make a vigorous growth. Most gardeners make the mistake of planting too many radishes, or at least of planting too many at one time and not being able to use the product.

The old-fashioned method of growing lettuce was to plant a bed along one side or in one corner of the garden, and when the plants were large enough, to thin them, using the product as needed and leaving the remainder to grow larger. This method of growing lettuce is not as desirable as the plan of growing it in rows, where it can be easily cultivated. Lettuce is very susceptible to heat, and it is difficult to grow it satisfactorily after the weather has become hot. For this reason it is best grown originated, but it seems to date back to prehistoric times and probably was based upon the method of keeping time by moons rather than by months. There is no definite experimental data to show that the moon has any influence one way or the other, and experienced gardeners prefer to plant their potatoes at a time when the weather and soil conditions are right rather than according to the phase of the moon. Experience has shown that the point of most importance is to have the land in first-class condition for planting, then proceed to plant as soon as weather conditions permit.

When Peas Should Go In. The dwarf or smooth varieties of English peas may be planted about the same time as Irish potatoes. Here again soil preparation is important, and the ground should be made fine and mellow before planting. Opinions differ as to the depth to which the seed peas should be covered. Some authorities claim they should be covered as much as four inches, while others maintain that two to three inches is sufficient. Much will depend, however, upon the character of the soil in which the crop is planted. If the soil is a light sandy loam and inclined to dry out quickly, the peas should be covered three to four inches. But if the soil is rather heavy and inclined to pack closely, they should not be covered more than one and one-half to two inches. The varieties of peas having wrinkled seed coats should not be planted until about two weeks after the smooth varieties. They are just a little more susceptible to injury from frost and will mature about as early if planted when the ground has slightly warmed.

When to Take Chances. In the case of certain garden crops, as a spring and fall crop. Two or three plantings at intervals of ten days or two weeks in spring and a planting or two in autumn should be sufficient for the needs of the ordinary family.

Planting Second Group. The second group, including carrots, beets, parsnips, radishes, salsify, wrinkled peas, spinach, and early sweet corn, may be planted shortly before the probable time for the last spring frost. The planting of these crops should be so timed that they will escape frost and yet be started just as early as possible. The same planting methods should be followed as for the extremely early crops.

When Frost Is Past. The third group of garden crops, or those that should not be planted until after danger of frost is past, includes cucumbers, cantaloupes, okra, Swiss chard, snap beans, cauliflower, and tomato plants. The time of setting tomato plants, however, will depend somewhat on whether or not they are becoming crowded in the plant bed. If they are not crowded, it may pay to delay setting them in the open ground until the air is thoroughly warmed. Little is gained by planting this class of plants in the open very early.

The fourth group of plants, commonly known as the heat-loving plants, includes peppers, eggplants, sweet potatoes, and summer squash. These crops are easily injured by cold nights and periods of rainy weather, and it is always best to delay planting them until a safe period has been reached. It should be borne in mind the certain soils warm up slowly in the springtime, and that such plants as eggplant and peppers are very susceptible to injury from cold soils.
