TWELVE SOLDIERS HOME FROM CAMP

teeth of the boys. All necessities are well provided and the company mess fund purchases many dainties for the table. Other than for sweets and pleasures that are indulged in away from camp extra money is not needed.

According to the boys who arrived home this week Company G is established in Camp Paradise at Imperial beach and occupies a delightful and beautiful spot within 300 yards of the roaring ocean. Everything at Camp Paradise is better than it was at Palm City, and all seemed to think the site had been well named.

Imperial City, they say, is short on the usual beach entertainment features, but the natural pleasures are more than enough to make up for the lack. There is hunting, fishing, surf bathing and other features of beach life that all guardsmen are enjoying. The Oregon City boys who are at home after their trip are unanimous in praising conditions and are genuinely sorry that they could not remain with the troops.

There is very little sickness, the boys say, and the community in which the camp is located, as well as those of the surrounding country, are taking a great interest in the welfare of the soldiers. Fruit of all kinds is furnished in abundance free of cost and reading matter is plentiful, thanks to this community interest.

When the camp was changed from Palm City to Imperial City, the boys say, members of Company G escaped practically all labor connected with the transfer. Company G was late, purposely or otherwise, and when it arrived the new camp had been established and inhabited. The local boys had only to erect their own company streets. Part of the labor which Company G escaped consisted in digging a trench 400 feet long, 8 inches wide and a foot deep to hold the pipes of the water main.

The southern California water is the only cause of complaint on the part of the boys at the front, say those who have returned. The water is so different from good Bull Run that it is almost unpalatable and is replaced to a large extent for use of the troops by soft drinks or by water purchased in large jars. They say, however, that the water at Camp Paradise is much better than that at Palm City. The former supply comes from the reservoirs of the San Diego water system.

OREGON CROP VALUE IS AT $30,000,000

LABOR COMMISSIONER FINDS SIX CROPS ABOVE MILLION IN MONEY VALUE

Oregon crops will be immense this year and will be reaped by thankful farmers throughout the state, according to estimates made at Salem on Monday by O. P. Hoff, state labor commissioner. Mr. Hoff has studied conditions and crops and made an estimate on the volume of the nine principal crops of the state. He says that six crops will yield in value more than $1,000,000 each, and that the profit from the nine chief products of the farmers of the state will be $30,181,730.

The percentage of the combined condition of all crops during July, based on a 10-year average, was 94.3. The biggest item in Oregon's enormous harvest this year, as in the past, is the wheat crop, which, based on crop conditions August 1, will show a yield of 11,781,000 bushels of winter and 4,000,000 bushels of spring, or a total of 15,781,000 bushels.

Commissioner Hoff's estimates indicate that the state's winter wheat crop is 86 per cent of the average for 10 years, while the spring wheat crop is 86.2 per cent. The estimated value of the entire wheat crop of the state at the farm on August 1 was 93 cents a bushel, or a total of $13,097,230. The stock of wheat now held on Oregon farms is placed at 873,000 bushels.

The state bureau of labor statistics forecasts an oats yield of 13,200,000 bushels, worth $5,412,000 to the Oregon farmer at 31 cents a bushel. The crop is 90.3 per cent of normal.

With 50,500 acres planted to potatoes this year and the crop 92 per cent of normal, a yield of 6,250,000 bushels is forecasted. At 80 cents a bushel this crop will have a value of $5,000,000.

The state's apple crop will total 3,216,000 boxes of a value of $3,216,000. The yield is 72 per cent of a 10-year average.

Barley will bring $2,447,500 to the farmers, it is estimated, with a crop outlook of 4,450,000 bushels.

This year Oregon has 41,000 acres planted to corn, with a prospective yield of 86 per cent of normal. Commissioner Hoff estimates that 1,200,000 bushels will be raised, netting the producers $1,008,000.

Although the yield of pears is but 68 per cent of average for 10 years, because of unfavorable climatic conditions this year, the estimated crop is 510,000 bushels, worth $510,000.

The rye crop, estimated at 91 per cent, will total approximately 48,000 bushels, valued at $418,000.

Because of recent rains the hay crop, it is estimated, will run only about 2.1 tons an acre, 88 per cent of the 10-year average.

The peach crop this season is forecasted at 272,000 bushels, 59 per cent of normal, and valued at $272,000.

The grape yield is placed at 80 per cent, and the blackberry and loganberry output at 94 per cent of the average for 10 years. The condition of truck crops for canning purposes on August 1, is placed as follows: Snap beans, 80 per cent; cabbage, 91 per cent; sweet corn, 71 per cent; cucumbers, 68 per cent; peas, 90 per cent; tomatoes, 76 per cent.

On August 1, the estimated value at the Oregon farm of the state's main products Commissioner Hoff places as follows: Corn, 84 cents a bushel; wheat, 83 cents; oats, 41 cents; barley 55 cents; rye, $1; onions, $1.30; clover seed, $12; timothy seed, $4.75; alfalfa, 27 cents a pound; eggs, 23 cents a dozen; chickens, 11 cents a pound; hay $11.42; potatoes, 80 cents a bushel; hogs, $7.51 per cwt.; beef cattle, $6.92 per cwt.; milk cows, $70.75 per head; sheep, $6.25 per cwt.; horses, $107.30 per head; lambs, $7.25 per cwt.; calves $8.95 per cwt.

The six Oregon crops which will exceed $1,000,000 in value are classified as follows by the labor commissioner:

Crop	Yield Bushels	Value
Wheat	15,781,000	$13,097,230
Oats	13,200,000	5,412,000
Potatoes	6,250,000	5,000,000
Apples	3,216,000*	3,216,000
Barley	4,450,000	2,447,500
Corn	1,200,000	1,008,000

MRS. WELLS ASKS $30,000

Oswego Woman Alleges Plot to Defame Character. Sues Group

Mrs. Mary C. Wells, aged Oswego woman, who recently was acquitted in circuit court here on a charge of attempting to defraud an insurance company through the destruction by fire of buildings owned by her in Oswego, has filed suit against the Firemen's Insurance company of Newark, N. J., W. J. Lloyd, insurance adjuster, F. H. Greenman, detective, and Mrs. Carrie Buckner, wife of a merchant at Oswego, asking $30,000 damages.

Mrs. Wells alleges that the defendants named in her action entered into a conspiracy to defame her character and the charges that brought her into circuit court recently were brought up by this group. Mrs. Wells, according to Mrs. Buckner, one of the defendants, was heard to make arrangements with a convict, W. H. Newman, to cause the burning of her houses at Oswego. Newman confessed his part in the affair and was sent to the penitentiary therefor.

The indictment of the grand jury and the circuit court verdict are included in the complaint filed by Mrs. Wells. She seeks to establish her statements with regard to the conspiracy to defame her character with the court to such an extent that she can recover from the defendants $30,000 for the damage that the conspiracy did.

"DRYS" ORGANIZE

$25,000 Will Carry Work to All Parts of Clackamas County

The organization of the prohibition forces of Clackamas county was perfected at a well attended meeting held at the Methodist church in this city on Tuesday afternoon and committees were appointed to direct the work of the dry campaign within this county.

One of the first objects of the prohibition workers will be to raise a fund of $25,000 to help in the work of interesting voters in the defeat of the so-called Brewer's amendment and the passage of the absolute prohibition amendment which curtailed the importation of intoxicating liquors. This, it is hoped, can be accomplished largely through the medium of the press.

Rallies are to be held throughout the county at which a program of speaking and music will be rendered for the entertainment and education of the people of the county. The organization of the "dry" workers was along the line of the state committee of one hundred and this large committee will have charge of the work of advancing the prohibition cause.

At the morning session of the meeting C. H. Dye was elected chairman of the county committee, with Dr. Roy L. Dunn of Gladstone as secretary and Rev. A. J. Ware, treasurer. The nominating committee comprised H. E. Cross, L. Adams, M. J. Lee, Mrs. Everly, of Clarks, Mrs. M. V. Brown.

The idea advanced by Christian Schubel that the committees should interest themselves also in a campaign in favor of the rural credits amendment and the tax limitation amendment was received with favor by the meeting.

The following committees were announced by the nominating committee appointed at the morning session, and the election of these committees was unanimous:

Finance committee—J. W. Loder, Edward Maple, Rev. A. J. Ware, Rev. W. B. Moore, Rev. C. E. Curtis.

Publicity committee—Dr. W. T. Milliken, F. W. McKechnie, Earl C. Brownlee, W. E. Hassler, G. L. Taylor, W. E. Brainerd.

Arrangements committee—(Meetings) Rev. J. K. Hawkins, Rev. J. R. Landsborough, C. Schubel.

Registration committee—Mrs. E. B. Andrews, J. O. Staats, Mrs. T. E. Gault, Mrs. F. J. Toole.

J. Sanger Fox, prominent prohibition worker, spoke at the afternoon session on a program with several other speakers. Mr. Fox spoke scornfully of the non-partisan feature of the Clackamas county organization, saying that local prohibitionists should have allied themselves with the prohibition party, of which he is a prominent member, and gone under the protecting wing and direction of the Portland workers. The committee here, however, seemed perfectly willing to continue to direct its own efforts without parental advice from the Portland workers. It will be made a point, however, to ally in every possible way with all prohibition forces in the state, including that of Portland.

EVIDENCE OF FRAUD

District Attorney Hedges Will Try to Secure Name for Nameless Wife

A mother who refuses to remarry her divorced husband for the sake of giving a name to her baby girl, born since divorce, may find her refusal, which disregards the right of her child, of no avail.

District Attorney Hedges has volunteered to aid in an effort to throw out the divorce decree granted here three years ago to Anna Rossi from Camillo Rossi. There is evidence of fraud on the woman's part in securing the decree, and the local district attorney will use every means within his power to set the decree aside and give to the child the heritage which it rightly should possess. A motion to set the decree aside is soon to be filed, and affidavits have been secured from various parties interested in the case, which according to Mr. Hedges, contain statements relative to the fraud.

Rossi was not told of the divorce granted here until last Saturday, after his wife had lived with him three years since the decree had been granted, during which time the baby was born. It is said that Mrs. Rossi loves another man and will refuse to return to her husband even if the court so orders. She may start another divorce action if the law sets aside her former decree.

Mr. Hedges has been working on the case through the Portland courts for several days and the petition will probably be filed here during the next week.

That at any time he may desire to enter Clackamas county for the purpose of completing any transaction in connection with closing up his said hotel business that he notify the sheriff of such intention at least one week previous thereto.

AN ANCIENT CHURCH.

It Has Been In Use In France For Over a Thousand Years.

Before dinner we walked for a little in the gray evening and came to a little church—one of the oldest in France, it is said, built in the ninth century and called St. Michael's. (At Nantua, in the French Juras.) It is more than a thousand years old and looks it. It has not been much rebuilt, I think, for invasion and revolution appear seldom to have surmounted the natural ramparts of Nantua, and only the storm beat and the erosion of the centuries have written the story of decay. The hand of restoration has troubled it little.

We slipped in through the gathering dusk and tiptoed about, for there were a few lights flickering before the altar, and we saw the outlines of bowed heads. Presently a priest was silhouetted against the altar lights as he crossed and passed out by a side door. He was one of a long line that stretched back through more than half of the Christian era and through most of the history of France.

When the first priest passed in front of that altar France was still under the Carolingian dynasty—under Charles the Fat, perhaps, and William of Normandy was not to conquer England until 200 years later. Then nearly 400 years more would creep by—dim, medieval years—before Joan of Arc should unfurl her banner of victory and martyrdom.

You see how far back into the mists we are stepping here. And all those evenings the altar lights have been lit and the ministrations of priests has not failed—Albert Bigelow Paine in Harper's Magazine.

Drying an Umbrella.

An umbrella should never be opened in order to dry it, as the ribs get sprung, and it will never roll up neatly and tightly after once dried in this manner. Doing this will also spoil the cover by straining the weave unnaturally. The correct way to dry an umbrella is to stand it on the handle that the water may run off at the points instead of gathering at the ferrule and thus rotting the material.

Here, too, the foreigner should be furnished opportunity to master the English language, to learn to read and write and to obtain a knowledge of American history and the government under which he now lives. If the financial condition of the district does not warrant it, encouragement should be extended private enterprises.

"The high school auditorium should continue to be used for all gatherings of a social-educational nature and more evening lectures and entertainments encouraged, care being taken that the regular work of the students be not encroached upon."

Achison, of Salem, received the bride couple and read the ceremony. Light refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Rush are at home to their friends at 1205 Main street.
