OREGON CITY HOLDS PART OF SALVAGE OF SUNKEN SHIP

"Captain Dodge, having secured the use of the city's diving apparatus, will send Professor Campbell down from the deck of the schooner Growler today to examine the situation of the Duc de Lorges, sunk below Couch and Flanders wharf. The vessel was sunk in 1852, loaded with flour stored in her by Dr. McLoughlin, of Oregon City."

The above was taken from the Oregonian of March 20, 1917, and was from that paper of 50 years ago. This boat made trips to Oregon City, the wharf being near where is now located the Oregon City Manufacturing company. Fifteen years before effort was made to raise the vessel a large shipment of goods was brought to this city. Among the shipment was a clock, now owned and in possession of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Stevens, of Sixth and Washington streets. This clock was purchased by the late Medogram Crawford, father of Mrs. Stevens, soon after the arrival of the vessel. It is of mahogany, hand carved, and stands about 36 inches in height.

ANGLERS MOVE TO PROTECT TROUT IN NEARBY STREAMS

The Clackamas County Anglers' association has made an appeal to the master fish warden, Carl D. Shoenmaker, of Portland. This appeal is for the protection of the fish that have been planted in the Molalla and Clackamas rivers and the Milk creek and Clear creek by the association. Last year there were several hundred thousand fish planted in these streams, and were from the state and government fish hatcheries. They were of the Cut Throat, Brook trout, Rainbow, and Speckled Mountain trout varieties. association, who took special care in getting the young fish from the hatcheries to their destination.

It is reported that these fish are being caught by fishermen, many of whom come from Portland each Sunday, who do not seem to know the penalty for catching the smaller fish. It is the intention of this local organization to protect the fish they have planted. The last planting amounted to 250,000 small fish.

RUSSIAN TROOPS AT FRONT HEAR FIRST OF REVOLT

PETROGRAD, March 21.—Russian troops at the front received news of the overthrow of the autocracy and setting up of a democracy with acclaim, according to dispatches received today from field headquarters and made public today by the provisional government.

The troops were mustered in the public square, to which point they had marched carrying red flags and singing the "Marseillaise." At the request of Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the army, General Alexeff, chief of staff, read the Czar's declaration of abdication and exhorted the soldiers to loyalty to the new government.

Judge Campbell, of the circuit court, Saturday granted a decree of divorce to Mrs. Nora Stanton from her husband, Charles Stanton.

JULIUS WILBUR SUED OVER FURNISHINGS OF THE FRIARS' CLUB

Julius H. Wilbur, former proprietor of the notorious Friars' club roadhouse was sued in the circuit court here Wednesday by Henry Jennings & Sons, of Portland, who allege that they sold him furniture worth $152.53 which has never been paid for.

Larry Sullivan and Martin Denny, Wilbur's successors as proprietors of the Friars' club, are made parties to the suit. The complaint states that when they bought the roadhouse in December they agreed to take over a number of Wilbur's debts, including this one. Nothing, however, has been paid, the complaint asserts.

With this suit entered in the court here, Wilbur is being sued or prosecuted in practically every variety of court in the state. A criminal charge against him is under consideration in Portland. He is being sued in the justice court in Milwaukie by Sullivan and Denny over financial matters connected with the sale of the Friars' club. Clackamas county officials have just completed briefs in their case against him in the supreme court of the state, in which they charge violation of the prohibition law. The new case is in addition to all these.

Sheriff Wilson was requested this afternoon to take immediate action in the matter of seizing the contested furniture. The equipment was purchased in February 1916, soon after the dry law put the old Friars' club out of business. Wilbur's plan at that time was to conduct the place as a sort of hotel.

SUES MEDIUM TO GET BACK $2000 HE PAID TO HER

PORTLAND, Ore., March 21.—W. H. M. Tiedman, a Portland business man, Wednesday filed suit in the circuit court to recover $2000 from Helen Wrenn, a spiritualist medium.

Tiedman alleges that Miss Wrenn, her mother Nettie Wrenn and Brice Wilson, so gained his confidence in various spiritualistic ways, that he gave Helen Wrenn $2000 to invest for him in property.

"She represented the property to be worth a great deal of money," said Tiedman, in the suit, "and I gave her the $2000. The property was worthless and I have never received a cent for my investment."

Tiedman met Miss Wrenn at the Spiritualist Church of the South at Second and Taylor streets.
