THE FASHIONS

Just at this time of the year, when we are all of us finding the coat very irksome indeed, one-piece frocks play a most important role. Of course there never is a closed season of them, but at this time their real charm is best appreciated.

Fabrics Important Consideration

Aside from the simple, trim models of serge, gabardine, faille, and taffeta, which one meets everywhere on the avenue these bright days, the shop windows are gay with voiles, nets, figured organdies, and the dainty imported cottons, fashioned into frocks which are wonderfully appealing. Each day new models appear, no two exactly alike, though obviously of the same family, each seeming, if possible, daintier than those launched before. Frills, narrow and wide, cobweb-like laces and embroideries, and layer after layer of the sheerest of fabrics are used to create these full-skirted, fluffy frocks, for summer dances, country club afternoons, and the thousand and one other requirements of the summer playtime.

Interesting Tub Frocks

Of course, many of these dainty, lace-trimmed, befrilled lingerie frocks are anything but economical when one considers that they will not launder, but must be cleaned each time they are soiled. However, there are many dainty materials which will launder and make up quite as effectively—figured voiles, colored handkerchief linens, crepes, many of the organdies, and most of the imported novelty cottons, when simply trimmed.

A particularly effective summer frock, suitable for almost any day.

time occasion, illustrated here, is developed in a dotted voile, a white ground embroidered with a soft pink dot. The satin girdle, which is in a darker tone, affords the necessary touch of sharp contrast.

Color Combinations

Colors, more, perhaps, than almost anything else, should be chosen, not according to the shades which are fashionable, but for their becomingness. There are certain tones which are more becoming than others, and these should be selected. It is not a difficult matter to do this this season, for, although we hear of the seriousness of the dye situation on every hand, there seems to be no dearth of beautiful shades. The many shades of gray are popular for muslins and silks; and the soft pinks and blues predominate in the cool, pretty waifings.

Navy blue is always favored, and this summer it is as popular as ever for serge, taffeta and linen suitings. Checks and stripes vie for favor with the plain colors, being used for skirts, combined with dark coats, and for one-piece frocks. Pongees and tussahs, with the natural tan ground, figured or striped in soft tones of green, rose, tan, orange and like colors, are being used for the Russian blouse frocks, such as the one shown here, combining the figured and plain material as illustrated. The linen suitings are striped in the same colors, giving much the same effect. These Russian blouse suits and dresses are well liked for sports and also for more formal wear. For instance, the frock illustrated is developed in embroidered batiste combined with a skirt of plain white tussah, making a dainty, cool frock for summer afternoons.

WARDEN SUPPORTED

Anglers' Club Asks Retention of Deputy Warden Here

At its recent meeting the Multnomah Anglers' club decided to appeal to Governor Withycombe relative to the replacing of Deputy Fish and Game Warden Patton and the placing of Warden Smith in his stead in Clackamas county. Members of the Multnomah Anglers' club are under the impression that Mr. Patton's work was always efficient and that Mr. Smith hasn't the qualifications necessary.

Following is the letter addressed to the governor and signed by A. E. Burghdoff, acting secretary:

"Delegations from the rod and gun clubs of Clackamas county and a number of other prominent citizens of Clackamas county appeared at this meeting to solicit the support of the Multnomah Anglers' club in an endeavor to retain Warden Patton in his present capacity. It was shown that the proposed appointee has practically no qualifications for the position of warden and claimed that appointment was made for political reasons.

"There has been no reason given for the dismissal of Warden Patton, and knowing his zeal and ability we feel no hesitancy in asking that he be retained in his present capacity of warden in Clackamas county."

Eastern Clackamas county is the special scene of Warden Patton's work and, as is evident from the support offered him, he has a host of friends throughout this and Multnomah counties.

PLANS ARE MADE

Clackamas County Knights Observe With Interest

Portland is getting ready to "dollar" again. This time it will be for the entertainment of the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, which meets in that city August 1 to 10. Portland will be decorated from the water front to the hills in red, yellow and blue, not the least portion of which will consist of flowers. Portland has 500 miles of rose hedges from which to cull her decorations, and which are at the disposal of visitors.

It is expected that 25,000 Knights of Pythias will attend the convention. The large portion of visitors will be subordinate lodge members who will be taking their vacations from business. For the entire crowd an elaborate entertainment has been prepared.

Special trains will begin arriving in Portland about July 30. These will be carrying eastern people. Other sections of the northwest will arrive by special trains in the following two days. Headquarters for the officers of the Supreme Lodge will be at the Hotel Portland, while sessions of that body will be held in the Masonic Temple. The great State Armory, where 1000 men march and counter-march in comfort, will be the scene of the public receptions.

The Courier is $1 a year if paid in advance.

HELD BY A MANIAC

Plight of a Steeplejack Atop a Towering Church Spire.

WHEN HIS HELPER WENT MAD.

The Struggle For Life in Midair and the Lucky Incident That Enabled Merrill to Overcome the Cunning Lunatic in His Death Grapple.

In Cleveland Moffett's "Careers of Danger and Daring" is this incident of real life that was told to Mr. Moffett by Merrill, the famous steeplejack, to whom it occurred:

"Did you ever have an impulse to jump off a steeple?" I questioned, recalling the sensations of many people in looking down even from a housetop. "I've kept pretty free from that," said he, "but there's no doubt climbing steeples does tell on a man's nerves. Now, there was Dan O'Brien. He had an impulse to jump off a steeple one day and a strong impulse too. He went mad on one of the tallest spires in Cincinnati, right at the top of it."

"Went mad?" "Yes, sir, raving mad, and I was by him when it happened. I forget whether the church was Baptist or Presbyterian, but I know it stood on Sixth street, near Vine, and there was a big hand on top of the steeple with the forefinger pointing to heaven.

"We were putting fresh gliding on this hand. I was working on the thumb side and O'Brien on the little finger side, both of us standing on tiny stagings about the size of a chair seat and both of us made fast to the steeple by life lines under our arms. That's an absolute rule in climbing steeples—never to do the smallest thing unless you're secured by a life line.

"It was coming on dark, and I was hurrying to get the gold leaf on, because we'd given the hand a fresh coat of sizing that would be dry before morning. We hadn't spoken for some time, when suddenly I heard a laugh from O'Brien's side that sent a shiver down my spine. Did you ever hear a crazy man laugh? Well, if ever you do you'll remember it. I looked at him and saw by his face that something was wrong.

"What are you doing?" said I. "He answered very polite and steady like, but his tone was queer. 'I'm trying to figure out how long it would take a man to get down if he went the fastest way.'

"I thought I had better keep him in a good humor, so I said, 'I'll tell you what, Dan, you brace up and get this gold on, and then we'll race to the ground in our saddles.'

"That's a fair idea," said he in a shrill voice, 'but I've got a better one. We'll race down without any saddles; yes, sir, without any lines, without a blasted thing.'

"Don't be a fool, Dan. What you want to do is to get that gold on—quick." I tried to speak sharp.

"No, sir; I'm going to jump, and so are you."

"I caught his eye just then and saw it wasn't any time to bother about gold leaf. I reached up and eased the hitch of my line around the hand so I could swing toward him. I knew if I once got my grip on him he wouldn't make any more trouble. But I'd never had a crazy man to deal with, and I didn't realize how tricky and quick they are. While I was working around to his side and thinking he didn't notice it he was laying for me out of the corner of his eye, and the first thing I knew he had me by the throat and everything was turning black. I let go of the line and dropped back on my saddle board helpless, and if it hadn't been for blind luck I guess the people down below would have got their money's worth in about a minute. But my hand struck the tool box as he pressed me back, and I had just strength enough left to shut my fingers on the first tool I touched and strike at him with it. The tool happened to be a monkey wrench, and when a man gets a clip on the head with a thing like that he's pretty apt to keep still for awhile. And that's what O'Brien did. He keeled over and lay there, and I did, too, until my head got steady. Even then I guess we'd both have fallen if it hadn't been for the life lines.

"The rest was simple enough after I got my senses back. Dan was unconscious, and all I had to do was fasten a rope to him and lower away. They took care of him down below until the ambulance came, and he spent most of his years since then in an asylum, his mind all gone except for short periods, when he comes to himself again, and then he always starts out to put an end to me. That last impulse to destroy me has never left him."

Not in His Line.

A society for disseminating religious literature once sent a bundle of tracts to a railway messenger for placing in the waiting room with the title, "A Route to New Jerusalem." He returned them, with the message, "We cannot place the tracts, as New Jerusalem is not on our system."—London Tit-Bits.

They All Do Then.

"Tell me, is there ever a time when you feel that you really hate your husband?"

"Yes. The times when he telephones me at the last minute that he won't be home for supper."—Detroit Free Press.

An ounce of mirth is worth a pound of sorrow.—Baxter.
