SOLDIERS OFF TO MEXICAN BORDER

down because even the aisles were occupied. Several thousand people came by train to Clackamas, and the result was a general delay in the train service both north and south. Trains from the north were delayed at Clackamas fully an hour during the entire day and returning to Portland were also delayed. A number of special trains were operated over the S. P. lines. Guards at the entrances to the camp regulated traffic and kept automobiles moving away from the gates so that there would be no confusion. On each side of the road in front of the camp machines were parked for more than a half-mile. All towns in the valley, and especially those which are homes of guard companies, sent great numbers of visitors to Clackamas in automobiles. Probably never before in the history of Clackamas county have so many people been assembled at one place within its boundaries. It was a historic day in spite of the inclemency of the weather.

When brave soldier lads, like ordinary mortals, do not know certain things their peace of mind is just as great as it would be in the full light of fact. Just for instance, if Company G and other guard commands at Clackamas had known certain things on Sunday night about ten o'clock, they would probably have been kept from border service by a general army court martial as a result of their mutilation of the rolling stock of the Southern Pacific and the disfigurement of certain passengers therein. On the California local, due through Oregon City at 9:25 P. M., but delayed a short time on Sunday, was a barred steel passenger compartment car. The windows and all portals were heavily barred and guarded by gun men. The cook and waiters slept in their compartment with one eye wide open and the passengers in the smoking car behind did not attempt sleep. But, the point is this: The car was en route to McNeil's island on Puget Sound with a load of government prisoners from Arizona and New Mexico. There were eighteen prisoners in the car, in addition to guards and cooks and federal officers. And here is where the national guard would have taken up arms: Among the prisoners were several American-born white men, who had been taken in various raids upon detachments of Villa's army "somewhere in Mexico." One man, an American citizen, was a captain in a Villa brigade and took part in the Columbus massacre in New Mexico some weeks ago. Such loyalty to one's citizenship is not recognized in the code of the Oregon National guard. The prison car stopped with a stone's throw from the Clackamas camp for several minutes Sunday evening while taking on and discharging passengers.

"Scotty," Charles Daniels, first cook of Company G, has achieved a notable popularity among the members of the command because of his cheerful reign over the mess and kitchen tents. "Scotty" served an enlistment in the United States navy and there gained the training and, incidentally, the tattoo marks, which qualify him to an exceptional degree for service in the guard. "Scotty" is an enthusiastic young son of the kilted tribe of Britain and his highest ambition in life at the present moment is to equip the soldiers from Oregon City with such edibles as will permit them to distinguish themselves as protectors of the nation's honor. "Scotty" is a good cook and is an excellent "boss" over the "rookie" who are assigned to the kitchen tent as his assistants. Daniels can probably stand more of the hard knocks of camp life and the trying demands of border campaigns than most any other man in G Company because of the preparation he had while a sailor on the seas under Commander Uncle Samuel. And the lad is one of the truest Americans in the company.

Much fresh fruit has been donated to the commissary of G Company by Clackamas county people. In most cases the donors take the fruit to the camp themselves, but occasionally the men are given charge of the orchard to pick as they please. Pies are another luxury that are provided in great numbers to the men. Mrs. W. R. Logus, wife of First Lieutenant W. R. Logus, was one of the first to discover the most practical means of endeavoring herself to the citizen soldiers and she has taken a great many pies to the kitchen of the company. Mrs. Logus has the lasting affection of every man in the command and other ladies are fast achieving a similar honor through their thoughtfulness.

Wives and sweethearts of soldiers are not the only ones to suffer because of the mobilization of state troops. The Burmeister & Andresen company divorced itself reluctantly from the service of its expert watchmaker, James F. Porter. Mr. Porter is a comparatively recent addition to the populace of Oregon City, coming here from Portland. In the metropolis Mr. Porter was Captain James F. Porter, commanding Company E, O. N. G., and when he came here he retained his commission. When the call for mobilization was sent out Captain Porter had retired for the night, but he immediately dressed and went to the Multnomah county armory. He worked throughout the night upon the details of mobilizing his company and has made one of the most creditable showings, as a result, that can be found at Clackamas. Company E street at the camp is a prize winner for cleanliness and beauty. Its novel flower beds are a feature created by the young men, who are, for the most part, high school boys.

"My compliments to Captain Blanchard, and say that Sergeant Blank would like to use the skirmish line if he may have the key to the squad maneuver," said Sergeant Blank to a raw recruit in G company, meanwhile assuming all the military grace that the three bars upon his sleeves would permit. The raw recruit approached Captain Blanchard a few moments later with a bit of the same military grace of his superior.

"Compliments of Sergeant Blank, Sir. May he have the key to the squad maneuver so that he can use the skirmish line?" And Captain Blanchard grasped the intent of the bearded old "josh" that has been "pulled" on the raw recruit since the day the term was coined. The captain orders the assured youth to the junior lieutenant and down the line of officers and non-commissioned officers he goes, seeking the key to the squad maneuver, even as a gay knight once sought the fabled Eldorado, until some brave and well-versed soldier boy "puts him wise," that such things as the skirmish line and the squad maneuver are ethereal, so to speak; that they are the conceptions of the vivid imagination of a practical joker. The raw recruit sinks into his tent and wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to do anything but dream pleasant dreams of Sergeant Blank.

The vocal music from an untutored voice is more or less a catastrophe and is exceedingly unpleasant to the sensitive ear that must bear the burden of the song. But, no matter how sadly untrained the voices, if a number of young folks gather to rehearse the dear old melodies and throw their strong tones out upon the balmy air of the darkened evening it goes as real music. The badness of the assembled voices seems to blend with the little good that may be in a few to bring about harmony.

That is the philosophic conclusion after hearing the tunes that are raised from youthful chests at Camp Withycombe. After the shades of night have spread over the tiresome efforts of the day and all is peaceful on the "battleground," a bevy of boys can be found in most any section of the camp ground willing to tune up for their own amusement. Indeed, there is melody in the air most of the time. "The Spanish Cavalier" is one of the melodious offerings of the majority of these singing groups, and its notes are very pretty and very fitting for the occasion. As the boys swing into the words: "I'm off to the war, to the war I must go, to fight for my country and you, dear," a feeling of patriotism and deeply implanted sense of respect for the young soldier boys comes to the heart and mind of the most cynical listener and the more devout express the feeling through a silent prayer for the welfare of the lads whose heart and soul swells in pride in the battle "for my country and you, dear." Ah! They're off with "come be my Hula-Hula maid."

A thrill of anger, if not of mutiny, tinged the spirit of Camp Withycombe late last week when word came from the war department that the state troops of Kansas, Missouri and California had been ordered to the border. Oregon troops were first to concentrate and first to be mustered into the federal service; then they send these others into actual service first? But the boys soon calmed themselves under the pressure of their patriotism, which was the cause of their momentary heat. The desire to get at the task before them is almost overpowering at times and the boys will go to any end to be up and have the job done with.

DRAMA TO BE CHAUTAUQUA FEATURE

Comus Players to Open Chautauqua With Popular Play.

"The play is the thing." To all lovers of the drama the Comus Players will prove a welcome Chautauqua innovation. They are equipped to satisfy the most critical as well as the popular taste. They will present either "Carson of the North Woods," a classic of Canadian forest life, or "Nance Oldfield," a human interest play of strong moral tone and appeal. An appropriate atmosphere of costume and setting accompany these productions. As a prelude to either of the foregoing plays selections will be presented from one of the following Shakespearean dramas: "As You Like It," "Taming of the Shrew," "Macbeth" or "Hamlet."

The personnel of this splendid company of artists is one of uniform excellence.

lence, each member enjoying a distinguished place in dramatic circles.

Janet Young has appeared in over 100 productions in cities of the Pacific coast. She was a member of the Baker stock company of Portland for two years, and is known to theatergoers as the "Sweetheart of the Northwest." Miss Young is wonderfully sympathetic in her work, and her interpretations are convincing.

Archibald F. Redie, eminent dramatic critic and interpreter of Shakespearean roles, is the "heavy" support of the company. Mr. Redie is a graduate of the Spring Garden Institute, was formerly dean of oratory and dramatics in Valparaiso university and occupies the same position in the University of Oregon.

Roswell Dosh, whose dramatic studies in Europe were interrupted at the outbreak of the war, is a young man devoted to the uplift of the drama. He "puts it across" right.

Ralph Ash, who has appeared opposite Miss Young in many productions, takes the lead. Mr. Ash is handsome, of splendid physique and combines with the charm of the matinee idol the acumen of the student.

The Comus Players are the attraction for Chautauqua first nighters, being the first program number. They will start things going.

LABADIE GIVES CANADIAN STORIES

After Living Among French Canadians For Many Years.

In the southern part of Canada, in and around the city of Quebec, there lives a people far more interesting and unique than any other class of people on the western continent. These people are the French Canadians, and in their simple life and community fellowship they display a quality that is lacking in the hustling and bustling American.

There is a man coming to Chautauqua who has lived among these people

ple and has studied and learned to imitate them in dialect and story, and he is now presenting all over the United States his French Canadian stories. His name is Francis Labadie and, as his name indicates, is of French extraction himself.

These stories are delightful reminiscences of the French Canadians, and their telling will be enriched greatly in coming from the mouth of one who has lived among these people.

CHERRYVILLE

(Too Late for Regular Page)

These warm rains are great for grain and grass.

Everybody is going to war or talking war these days.

Lillian B. Averill has gone to Aberdeen, Wash., to visit her brother, who is employed in an architect's office. Harry Keil, a fine young man from Cosmopolis, Wash., has taken up a railroad claim one mile east of the postoffice. Nearly every piece of railroad land is now occupied.

Lee Johnson and his grandmother are over from eastern Oregon holding down their claim south of town.

Rev. Mr. Randall, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Portland, and in charge of the Boy Scouts here, occupied the pulpit at the church last Sunday and delivered a fine discourse.

Our local weather prophet says this falling rainy weather will extend well into July before the dry season begins.

One of the finest floral displays to be seen anywhere is on free exhibition in a front yard in Eagle Creek. There is a perfect riot of color and splendor of adornment rarely seen. The profusion of roses, canterbury bells, shirley poppies of every kind is immense.

The Gibson cherries fully sustain their high reputation this year and this is the fortieth season—consequently—the original tree has been bearing high class fruit.

At the annual school meeting here last week Mr. Shank was elected school director for the long term and Parnell Averill for the two-year term. Mrs. Averill was re-elected school clerk.

Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Freil have their summer hotel finely arranged for the season's trade. The dining room is very handsomely decorated in an artistic manner.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM.

Cavities Holding Pus, It Is Claimed Breed the Dread Ailment.

In the American Magazine is an article on rheumatism by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, who says:

"The cause of rheumatism is pus formed and imprisoned in some part of the body. It gets into the circulation and is carried by it to the region affected. These pus places may be in spots more or less closed up, so they are not easily drained. They may be located about the teeth, at the end of the roots of dead or diseased teeth, in the crypts of the tonsils, in some of the sequestered places in the nostrils, in the bony sinuses of the head. They may be in the bladder, the kidney, the gall ducts or other places. The pus producing spot may be as small or smaller than a pea or it may be larger. Its existence is frequently unknown to the patient, especially if it is hidden in soft tissue like the tonsil. It may even exist in the bony socket of a tooth without giving pain.

"Several different organisms produce pus, and any or all may produce rheumatism when transferred to the joints or the heart.

"The physician today seeks for the pus cavity when he meets a patient with rheumatism, and he endeavors to clean it up. Rheumatic pains have been stopped with magical promptness by simply extracting the offending tooth. It is not always easy to find the pus places in the hidden parts of the body. The X ray shadowgraph is essential in locating the trouble. It shows definitely and accurately all trouble about the roots of the teeth, and its use is therefore of the first importance in ferreting out the pus in the deep structures."

Duncan Smoked In Church.
Sir Walter Scott in his "Heart of Midlothian" refers to one Duncan of Knockunder, an important personage, who smoked during the whole of the sermon from an iron pipe tobacco borrowed from other worshippers. We are told that at the end of the discourse he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, replaced it in his sporran, returned the tobacco pouch to its owner and joined in the prayer with decency and attention.

Domestic Strategy.
Husband—I am not ready to go out yet. Wife—But I am, and we must go immediately. Husband—But, my dear, your hat is not on straight. Wife—Dear me! Isn't it? Wait a minute till I go to my room and put it right. Exit wife for half an hour, and her shrewd husband completes his work.

Argentina.
If the country has the same average potentiality for producing food as land similarly situated in North America or Europe, it would seem that Argentina can support 100,000,000 people easily, as only small parts of it lie outside the temperate zone.

The Point of View.
"The darkest cloud has a silver lining," remarked the optimist.
"But it is a dark cloud, just the same," insisted the pessimist.—Exchange.

Silly Fellow.
"You are the only girl that can make me happy."
"Are you sure?"
"Yes; I have tried all the others."—Philadelphia Record.

Time to Wean Pigs.
It pays to allow the pigs to suck until they are nine or ten weeks old. It may seem before this time that the pigs are not getting much from their mother. However, the little they do get helps wonderfully, and the pig that has a good start will grow into a profitable hog very quickly.

Uncle Sam
Uncle Sam is tall and trim. His eye is keen and bright, Sir; His arms are long, his legs are thin, He's ready for a fight, Sir.

(Chorus)
Yankee Doodle lead your gun,
Yankee Doodle Dandy.
Put the foeman on the run,
Yankee Doodle Dandy.
His family numbers forty-eight,
The handsomest of all, Sir;
His land is fair and rivers great,
His mountains mighty tall, Sir.

(Chorus)
He minds his business in the world,
His doctrine is Monroe, Sir;
Old Glory now he has unfurled,
But don't tread on his toe, Sir.

(Chorus)
Preparedness is his daily theme,
His Constitution's strong, Sir;
To help all people is his dream,
He'll free the earth 'fore long, Sir.

(Chorus)

MASONIC TEMPLE BLDG. OREGON CITY, ORE.

...Additional... ...Locals...

Mrs. J. M. Volkmar of Seventh and Madison streets, left Wednesday for Fair View, Ore., where she will remain with her mother, Mrs. Shepherd for an indefinite time.

The many friends of Mrs. Fred Bullard of Mt. View, will be glad to know that she is somewhat better. Miss Mabel Volkmar of this city left Wednesday morning for Salem, where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones. The latter was formerly Miss Ida May Smith of this city. Miss Volkmar will resume her class in piano on her return to this city about September first.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Shepherd and family arrived Saturday by automobile from Walla Walla, Wash., and visited at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. J. M. Volkmar, and family. Both families drove to Fair View Sunday, where they were the guests of Mrs. Shepherd, mother of Mr. Shepherd and Mrs. Volkmar, returning to this city Tuesday. Mr. Shepherd and family left for their home in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Baars were Oregon City business visitors Wednesday, making the trip to this city by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orton of Portland were guests at the home of Mrs. H. B. Black of this city on Wednesday.

SILLO DEMONSTRATION

Extension Department Will Instruct Farmers of County

The extension department of Oregon Agricultural college will conduct a sillo demonstration on Charles Ryder's farm at Central Point on June 30. The sillo will be built as a demonstration to the farmers and extension workers from the college will explain to the farmers the best methods in raising grain for use in the sillo. The farmers will not be the sole pupils, for an invitation has been extended the business men of Oregon City to attend through the Commercial club. Automobiles will leave from the Commercial club building at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning, carrying the business men who wish to attend the demonstration. A basket lunch will be served on the farm.

Mother Recovers Child

Through a habeas corpus proceeding Sheriff Wilson recovered the baby of Mrs. Mary Malson from Mr. and Mrs. Carl Freeman and returned the three-months old infant to its parent. This is said to be one of the first cases on record where such an action was taken to gain possession of a child. While the mother was still bedfast after the birth of the baby it was taken to the home of the Freeman's near Bull Run. They wished to adopt the child and when the mother was well refused to return it to her. She, fearing that they would get out of the state with the little one, started action against them and brought the habeas corpus proceeding to regain her child at once. Sheriff Wilson and the mother went to Bull Run on Wednesday to get the child.

AMERICAN BARITONE'S "HOBBY" IS GOLF AND HUNTING

Burt McKinnie of International Operatic Company Holder of Many Cups and Trophies

In a recent interview Burt McKinnie, the American baritone, said: "They say that every artist must have temperament to succeed, but I do not think I have any. Mine is mostly 'hobby.' I love to fish and hunt, and, most of all, I like to play golf. I have played in a number of tournaments throughout the United States, and I enjoy myself as much as though I am on the platform singing. Above all, singing is my 'hobby,' and I don't think I show any temperament in my appearance anywhere."

Mr. McKinnie is singing this year with the International Operatic Company, which gives two concerts at Chautauqua. He is the holder of about fifteen cups and trophies taken at golf tournaments and is one of the champions of the southern part of the United States.

SANDY CELEBRATES

Old-Fashioned Fourth of July on the Boards at Sandy

Sandy and the surrounding neighborhood is preparing for the biggest celebration of July fourth in the history of that community and plans that will insure the success of the day are rapidly being completed. The fourth will be one of the old-fashioned affairs that wakes up early with noise, lives through the day with noise and goes to bed amid still more noise.

The program will start with a parade at 10 o'clock in the morning in which autos and horse-drawn vehicles will take part. Prizes will be awarded to the best decorated entries. An old-fashioned fourth of July feature will be the program of speeches and songs at the Meinig grove. For the afternoon horse and foot races, baseball games, egg races, tug-of-wars are planned, and prizes will be given for each event.

The Courier—$1.00 per year.

Families of Eastern Star members are asked to attend a picnic to be held tomorrow night at Canham park. A fine time is planned. Supper will be served at the park at 6:30.
